Ronaldo's Coca-Cola snub followed by $4 BN drop in its market value

With a deadpan face and the slightest tinge of derision, star footballer Cristiano Ronaldo picks up two glass bottles of Coca-Cola, mutters the company's name and sets them aside before holding up a bottle of water. Not long after, the Euro 2020 sponsor saw its market value drop by $4 billion. The captain of the Portugal football team is a well-known fitness enthusiast. At a press conference in Budapest before Portugal went up against Hungary at Euro 2020, Ronaldo made it well known what he feels about carbonated drinks.

Twitter faces government fire, sees FIR in UP

Twitter no longer has legal protection in India from prosecution over users' posts as it has failed to comply with new IT rules, the government said today as the social media giant, in a global first, faced charges of inciting communal trouble. Union IT Minister Ravi Shankar Prasad, in posts on Twitter as well as its Indian rival Koo, said Twitter was given "multiple opportunities to comply" but it deliberately chose non-compliance. The first case in which Twitter can face charges for third party content was filed last night in Uttar Pradesh in connection with an alleged assault on an elderly Muslim man in Ghaziabad on June 5.

Japan to set 10,000-spectator cap ahead of Olympics

Japan is planning to set a cap of 10,000 fans at sports events ahead of the Olympics, a cabinet minister said Wednesday, as organisers weigh how many domestic spectators can attend the Games. The proposed measure would come into force after a Covid-19 state of emergency in Tokyo and other parts of the country ends on June 20, and would last until the end of August, said Yasutoshi Nishimura, the minister in charge of virus measures. It would limit spectators to 50 percent of a venue's capacity or 10,000 people, whichever is smaller, he said. The plan is expected to become official later this week.

Republicans introduce bill to fire Anthony Fauci

Several Republican lawmakers, eager to blame a US government official for the response to the coronavirus pandemic, introduced a bill Tuesday to fire Anthony Fauci, the face of American efforts to combat Covid-19. Congresswoman Marjorie Taylor Greene led a handful of colleagues in announcing the so-called Fire Fauci Act, which would reduce the famed infectious disease expert's government salary to zero and require the Senate to confirm someone to fill his position. Fauci, who has advised seven US presidents, had become a trusted figure in the government's Covid-19 response, beginning with his work during Donald Trump's administration.

India fought second wave using outdated drugs

NAVEENA GHANATE
HYDERABAD

India fought the second wave of Covid-19 with almost outdated science. It was in November 2020 that the World Health Organization (WHO) recommended against the use of Remdesivir in COVID-19 patients; yet, in the second wave, there was 'shortage' of this medicine. The country not only ramped up the production, but also got it as aid from other countries. A total of 34.5 lakh Remdesivir vials were allocated to the states and UTs from April 21 to May 9. While AP got 1.42 lakh vials of Remdesivir, TS got 93,800 vials in this duration. WHO had last year issued a conditional recommendation against the use of Remdesivir for hospitalised patients, regardless of disease severity, as it could not find any

Not just Remdesivir, several drugs and therapies which the world has stopped using are still in vogue in India. The crisis was fought with outdated science; yet, it led to black-marketing of even those drugs!

It was only in the first week of June 2021 that the government revised guidelines and dropped drugs such as hydroxychloroquine, ivermectin, doxycycline, zinc and multivitamins, which were earlier prescribed by doctors to treat asymptomatic or mildly symptomatic Covid-19 patients.

Twitter failed to comply with IT rules: Prasad

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

IT Minister Ravi Shankar Prasad on Wednesday said Twitter failed to comply with intermediary guidelines and has "deliberately" chosen the path of non-compliance despite being granted multiple opportunities.

Lashing out at the micro-blogging platform over non-compliance, Prasad said that it is "astounding" that Twitter that portrays itself as the flag bearer of free speech, chooses the path of deliberate defiance when it comes to the Intermediary Guidelines.

"There are numerous queries arising as to whether Twitter is entitled to safe harbour provision. However, the simple fact of the matter is that Twitter has failed to comply with the Intermediary Guidelines that came into effect from the 26 May," Prasad said in a series of posts on homegrown microblogging platform Koo. The minister also tweeted on the issue. Prasad asserted that Twitter was given multiple opportunities to comply with the rules, but deliberately chose the path of non-compliance.

Six Maoists killed in encounter in Vizag

PNS ■ VIJAYAWADA

Six members, including three women, of the outlawed CPI (Maoist) were killed in an alleged exchange of fire with the elite Greyhounds of Andhra Pradesh Police in Visakhapatnam district on Wednesday, while a fierce gunbattle took place between security forces and Maoists in neighbouring Odisha's Malkangiri district.

The deceased included the district committee commander Sande Gangaiah, they said. The remaining Maoists were identified as Ashok, Ranadev, Paik and Lalita. The identity of another woman Maoist was still to be established.

"So far, five of the deceased Maoists have been identified while the identity of a woman cadre is yet to be established," said Visakhapatnam SP B Krishna Rao. He said the exchange of fire took place in the dense forest at Teegalametla under Mampa police station limits. ## Centre, experts differ over gap between vax doses

WHO, experts say 8-12 weeks; govt OK with 12-16 weeks

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

Across the globe, there are concerted efforts to standardize vaccination and treatment protocol for Covid-19; yet, instead of adopting global benchmarks and standards, the Centre, by electing to differ with expert views, has only created confusion. For instance, in May the Union government increased the permissible gap for Covishield vaccine from 6-8 weeks to 12-16 weeks.

This was not done in line with any recommendations of the World Health Organisation or other experts. The Central Government said it went by the advice of the National Technical Advisory Group on Immunisation (NTAGI) Covid working group. However, the members of the organization have since told a new agency that 12-16 weeks' duration is something that the government had come out with,

TS set target to vax 1 cr people by June-end

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

As the ongoing vaccination drive for high-risk groups is going to be completed in a couple of days, there is uncertainty over the vaccination programme in the State for those in the age group of 18 to 44 years.

Once the State uses up the 7.5 lakh doses presently at its disposal, any further vaccination will depend on replenishment of supplies from the Centre.

According to sources, there is no clarity yet on how many doses will be supplied by the Centre. So, the authorities are inclined to plan the vaccination programme only upon intimation by the Centre.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi, while making an announcement recently that the Centre would supply vaccine free of cost to the States, said that special drive should be planned from June 21 for all those above 18 years of age.

However, the Centre indicated that the release of vaccines to the States could be based on the population and the positivity rate. Since the positivity rate in Telangana has declined significantly, the quantum of vaccines to be supplied to the State may be reduced. However, the guidelines for release of vaccines are yet to be announced.

The State, as part of a special drive covering high-risk groups, had been vaccinating over one lakh people on an average in the State. So far, the total cumulative vaccination figures for all age groups stand at 83.29 lakh, including jabs by private vaccine centres.

HC sets aside arbitration award to pay Rs 4,800 cr to DCHL

PNS ■ MUMBAI

The Bombay High Court on Wednesday set aside an arbitration award that directed the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) to pay over Rs 4,800 crore to Deccan Chronicle Holdings Ltd (DCHL) over the alleged illegal termination of the latter's IPL franchise team, Deccan Chargers Hyderabad, from the Indian Premier League (IPL).

A single-bench presided over by Justice Gautam Patel 'set aside' the award that had been passed in July last year by a sole arbitrator appointed by the high court to ascertain if the termination of the franchise during the fifth IPL season in 2012 was illegal. The arbitrator had held the termination illegal and awarded DCHL a compensation of Rs 4,814.67 crore plus 10 per cent interest that was to be computed from 2012.

The detailed order from the high court is awaited.

Kavitha's cryptic comments raise political heat

SNCN ACHARYULU
HYDERABAD

"In the coming days in Telangana political equations will change... Interesting politics are going to take place... Hope whatever happens; it will be good for TRS," were the cryptic comments that the daughter of Chief Minister K Chandrasekhar Rao and Telangana Rashtra Samithi (TRS) MLC K Kavitha made on Wednesday, raising political heat in the state and sparking speculations in TRS and other political circles.

Kavitha made the foregoing comments at Jagtial and added that many issues would come up for discussions, and wound up saying she could not speak more about this. Kavitha's remarks have caused a sensation at a time when there is already buzz about the impending cabinet reshuffle. The feeling among TRS circles is that Kavitha will be inducted into the cabinet by KCR.

There have been speculations for long in TRS circles about a change of guard in the TRS government mainly that KCR is going to make his son and Municipal & IT Minister K T Rama Rao the next Chief Minister. Although KCR has openly condemned loose talk in this regard, speculations are strong this time in TRS circles on this.

The Bharatiya Janata party (BJP) leadership has concentrated on Telangana with a view to grab power in the next Assembly elections. It has brought into its fold several political leaders like Etala Rajendar. Some more political leaders, including former MP Konda Vishveshwar Reddy, are going to join BJP, according to its state unit leaders.

Former chief Minister of undivided AP late YS Rajasekhara Reddy's daughter and sister of Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister YS Jagan Mohan Reddy YS Sharmila is giving shape to Telangana YSR Party. Keeping these things in mind, Kavitha may have made the sensational comments, opined a senior TRS leader.

Political scene heating up as Ruling, Oppn step up activities

ML MELLY MAITREY
■ HYDERABAD

Huzurabad constituency is becoming the centre of political attention and the political rivalry is heating up with supporters of TRS and those backing Eatala Rajender. With Eatala's expected visit to the constituency along with his wife first time after joining BJP on Thursday, and the ruling party which has already appointed in-charges for every mandal and made Gangula Kamalakar the constituency in-charge, both the parties have stepped up their activities as run up to the bye election whenever it is announced. The release of Rs 40 crore for various development works in the constituency was criticised by the opposition as the typical way of TRS and Chief Minister K Chandrasekar Rao to bestow all kinds of promises and give assurances whenever an election was announced in a constituency or district. They point out that the government which promised to fill 50,000 posts during Graduate MLC elections did not take any steps so far to take it forward. Meanwhile, Minister Gangula Kamalakar launching a diatribe against Eatala at the TRS party workers meeting at Huzurabad on Wednesday said he had mortgaged self respect of people of constituency at Delhi. Eatala joined BJP for protection of his properties. He could not even provide Bhagiratha drinking water to people fully. While the state was progressing under KCR's leadership, Eatala spent his time in conspiring to divide the party and neglected the constituency, Kamalakar said and added that here after he would strive to develop Huzurabad on the lines of Karimnagar and he would be accessible to everyone. He said people of Huzurabad constituency should be solidly behind the TRS and KCR who was implementing various welfare schemes for every section of society. There might be differences within the family but they would not tolerate outsiders harming the family, he said in apparent reference to the TRS Party. He called upon party workers to protect the TRS Party and whenever one went to polling booth one should think of KCR's picture, he said. The meeting was attended by MLAs Rasamayi Balakrishna, Satish, MLC Baswaraju Saraiyah, Karimnagar Mayor Sunil Rao, local party leaders and workers.

Parakala MLA Ch Dharma Reddy speaking at Kamalapurmandal headquarters said that BJP was against Telangana State and Eatala owed an explanation why he chose to join such a party. BJP government made injustice to Telangana in fund allocation and did not address the state reorganisation issues till now. It was because of Central government, prices of gas and petroleum were increasing. He alleged that Eatala joined BJP to protect himself from cases and while opposing Rythu Bandhu why did he accept lakhs of Rythu Bandhu assistance, he wondered.

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

The State committee of Communist Party of India (Maoist) on Wednesday said former MLA Eatala Rajender joined the BJP only to protect his properties and not to fight for the self-respect of the people of Telangana. In a statement, Telangana State committee Maoist party official spokesperson Jagan took exception to Rajender's statement that the Radical Students Union (RSU) and Maoist party would support him in the Huzurabad Assembly constituency by-election. The democratic forces requested Rajender not to join the BJP but he ignored the plea, he said. Stating that Rajender tried to consolidate his properties while he was a Minister, he said: "When he was a Minister, he forcibly took assigned lands from villagers. Rajender announced that he would fight against feudal domination but joined the BJP to protect his properties." "Rajender is trying to win the Huzurabad by-election seat saying that he is fighting for self-respect of Telangana. But he is deceiving the people," Jagan said, adding that the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS) and RSU would continue to be rivals in the country because of ideological differences. He said the RSU would always oppose the policies of RSS, which supports the BJP. The Maoist party was targeting RSS and BJP and under these circumstances, Rajender joined the BJP saying that he would continue to fight for the self-respect of Telangana people. "This is nothing but deceiving the people," Jagan said.

TS set target to vacc 1 cr people by June-end

The Medical and Health Department set a target to vaccinate one crore people in the State by June end, provided they get adequate number of vaccine doses. The State, which was expecting 12 lakh of doses by month-end, will take up new registrations as per the arrival of vaccine stocks. If the supplies are not in line with the expectations, then those due for second dose will be given priority and vaccination will continue, sources said. As per the new policy, the vaccine companies are required to supply 75 per cent of the vaccines to the Centre and the rest to private hospitals. In Telangana, many corporate entities organized vaccination drives by tying up with private hospitals for their employees and family members. Many residential complexes and gated communities too organized vaccine camps on their premises or in nearby facilities by tying up with private hospitals.

Centre, experts differ over gap between vax doses

While the NTAGI had backed only increasing the dosing interval to 8-12 weeks -- echoing WHO view. But now the government has turned the tables on the group members, saying no dissent was expressed by the members of NTAGI on increasing the gap. The MOHFW, in an official statement said, "This COVID-19 Working Group considered a proposal for a change in dose interval for Covishield used under the National Vaccination Policy. It recommended that based on the real-life evidences, particularly from the United Kingdom (UK), the COVID-19 Working Group agreed for increasing the dosing interval to 12-16 weeks between two doses of COVISHIELD vaccine". It is important to note here that none of the three studies supposed to have been done reportedly looked at the results of a 16-week dose gap. The Ministry added that this recommendation of the COVID-19 Working Group was further taken up for discussion in the 31st meeting of the Standing Technical Sub-Committee (STSC) of NTAGI held on 13th May 2021 under the joint chairmanship of Secretary, Department of Biotechnology and Secretary, DHR & DG, ICMR". The STSC said, as per the COVID-19 Working Group recommendation, a dosing interval of minimum three months between two doses of Covishield vaccine was recommended. Even after this claim by the government, one of the group members took a stand that there was no recommendation to increase the dose to 16 weeks. The central government has been pointing to Spain and Canada which had increased the gap, and keeps stating that its own decision to increase the gap has nothing to do with shortage. It may be mentioned here that with CoWIN app, people cannot tweak when they can take their second dose. Consequently, even if someone wants to take a second dose based on actual evidences, they cannot. Citizens of India need to follow rules made by the government and integrated with the app. These confusing guidelines will only push citizens to look for alternative means where they can just get vaccinated without being tracked. Already vaccine scams are being reported across the country, especially of cases in which the details are not being uploaded via the portal. Several doctors have been pitching for bringing back the vaccination interval to 8-12 weeks.

As per the data submitted in Parliament earlier this year, Andhra Pradesh and Telangana have received 31.50 lakh and 42.50 lakh HCCQs, despite no evidence on the efficacy of HCCQ. Likewise, though convalescent plasma therapy had been dropped, many hospitals have suggested it. Plasma donor organizations involving prominent leaders and police were started. A doctor, on condition of anonymity, said, "Drugs give a false sense of security, which makes patient go to hospitals late. It is unfortunate that our guidelines were not being updated in what the world was recognizing. Evidence gets updated across the world, but India does it late. When drugs are proposed, they are done as a small study, later when a large study is done in a scientific manner, they did not yield results. Same is the case with plasma, fabiflu, doxy, azithromycin and other medicines. That's the cycle that went for a lot of drugs. The world has gone with evidence-based medicine".

He said that the Rythu Vedika had been constructed in such a way that it could be used as a multi-purpose function hall by the villagers. Lashing out at some of the Congress and BJP leaders for making intemperate remarks against the Chief Minister, KTR said that KCR had brought unimaginable development to the State. RajanaSircilla, once a drought-prone district, was different today, thanks to the Mid Manair reservoir with 26 tmc of Kaleswaram project. The district had witnessed its water table rising by 6 meters -- a record that was being talked about as a marvel at the national level. KTR challenged the BJP and Congress leaders to show if any of the Congress or BJP-ruled States had given quality 24x7 free power to the agriculture sector, provided Rythu Bandhu assistance, Rythu Bhima facility to farmers, welfare schemes like Kalyana Lakshmi /Shaadi Mubarak or constructed Rythu Vedikas to provide a platform for farmers to come together and decide what was best for them. The TRS government, led by KCR, did not stop a single welfare scheme and purchased 90 lakh tonnes of paddy, despite corona crisis and the State emerged as No.1 State in many sectors. "Those leaders who criticize KCR should give a reply keeping TRS government's achievements in mind. People too should think," he said. KTR said it was the dream of Chief Minister KCR that farmers should assemble at Rythu Vedikas, deliberate on farming, adopt profitable means of agriculture, and focus on crops that would give them good returns. Under KCR's rule, many wonders had happened and RajanaSircilla would soon be like Konaseema, while the State had already become the nation's rice granary overtaking Punjab, he said. As many as 2,600 Rythu Vedikas had been constructed in the State as per the vision of KCR as he wanted to make agriculture a festival. "You understand the significance of Rythu Vedikas and take help of Agriculture Extension Officers appointed by the Agriculture Department for every 5,000 acres extent to guide farmers," he said. Earlier, KTR, who inaugurated Vilas Sagar LI and KDCC Bank, laid the foundation stone for the Kodurupaka junction widening project, promised to develop Mid Manair and Vemulawada temple circuit into a major tourist area. The Karimnagar-Sircilla road would soon be expanded into a four-lane road and a railway line from Karimnagar to Sircilla would come in two years. Ministers V Prashanth Reddy, State Planning Board Vice Chairman B.Vinod Kumar and MP Santosh Kumar, MLA S Ravishankar and others were present.

They were said to be causing trouble to the local tribals. We sent our forces for a combing operation in the forest area," Krishna Rao said. The SP said the Maoists opened fire at the police from a hillock and "refused to surrender despite repeated requests". "In self-defence, our men returned the fire and surged ahead. We then found the bodies of six Maoists in the forest. An AK-47, an SLR, a carbine, three .303 rifles and a tapancha (country pistol) were recovered from the spot," the SP added. Police sources said the combing operations were continuing in the densely forested area. Additional forces were being deployed to the site of the incident. The sources added that a helicopter has been pressed for aerial survey over the encounter

Hence a higher price in private markets is required to offset part of the costs, it said in a statement.

Cops take initiative to lay road for 2 tribal hamlets

PNS ■ PEDDAPALLI

The police went beyond the call of duty and laid a road to a tribal hamlet in Komaram Bheem Asifabad district. The tribal people of these two hamlets which are a Maoist-infested area have to trek either for ration or getting medical assistance. As part of people-friendly policing and community policing, the district police helped tribal people to get a road facility fulfilling their age-old dream.

Chorupalli panchayat is a Maoist-influenced village and Lendiguda and Punaguda hamlets, which fall under its panchayat limits, have no proper road facility. The two villages have a population of 630, but people have to carry the pregnant women on the make-shift stretcher to hospitals. Lendiguda has 100 houses with 600 population, while Punaguda has 8 houses with 30. The Lendiguda people have to walk 4 km to reach Chorupalli, while it was 6 km from Punaguda.

District Additional SP YV Ravindra and Asifabad DSP S Acheswara Rao, who visited these hamlets as part of the "Police Meeekosam" programme, brought the plight of tribals to the notice of Asifabad in-charge SP and Ramagundam police Commissioner V Satyanarayana's notice. After 20 days of efforts, the police with support from local people laid the road. Now, autos and two-wheelers were plying on the kaccha road as steps were taken to prevent mud ponds even during the rainy season.

The tribal people of these two hamlets have no words to express their gratitude for the service rendered by the police personnel. While discharging the lockdown duties as frontline warriors, the police completed a big task within a short time. The local people lauded the initiative of the district police.

Eatela mortgaged people's self-respect in Delhi: Gangula

PNS ■ KARIMNAGAR

Former minister Eatela Rajender has mortgaged the self-respect of Huzurabad people in Delhi, Minister for Civil Supplies Gangula Kamalakar has alleged. Addressing the TRS workers at City Central Convention Hall here on Wednesday, Gangula said the development was not seen in Huzurabad and the roads were in bad shape and Mission Bhagiratha water has still not reached the municipality and it shows how he worked for the welfare of the people despite serving as a two-time minister. The Minister said Eatela has never bothered about the people's welfare though he won from the constituency six times and he concentrated only on exploiting the weaker sections by taking away their lands and protecting his poultry farms. He asked the people to observe what development he would bring for Huzurabad by joining BJP. When all the segments were moving towards growth, the Huzurabad constituency was left as a backward region, he said. Gangula said many leaders joined BJP before Eatela like DK Aruna, Jitender and Sudhakar what they were doing and what Eatela would do. He recalled that KCR wanted to start the Rythu Bandhu scheme which stood as a number one scheme in the whole country, as a Huzurabad-centric.

BJP: Form Huzurabad as PV district

PNS ■ KARIMNAGAR

The PV Narasimha Rao district should be announced taking Huzurabad as headquarters if Chief Minister K Chandrasekhar Rao has real affection towards the former Prime Minister late PV Narasimha Rao, BJP state core committee member Enugala Peddireddy said on Wednesday. Speaking to reporters here on Wednesday, Peddireddy said Huzurabad has all qualities to become a district and it has all resources geographically and other aspects. As the families were spending lakhs of rupees by falling prey to the coronavirus, he said the government should include the corona treatment in the Arogyasri scheme and demanded that the government should stop the exploitation of corporate hospitals which were playing havoc with the lives of the people.

He said the district minister himself was accepting that there was no development in Huzurabad during the Eatela Rajender's regime and Gangula was announcing that KCR and the TRS government was committed to the development of Huzurabad. He said he would welcome it if the TRS government develop Huzurabad.

Ruling out rumours that he met the TRS leadership and was changing loyalties, Peddireddy said it was not true as he was undergoing treatment for corona in the home isolation. He once again clarified that the allegations were baseless and he was ready to work as per the party directives. BJP leader Poreddy Kishan Reddy, Bhaskar Reddy, Satish and others were present.

Mulug leaders vie for party chief post

PNS ■ MULUG

As the ruling TRS Party was trying to strengthen the party in the assembly constituencies where it lost in the previous elections in 2018, many tribal leaders of Mulug, a ST reserved constituency are anticipating the party in-charge position as the incumbent was a non-tribal. Ever since the constituency was reserved for the ST segment, the in-charge position was also entrusted only to ST leaders. But a BC leader Kusuma Jagadishwar, Zilla Parishad chairman was the present in-charge of the party as against the tradition. So, the ST leaders are on the belief that he would be replaced soon to allow the ST candidates.

The TRS candidate was defeated against his Congress

Porika Govind Naik

Ajmeera Seetharam Naik

rival Dhanasri Anasuya@Seethakka in the 2018 elections, though the party came with flying colours across the state and formed the government. Chandulal's son Dr Prahlad held the position of segment in-charge for some time and subsequently he was removed by the TRS high command. Later, ZP Chairman Kusuma Jagadishwar, a BC leader was given a segment in-charge position. Since almost three years passed, the party high command was planning to appoint a ST leader as the party in-charge. Two ST leaders - former MP Mahabubabad Prof Ajmeera Seetharam Naik and teacher-turned politician Porika Govind Naik were eyeing on the much-coveted Mulug TRS segment in-charge post. Since 1978 the Mulug Assembly Constituency was reserved for ST which was only the single segment reserved in the composite Warangal district.

Since the Mulug constituency headed by Jagadeeshwar, the ST leaders are pinning hopes on the Mulug segment in-charge position. Seetharam Naik was denied a ticket to contest for the second time as Mahabubabad MP. Since the 2018 general elections, Seetharam Naik was continuing in TRS and intermittently participating in party affairs.

When it comes to Porika Govind Naik, he was serving the party since the 2004 Assembly elections by taking voluntary retirement as a government teacher. Govind Naik became a two-way loser as he lost his job and did not get any post at the party. Neither has he got an MLA ticket nor the party post. But, he has recognition for the services he had rendered in the 2014 elections for the victory of late Chandulal though he had tried his best to get an MLA ticket. The party had chosen Chandulal as its candidate for Mulug. Some dissident leaders had teamed up as a rebel group against Chandulal. However, CM KCR called and pacified them and during which Govind Naik was given a promise by KCR himself. Govind Naik is now looking for a chance hoping that KCR will fulfil his promise and make him party in-charge of the Mulug constituency.

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Terrorism and radicalisation are the "gravest threats" to peace and security in the world and a collective approach is required to combat the challenges, Defence Minister Rajnath Singh said on Wednesday.

In a virtual address at the ASEAN Defence Ministers' Meeting-Plus (ADMM-Plus), Singh also highlighted India's concerns over maritime security challenges while noting that developments in the South China Sea attracted attention in the region and beyond, an oblique reference to China's aggressive behaviour in the critical waterways.

The defence minister called for ensuring a free, open and inclusive order in the Indo-Pacific based on respect for sovereignty and territorial integrity of nations, peaceful resolution of disputes through dialogue and adherence to international rules and laws.

Delving into the coronavirus crisis, Singh said India is just emerging from a second wave of the infection that pushed the country's medical response to the "limit" and called for a concerted global approach like making available patent-free vaccines, unhindered supply chains and ensuring greater medical capacities to defeat the pandemic.

Referring to the threat of terror networks, Singh called for strong action against those encouraging, supporting and financing terrorism and providing shelter to terrorists, remarks seen as directed at Pakistan.

"Terrorism and radicalisation are the gravest threats to peace and security that the world is facing today," he said.

The defence minister said India, as a member of the Financial Action Task Force (FATF), remained committed to combating financing terrorism.

"India shares global concerns about terrorism and believes that in an era when networking amongst terrorists is reaching alarming proportions, only through collective cooperation can the terror organisations and their networks be fully disrupted, the perpetrators identified and held accountable," he said.

ADMM-Plus is a platform comprising 10-nation ASEAN (Association of Southeast Asian Nations) and its eight dialogue partners -- India, China, Australia, Japan, New Zealand, Republic of Korea, Russia and the United States.

Talking about the Indo-Pacific, Singh said India has strengthened its cooperative engagements in the region based on converging visions and values for the promotion of peace, stability, and prosperity in the region.

"Premised upon the centrality of ASEAN, India supports utilisation of ASEAN-led mechanisms as important platforms for implementation of our shared vision for the Indo-Pacific," the defence minister said.

He said the sea lanes of communication are critical for peace, stability, prosperity and development of the Indo-Pacific region.

"Maritime security challenges are another area of concern to India. The sea lanes of communication are critical for peace, stability, prosperity and development of the Indo-Pacific region," he said.

"In this regard, developments in the South China Sea have attracted attention in the region and beyond. India supports freedom of navigation, overflight, and unimpeded commerce in these international waterways.

"India hopes that the Code of Conduct negotiations will lead to outcomes that are in keeping with international law, including the UNCLOS (United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea) and do not prejudice the legitimate rights and interests of nations that are not a party to these discussions," he said.

China claims sovereignty over all of the South China Sea, a huge source of hydrocarbons. However, several ASEAN member countries, including Vietnam, the Philippines and Brunei, have counterclaims.

On the coronavirus pandemic, Singh said its disruptive effect is still unfolding.

Wild elephant rescued from open well

PNS ■ KOCHI

A wild elephant that had fallen into an open well in a tribal settlement under Neriamangalam forest limit was rescued on Wednesday, forest officials said.

The incident was reported from Pinavoor kudy tribal settlement under Valara forest station this morning, they said.

According to the officials, the 18-year-old female elephant was rescued from the 12-foot well after a three-hour-long operation, they said.

A pathway was created by breaking the side of the well using an earthmover and after coming out of the well, the jumbo went into the forest, the officials said.

Officials said the elephant might have fallen into the well in a private rubber plantation on Tuesday.

She added, "Had the SP been even a bit honest towards these suspended MLAs, it would have not kept them in lurch. The SP knows that if these MLAs join their party, then there will be a rebellion and disunity in SP, whose leaders are eager to cross over to the BSP."

'BSP MLAs joining SP an illusion'

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

A day after reports of some suspended BSP MLAs meeting with SP chief Akhilesh Yadav surfaced, BSP chief Mayawati on Wednesday said it is an illusion.

In a series of tweets, she attacked the Samajwadi Party (SP) accusing it of being an expert in "narrow politics".

"The Samajwadi Party, which is an expert in narrow politics of despicable manipulations, malice and casteism, is publicising through the media that some BSP MLAs are breaking away to join the SP. This is an intense illusion," she tweeted in Hindi.

The Bahujan Samaj Party (BSP) chief said that those MLAs were suspended from the party long back for colluding with the SP and an industrialist during the Rajya Sabha elections for defeating a Dalit candidate.

"BSP has emerged as a party to fulfil the aspirations of the people in Uttar Pradesh and it will continue to do so," she tweeted.

On Tuesday, at least five MLAs suspended by the BSP last year met Yadav, triggering speculation that they may join his party.

Handia legislator Hakimlal Bind said he, along with Chaudhary Aslam Ali, Mujtaba Siddiqui, Hargovind Bhargav, Aslam Raini and Shushma Patel met the SP chief.

the SP government had stopped the welfare works undertaken by the BSP. Bhadohi was not made a new district as Sant Ravidas Nagar, which is extremely condemnable," Mayawati said in another tweet.

She alleged that the "drama" of publicising the meeting of suspended BSP MLAs with Yadav is a new "stunt" by the SP ahead of the upcoming zila panchayat elections.

"BSP has emerged as a party to fulfil the aspirations of the people in Uttar Pradesh and it will continue to do so," she tweeted.

Chirag targets JD(U) for split, rejects Paras' decisions

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Lok Janshakti Party leader Chirag Paswan on Wednesday blamed Janata Dal (United) for engineering the split in his party and rejected the decisions taken by the faction headed by his uncle Pashupati Kumar Paras, saying the party's constitution does not authorise them any such power.

In his first interaction with media after the split in the party, he struck a combative note by describing himself as "sher ka beta" (lion's son) and asserted that he will fight for the cause of the party founded by his father Ram Vilas Paswan.

While blaming the JD(U) for the split, he steered clear of questions regarding the role of the BJP in the development and added that what has happened is also an internal matter for which he will not target others.

It is going to be a long battle, he said, as the group headed by him fights the faction of five other party MPs, led by Paras, to claim ownership of the LJP.

The JD(U), he alleged, had been working to cause a split in the party even when his father was alive.

"A conspiracy was hatched behind my back while I was ill," Paswan claimed.

LS Speaker urged against notification in favour of Paras

NEW DELHI: Lok Janshakti Party leader Chirag Paswan has contested Lok Sabha Speaker Om Birla's decision to name Pashupati Kumar Paras as the leader of the party in the House, saying it is "contrary" to provisions of his organisation. In a letter written on Tuesday, Paswan also informed Birla of the party's decision to expel five MPs, who have joined hands against him, and urged the Speaker to review the earlier decision and issue a new circular naming him as the LJP leader in the Lok Sabha.

Renganar first village to complete first dose vax

PNS ■ RAIPUR

Renganar, a remote village in Chhattisgarh's tribal-dominated Dantewada district, has become the first village in the state where all eligible people have been administered the first dose of COVID-19 vaccine, officials said on Wednesday.

"The village has set an example in the fight against the pandemic. It became possible due to constant efforts of healthcare personnel and awareness teams," a public relations department official here said.

Renganar, located around 420 km away from the state capital, has a population of 310 adults and of them, all 294 eligible persons, in all categories, have been inoculated with the first jab, he said. Unlike in urban areas, 100 per cent vaccination was not easy due to the limited availability of smartphones and internet in remote areas that helps in the registration process. But the enthusiasm of villagers and healthcare workers bore fruit, he said.

Local health workers and awareness teams played an instrumental role in making the villagers aware about the vaccines. They convinced them that vaccine is one of the most effective ways to avoid coronavirus infection, he said.

Initially, several vaccination sessions were organised by the Dantewada district administration in Kuankonda for the villagers of Renganar and others, but due to misconceptions and lack of awareness, only a few people showed interest in getting vaccinated, he said.

Sarpanch (village head) of Renganar, Sanmati Telami said awareness teams went door-to-door in the village like a mission and persuaded people to get vaccinated by explaining its benefits.

Tourists delighted after Taj Mahal reopens after 2 months

PNS ■ AGRA

A 40-year-old woman from Brazil was one of the early tourists to step inside the Taj Mahal premises as the monument reopened on Wednesday after being closed for around two months due to the Covid pandemic.

Melissa Dalla Rosa shared with PTI that it was a "special moment for her to see the Taj Mahal during sunrise and being totally alone at the wonderful place".

The Archaeological Survey of India had announced the reopening of all centrally protected monuments, sites and museums from Wednesday. However, the Agra administration capped the number of visitors at the Taj Mahal to 650 people at a time.

Melissa, who was on a nine-week Yoga tour in India when the lockdown was announced, said, "I came to Agra yesterday from Lucknow only to explore the city as I knew monuments were closed due to the pandemic. But I got information from locals that Taj Mahal will be reopened from Wednesday so I rushed to book my entry ticket."

"I managed to book a ticket by afternoon and today, I came here very early and was the first tourist who stepped inside the premises," said Melissa.

Ayodhya land deal: Priyanka demands probe

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Congress leader Priyanka Gandhi Vadra on Wednesday demanded a Supreme Court supervised investigation into allegations of corruption in a land deal of the Ram temple trust.

In a statement posted on her Facebook page, Priyanka Gandhi said any attempt to find an "opportunity in faith" is an assault on the faith of crores of Indians and a "big sin".

The Shriram Jammabhoomi Teerth Kshetra Trust, she said, was formed by Prime Minister Narendra Modi and has people close to him as trustees.

"It is the responsibility of the prime minister that every penny of the offerings by the devotees in the name of Lord Ram should be used in the collective work related to faith and not in any scam," the Congress general secretary said in her statement in Hindi.

Noting that the trust has been formed on the instructions of the Supreme Court, Priyanka Gandhi said she demands on behalf of the people of the country that "the Supreme Court should get the entire scam investigated under its supervision".

Refuting the allegations of corruption and financial misconduct, trust general secretary Champat Rai on Monday had asserted that the organisation is committed to full transparency.

"We are applying full transparency in the purchase of land," he said, adding that the money is transferred online into the bank accounts of the sellers. The trust is in charge of the construction of the Ram temple.

Countering him, Priyanka Gandhi said that according to reports there is a "scam" in the purchase of land by the Shriram Jammabhoomi Teerth Kshetra Trust.

"On March 18, 2021, two people bought land in Ayodhya for Rs 2 crore. It is worth noting that this land is not for temple construction, but is away from the temple premises," the Congress general secretary in charge of Uttar Pradesh said.

This land of Rs 2 crore was bought after just five minutes by the Trust set up by the prime minister for Rs 18.5 crore, Priyanka Gandhi alleged.

Which means that the price of land increased at the rate of Rs 5.5 lakh per second, she pointed out.

India for rule-based order in Indo-Pacific region

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Flagging India's concerns over security challenges in the maritime sphere, Defence Minister Rajnath Singh on Wednesday called for a rule-based order in the Indo-Pacific and underlined the need for ensuring freedom of navigation, overflight and unimpeded commerce in the international waterways including the South China Sea.

In a virtual address at the ASEAN Defence Ministers' Meeting-Plus (ADMM-Plus), Singh said the developments in the South China Sea have attracted attention in the region and beyond, seen as an oblique reference to China's aggressive behaviour in the critical sea lanes.

The defence minister also said that terrorism and radicalisation are the gravest threats to global peace and security and pitched for collective efforts to fully disrupt the terrorist organisations and their networks.

The ADMM-Plus is a platform comprising 10-nation ASEAN (Association of Southeast Asian Nations) and its eight dialogue partners -- India, China, Australia, Japan, New Zealand, Republic of Korea, Russia and the United States.

prejudice the legitimate rights and interests of nations that are not party to these discussions.

Without naming China or any other country, Singh said new challenges to international peace and security are emerging and they cannot be addressed with outdated systems that were designed to deal with "trials of the past".

"Maritime security challenges are another area of concern to India. The sea lanes of communication are critical for peace, stability, prosperity and development of the Indo-Pacific region," he said.

Jab gap rethink

As confusion abounds, India still lacks a comprehensive outlook on tackling the virus

The latest UK medical study says the Oxford-AstraZeneca vaccine against the Delta variant of COVID-19 is 92 per cent effective against hospitalisation after two doses and suggests that it is "vital to get both doses as soon as they are offered to you, to gain maximum protection against all existing and emerging variants". That has made the Indian Government experts rethink on reducing the gap between the doses that now stands at 12-16 weeks. Should the Government be doing a rethink every time a study surfaces? Each has its own definition of the efficacy of the vaccines and doses. Percentages differ. Criteria also vary. Demographic situations in countries are starkly different. Each study has its own, internal purpose. The UK-based studies are analysing symptomatic infections. India is looking for effectiveness against severe disease. That leads to the question: Where is the real-world data in India? Take the job gap issue, for instance. Independent virologists say there is no real-world data in India to establish the most effective jab gap. The Government on May 13 increased the gap to 12-16 weeks from six-eight weeks, reportedly based on a UK study even though the UK itself reduced the gap from 12 to eight weeks much before data was available on vaccine efficacy. The country merely went by the criterion of greater infectiousness of the variant. Now, there is a rethink in India about the gap. Members of the National Technical Advisory Group on Immunisation say they only recommended a gap of 8-12 weeks because they had no data about efficacy of a gap beyond 12 weeks.

They say the 12-16 weeks idea came from the Government. Dr NK Arora, chairman of the COVID working group on vaccines, has no reply other than that there is no dissent within NTAGI. So, whom to believe? Secondly, Dr Arora quotes two Indian studies from PGI, Chandigarh, and CMC, Vellore, to say that irrespective of dose interval, "both the doses are having similar protection against the Delta variant (B.1.617.2) and Alpha variant (B.1.1.7)". But the Vellore study says: "Our study corroborates these studies that vaccination is protective, although we did not look at the variants responsible for the massive second wave." So, whom to believe? The issue is, India still lacks a comprehensive outlook on tackling the virus. Vaccination, medical care and safety protocols that make up the outlook are seen more in isolation than unison. The basic nature of the vaccine is it will not stop the infection, but only reduce the severity. That means medical facilities for COVID-19 positive patients are as important as vaccination. That also means the Government has to strictly enforce safety protocols. In reality, however, the availability of vaccine is erratic, there is no informed stand on jab gap, new cases continue to be reported and the States are eager to lift the lockdown substantively, if not fully, well aware that people are throwing caution to the wind, prompting fears of a relapse.

The lost cause of ingenuous tribals

The poor forest dwellers are at the mercy of no one, despite being the best caretakers of the forested greens and the environment

GYANESHWAR DAYAL

The recent upsurge in Maoist violence puts the focus back on tribal issues, rarely discussed in the mainstream. Even though the tribal population is nine per cent, they live as invisible Indians. Their presence is felt only when they make headlines for the wrong reasons, for obstructing traffic with their protests, for instance, and thereafter again fade into oblivion.

These are the people who have been on the frontline of India's war of independence and the ones to have suffered the most. The British branded 150-odd tribes as "criminal tribes" by imposing the Criminal Tribes Act, starting in 1871. It took the Nehru Government five years to de-notify these tribes and replace the derogatory law on April 31, 1952. Adivasis now celebrate April 31 as the alternative Independence Day.

Even today, tribals live on the sidelines of the Indian political landscape. They are indeed the marginalised entities in India's political life. The adivasis have lived in forests at peace with nature for ages. But they have been castigated, charged, blamed and demonised, often stripped of their basic human rights, their right to life and property included. They are evicted from their dwelling places in the name of conservation and national interest. To use the conservationist lingo, their habitat is shrinking. It is being usurped legally. Despite some sops here and there, the condition of tribals has not improved even after Independence. They remain on the margins, their life and livelihood constantly under the threat. The neo-colonial mindset has replaced the older one. Conservation is one big plank that is a legit and subtle way to evict tribals from their land.

The Forest Rights Act (FRA), 2006, for the first time recognised the rights of tribal communities to forest resources. Hitherto, Government Acts and policies did not recognise the symbiotic relationship of the forest dwellers with the forests. This, ironically, was always present in their dependence on the forest as well as in their traditional wisdom for the conservation of forests.

The path-breaking law gave three generations of tribals the right to live on their land. But they were asked to prove their ownership, which most of them can't and that is the biggest stick to beat them up with. Though the authorities want them to show papers of the inheritance, they have lived on the land even before paper was invented! Even so, they have been branded a "danger to forest land and wildlife".

The adivasis have managed their environment better than neo-conservationists. People in Gosaba, Sunderbans, are killed by the Bengal Tigers. There is a village in Gosaba named Vidhwapalli, a village of widows whose husbands were killed by tigers. The very same people feed the tigress who takes shelter in the village when she is about to deliver her cubs! Now think about the Delhi ridge or Mumbai's Aarey forest constantly waning each passing year. Nearly 80 per cent of biodiversity in the world is in areas inhabited by tribals. They have conserved the forests pretty well. They take from it what they need, without making permanent damage and giving time and chance to nature to recuperate and grow.

THERE IS A VILLAGE IN GOSABA NAMED VIDHWAPALLI, A VILLAGE OF WIDOWS WHOSE HUSBANDS WERE KILLED BY TIGERS. THE VERY SAME PEOPLE FEED THE TIGRESS WHO TAKES SHELTER IN THE VILLAGE WHEN SHE IS ABOUT TO DELIVER HER CUBS

Their religious practices forbid them to even enter the core areas. The modern conservation programmes would have these forests as open zoos for the inspection of tourists.

While tourists and other outsiders are welcome, the adivasis are not. They are aliens in their own homes. Even if they venture inside, they are beaten up, tortured, even killed by rangers. Their houses are burnt and properties vandalised. Not very long ago, a 13-year-old boy was shot in the Kaziranga for wandering inside the protected area. The park has a shoot-at-sight policy. The Jenu Kuruba, tribals living in the Nilgiri in Karnataka, are frequently shot while collecting mushrooms. Over 50 people have been shot dead by the guards in the last five years. Of course, you haven't heard or read about them. They were seldom reported!

Another aspect of tribal persecution is the Maoist violence in forested areas. It is often reported from Chhattisgarh, Madhya Pradesh, Odisha, Jharkhand, and others. The security forces are up against the armed resistance in the forests. However, not all tribals are supporters or sympathisers of Maoists. Most of them face pressure both from Maoists as well as the security forces. They are routinely rounded up and made to suffer.

It is indeed a problem that refuses to go away. The Government, for its part, has never tried to find the root of the problem and solve it politically. The Maoists draw cadres from the wronged people. Since the exploitation doesn't end, they never run out of cadres. The basis of the problem is indeed economic being addressed with force. Since 2010 when it was at its peak, it has come down. It is now confined to around 30 districts, but there is a long way to go. The gains of security forces are no guarantee that the problem is over. Maoism is a problem born out of the social and economic milieu of the region and lack of development. The Government gives them enough fuel and exploitation that oils this war machinery.

If the current rate of exploitation of nature continues, we may lose the forests and forest dwellers. And, with them, their wisdom to survive without harming nature.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

UNSCRUPULOUS ELEMENTS PREY ON MISERY

Sir — As per reports, a housing society in Mumbai's Kandivali area has complained to the police that it was cheated by some persons who organised a COVID-19 vaccination camp by claiming to represent a private hospital, and the vaccine administered could be spurious. The society, Hiranandani Heritage Residents Welfare Association, has now sought investigation into the matter.

A vaccination camp was arranged by the residential complex on May 30. But later it found that the Co-WIN portal did not have any record of the people who participated and they received certificates in the name of different hospitals, it said. "If the vaccine is found to be spurious, the people who got vaccinated will have a medical emergency to deal with. Therefore, there is an urgent need to investigate the whole episode so that such fraudulent activities are not repeated at other places," the complaint stated.

The HHRWA had organised the camp through a person who claimed to be a sales representative of a private hospital in Andheri. As many as 390 members received the jobs at ₹1,260 per person. They were shocked to receive vaccination certificates in the name of Nanavati Hospital, Lifeline Hospital and NESCO COVID Camp, among others. Nanavati Hospital denied any involvement and said they're themselves a victim of the situation.

There are even doubts whether the residents were actually given Covishield or if it were just glucose or expired/waste vaccine. Meanwhile, the BMC, from this week, has made signing of a Memorandum of Understanding mandatory between private vaccination providers and housing societies if such camps are organised.

Police high-handedness must stop

Within a fortnight of a Supreme Court (SC) Bench of Justices UU Lalit and Vinet Saran quashing a sedition FIR against veteran journalist Vinod Dua in Himachal Pradesh for his criticism of the Narendra Modi Government's handling of COVID-19 and the use of the Pulwama attack and Balakot airstrike to seek votes, the SC Bench upheld citizens' "right to criticise or comment upon the measures undertaken by the Government and its functionaries". Dua's March 30, 2020, statements had neither incited people to violence against the Government nor created disorder, it added.

Or what the Allahabad High Court said when it released Dr Kafeel Khan: "A complete reading of the speech prima facie does not disclose any effort to promote hatred or violence. It also nowhere threatens peace and tranquillity. The address gives a call for national integrity and unity among the citizens." Now, the three orders by the Delhi High Court were delivered by Justices Siddharth Mridul and Anup Jairam Bhambhani, perhaps the first instance of a court calling out alleged misuse of the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act (UAPA) against individuals in cases that do not necessarily fall in the category of "terrorism" cases. The Bench's observation came while granting bail to JNU's Devangana Kalita and Natasha Narwal, along with JMU student Asif Iqbal Tanha, and gave the Delhi Police a dressing down for "casually" invoking provisions of anti-terror laws.

This is not only a slap to the Delhi Police, which is run by Amit Shah's Home Ministry, but also to the Delhi Government for giving prosecution sanction against the students. Actually, the High Court has rightly reminded us of the basic tenet. The police, who often slap outrageous charges on protestors, should heed it.

THE MISSING SPIRIT OF RAJA FESTIVAL

Sir — Raja, the famous festival of Odisha, was badly hit by the COVID-19 second wave. Due to the rising cases, the Government imposed lockdown in most of the state. During this festival in the pre-pandemic times, people used to wear new clothes, moved around having fun, enjoyed savouries and involved themselves in "Raja Mauja" for various games and activities.

But this year, the evergreen and colourful Raja witnessed no colours due to the second wave of the pandemic. People, being in a state of fear and negative mindset, were adverse to letting their hair down. Maybe the State Government should start a show that will add some colour and flavour to the life of the Odia people.

Blood money

The closed case of the Italian marines is mired not only in legality but in morality, too

More than nine years after they shot dead two fishermen off the Kerala coast, the Supreme Court has quashed the criminal charges against Massimiliano Latorre and Salvatore Girone, the two Italian marines on board the Enrica Lexie and accepted the compensation of ₹10 crore deposited by the Government of Italy. The Division Bench directed the Governments of Italy, India and Kerala to coordinate in respect to disbursement of the compensation, which is to be deposited with the Supreme Court Registry. With this, all legal proceedings initiated against the marines stand cancelled. Doramma, the widow of Valentine, and the sisters of younger victim Ajeesh Pink are to get ₹4 crore each. The owner of the damaged boat, St Antony, would get ₹2 crore. This is over and above the ex gratia amount of ₹1 crore each paid to the parties. The long-drawn case has already vanished from the public mind, especially after the legal heirs of the deceased fishermen withdrew their affidavits and submissions to the Kerala High Court in April 2012. The fate of the case was sealed then and there, according to a Kochi-based marine law expert.

The incident dates back to 2012 when Kerala was ruled by Oommen Chandy and the Union was headed by Manmohan Singh. However, the Catholic Church's role in the issue hasn't been in the public domain. For one, there has been Cardinal George Alencherry, head of the Catholic sect in Kerala, who was quoted in the immediate aftermath of the mariners' arrest as boastfully saying that he would remain in "close contact with the Catholic ministers of Kerala who would help pacify the situation". Meanwhile, the take of Jayapalayan, president of the South Indian Fishermen's Federation, is that the blood money concept is alien to India. Similarly, VM Shyam Kumar, the counsel for the sisters of Ajeesh Pink, asked: "Italy could afford to pay the compensation. Had the ship belonged to a poor country, what would be the consequences?" Those who question the legality of blood money in the Enrica Lexie case should bear in mind that many Indians accused of murder have been saved in West Asia after paying blood money. Last week saw MA Yousuf Ali, a Gulf-based businessman, paying ₹1 crore to save Becks Krishna, a Thrissur youth, from the gallows for killing a Sudanese youth in the UAE. It should be two-way traffic, isn't it?

ITALY'S EXIT WILL HIT CHINA'S PLANS

Europe took a long time to see through Chinese strategy of gaining control of strategic assets

GAURIE DWIVEDI

From football teams to strategic infrastructures like ports and airports, China's influence in Europe has grown exponentially in under two decades. Chinese companies own four airports including Frankfurt-Hahn Airport in Germany, six ports and a dozen European soccer clubs. By the time Europe started screening Chinese investments in 2019, Beijing's clout had risen manifold. And Italy's endorsement of Xi Jinping's flagship project Belt and Road Initiative gave it the legitimacy it needed. A G-7 European country endorsing a global program did more damage to European unity than any other recent event. The statement of Mario Draghi, Italy's Prime Minister, indicating the possibility of Rome undoing its biggest geo-political blunder in decades, could derail a lot of China's European plans, which were stitched on the back of its seemingly large wallet.

To deepen its access inside Europe, Beijing had focused on Greece and Italy both of whom were struggling with high debt levels. Heavily-indebted Athens felt it would be better off encashing Chinese cheques than following EU's prescription to cut costs any more. Greece also upgraded its relationship with China a year after the Chinese had gained control of the Greek port of Piraeus. Under Chinese ownership, Piraeus emerged as the second-biggest container port in the Mediterranean and Europe's biggest passenger port. Piraeus' elevation sparked major fears of loss of trade in Rome, causing it to embrace China and the BRI. China successfully exploited the several fault lines that existed in Europe; the one between industrialised North and relatively weaker South. Add to this, the desperate fund crunch of stagnant Southern economies like Italy and Greece which made large Chinese cheques even more appealing. Europe took a long time to see through the Chinese strategy of gaining control of strategic assets, building inroads into prominent think tanks and exploiting the continent's vulnerabilities to build political leverage.

Beijing engaged with each of countries on the European continent. First, China identified weaker economies like Greece and Hungary to break the EU's solidarity. Beijing engaged with non-EU countries like Serbia that were in dire need of capital. It continued to build trade ties with large economies like Germany and the UK. But China never lost sight of its geo-political ambition. The EU failed to speak in a single voice after Beijing lost the case regarding its acquisition of the Scarborough Shoal in international tribunal UNCLOS in 2016. Greece, Hungary and Croatia had thwarted EU efforts to name China despite Manila's unequivocal win at the tribunal. Recognising the need to act against China's lop-sided economic model, ahead of the EU-China summit in 2018, 27 of the 28 EU country ambassadors to China signed a report charging the BRI with pushing "the balance of power in favour of subsidized Chinese companies". Nine months later, however, Italy formally joined the BRI.

In a post-pandemic world order, an increasingly isolated China is seeing the world coming together against it. With America's renewed push to forge trans-Atlantic cooperation to take on Beijing, Draghi's decision could prove to be the biggest reset on the continent. An EU veto on Chinese investments and a revisit on the EU-China investment deal can put intense pressure on Beijing. BRI holds the key to China's power, in Europe and elsewhere. Italy's decision could begin the unwinding.

Why it is difficult to make things happen

ANIL SWARUP

Things don't happen easily in the government. And, if they do happen, it is difficult to sustain them. I had been of the view that for anything to happen and sustain in the government it had to be politically acceptable, socially desirable, technologically feasible, financially viable, administratively doable and judicially tenable. This in itself was quite a handful. However, the unexpected agitation against the Farm Bills has compelled me to add another dimension: "Emotionally relatable".

There is a feeling outside the government that not much happens in the government. Not only that, each one of them will have an idea on how to make-things-happen. However, if the six-fore-mentioned aspects are not taken into consideration, the idea will perhaps not travel much distance on the ground. Let us consider each one of them.

No matter how good an idea is, it will get converted into a policy only if the ultimate decision-making authority, a politician or a group of politicians, puts its stamp on it. For example, many would argue that reservation in government jobs is adversely impacting governance. If there is a referendum, perhaps the majority will vote against it. But can we dispense with it now or at any time in the future? Perhaps not, because it will never be politically acceptable. That is why decision making in democracies takes much longer than in countries like China. A lot of time gets spent in consensus building. This is not to say that democracies are worse than autocracies because political acceptability, as an underlying principle of democracy, has its own merits.

Social desirability of an idea is equally important even if it may not appear to be so. It is important in the context of implementation of an idea that may be politically acceptable. A number of schemes announced by the government, hence politically acceptable, fail on the ground because while formulating the scheme, the social context is not taken into consideration. Thus, the infamous Family Planning effort of the government during the dark days of Emergency not only met with failure but led to the fall of the government. This may be an extreme example but many schemes and ideas face enormous problems if they are not socially desirable. Understanding the needs of the stake holders is critical for the success of any scheme.

Technology is changing by the day. Hence, the feasibility of technology becomes an important determinant in the implementation of an idea and sustaining it. Many of those that have not travelled to various parts of the country advocate the use of internet to reach out to children during COVID-19 times for schooling. They are perhaps unaware of the fact that internet has not reached out as yet to a large part of the country. The situation may change over a period of time but as of now, it may not be possible to reach out to all the children through the net.

The most critical part in implementation of an idea is the availability of funds to back such an idea. Till a couple of years ago, number of railway lines were announced by successive Ministers for Railways in their budget speeches (fortunately this has ceased now) without the funds to back them. These railway lines were socially desirable and technologically feasible.

SOCIAL DESIRABILITY OF AN IDEA IS IMPORTANT EVEN IF IT MAY NOT APPEAR TO BE SO. IT IS IMPORTANT IN THE CONTEXT OF IMPLEMENTATION OF AN IDEA THAT MAY BE POLITICALLY ACCEPTABLE. A NUMBER OF SCHEMES ANNOUNCED BY THE GOVERNMENT, HENCE POLITICALLY ACCEPTABLE, FAIL ON THE GROUND BECAUSE WHILE FORMULATING THE SCHEME, THE SOCIAL CONTEXT IS NOT TAKEN INTO CONSIDERATION

The author is a former IAS officer. The views expressed are personal.

They were obviously politically acceptable as well. But they never happened on the ground. Similar apprehensions are raised about the recently announced National Education Policy (NEP). The Policy recommends allocation of six per cent of GDP to Education Sector. This is nothing new. It was recommended long ago by Dr Kothari in his Report as well. But the money never came despite a cess levied by the government to raise resources. In fact, during the period from 2014 to 2018 the budgetary allocation to school education actually came down in real terms. Without requisite money to back ideas, such ideas will not travel a long distance.

Even if we have the requisite money, if the desired human resources are not available, the idea will not work on the ground. One of the reasons of failure in delivery of health care in rural areas is the shortage of doctors. Health care is politically acceptable and socially desirable. There is reasonable amount of money available. But shortage of human resource is a major constraint. School education in the country is another example where there is an acute shortage of human resources. There is an additional problem relating to their management as well. This management of the teachers who are the pivot of school education, has left a lot to be desired. The biggest mafia in school education is the one that provides pre-service training, the B.Ed and D.El.Ed colleges. A large number of them exist only on paper but they can give you a degree. The selection of teachers to government schools is another racket. One former Chief Minister is behind the bars for manipulating selection. What can be expected of teachers who have come through such a process? Human resource management is the key to the success of any programme.

Finally, no matter what the government does, the final arbiter is the judiciary. It can undo all that may have been attempted. The over-indulgent judiciary can make matters worse.

The Farm Bills appear to be fine on all these dimensions mentioned above. Even those who are opposing it on account of political considerations were themselves pushing for such reforms when they were in power. Most of them would privately agree that the Bills would benefit the farmers and will free them from the clutches of "middle-men". However, opposition to the Bills was still so huge. It reflected the inability of the proponents to make this idea "emotionally relatable" to the farming community. The Bills are indeed socially desirable but the government which has otherwise demonstrated to be so skilful in communicating messages, has apparently been unable to do so in the present instance. Hence, the Bills that are so beneficial to the farmers are not perceived as such. There is, therefore, this problem of perception and a large number of farmers are not able to relate emotionally with the Bills.

The listing of these limitations does not mean that things don't happen in the government. The success of Ayushman Bharat, the Coal Block auctions and unprecedented increase in coal production during 2014-16, the successful management of Covid-19 fallout in Mumbai and many districts of the country and the like prove that it can happen. These programmes/schemes/efforts understood these limitations and worked around them. There is indeed a lot to learn from how they made-it-happen for others to make-it-happen.

Iran: giving up on Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action

An immediate end to US sanctions and a quick rollback of Iran's deviations from strict adherence to the treaty's terms might have done the trick Lifting Trump's sanctions, @SecBlinken, is a legal & moral obligation, NOT negotiating leverage. Didn't work for Trump - won't work for you," tweeted Iran's Foreign Minister Mohammad Javad Zarif late last month. But what if US Secretary of State Antony Blinken (and President Joe Biden) have just decided that reviving the 2015 nuclear deal is a lost cause?

There are quite a few people in the Biden administration, and particularly in the State Department, who can count to twenty without even taking their shoes off. So they must have realised that there was going to be an election in Iran next Friday (18 June). Many of them would even have known that this time the

GWYNNE DYER

The author's new book is 'Growing Pains: The Future of Democracy (and Work)'. The views expressed are personal.

Iranian election has been rigged so that the 'hard-liners' are bound to win it.

Joe Biden therefore only had five months to reverse Donald Trump's deliberate wrecking of the 2015 treaty that prevented Iran from working on nuclear weapons. After the June election, the wreckers would be in power in Tehran, and they would sabotage the talks.

So why didn't Blinken's people move faster?

It was the Trump administration that unilaterally pulled out of the JCPOA treaty (Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action) and slapped crippling economic sanctions on Iran in 2018. Since then, Iran has repeatedly said that if the US just cancelled Trump's sanctions and rejoined the treaty, all would be well. Now it's probably too late.

Iran did nothing for more than a year, waiting and hoping that the other signatories (Britain, France, Germany, Russia and China) would find ways to help Iran get around the American sanctions.

The other countries all agreed that Iran was not violating the terms of the treaty in any way, but none of them wanted to get into a showdown with Trump by breaking the US sanctions. So when Trump tightened the sanctions further in May 2019, crushing Iran's remaining oil exports, Tehran began to go beyond the treaty limits - a little bit. It didn't leave the treaty, but it began to enrich its uranium a bit beyond the treaty limit of 3.67% (far below weapons-grade). It allowed inspections to continue, it kept nothing secret, but every three or six months it moved the enrichment up another notch to create some counter-pressure on the other signatories to sort their American problem out.

Finally, Trump lost the 2020 election, Biden replaced him in the White House last January, and it became possible to repair all the damage. However, the new secretary of state, Antony Blinken, then announced that Iran would have to roll back all its post-2019 increments to the enrichment process BEFORE the US lifted its sanctions.

The shoe is clearly on the wrong foot there. It was the United States that showed itself to be untrustworthy by quitting the treaty. The Iranian economy paid the price, starving in the gutter for three years.

The question of who goes first is fundamentally childish if there is trust, but America has forfeited the right to demand that Iran trust it. Biden and Blinken must know that demanding Iran go first dooms the negotiations, and that a rigged election in Iran will shortly close the door on the deal for good. It would break them off, because Iran's Supreme Leader, Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, has arranged for his faithful supporter Ebrahim Raisi to win the election by banning more open-minded candidates from running at all.

Both men are fiercely anti-Western ultra-conservatives, but they wouldn't have got away with rigging the election like this four years ago, when the treaty was new and popular hopes were still high in Iran. The despair created by Trump's renewed sanctions killed those hopes. Biden may be wrong to let the JCPOA treaty die. An immediate end to US sanctions and a quick roll-back of Iran's deviations from strict adherence to the treaty's terms might have been done the trick. Even a new hard-line government in Iran would have found it hard to unpick that sort of done deal.

But it would have been a gamble, and Biden seems to have decided that he couldn't afford to risk his political capital that way. It will be years before we know if this was a fatal mistake (and who it was fatal for).

Cabinet nod to hike in DAP fertiliser subsidy by Rs 700

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Union Cabinet on Wednesday approved a Rs 700 per bag hike in subsidy for DAP fertiliser and the increase will result in an additional cost of Rs 14,775 crore to the exchequer.

The hike is part of the government's effort to ensure that farmers get the key soil nutrient at old rates despite rise in global prices.

After urea, Di-ammonium Phosphate (DAP) fertiliser is the most widely one in the country.

Last month, the Centre decided to increase subsidy on DAP fertiliser by 140 per cent. The decision was taken at a high-level meeting chaired by Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

Briefing the media, Minister of State for Chemicals and Fertilisers Mansukh Mandaviya on Wednesday said the Cabinet has approved increasing the subsidy amount for DAP fertiliser for the benefits of farmers.

"Farmers will continue to get DAP at the old rate of Rs 1,200 per bag," he said. One bag has 50 kilograms of the fertiliser.

According to him, the subsidy for DAP fertiliser has been increased to Rs 1,200 per bag from Rs 500 per bag to provide relief to farmers.

The minister also said the additional subsidy burden on the exchequer will be Rs 14,775 crore. Last year, the actual price of DAP was Rs 1,700 per bag, on which the central government was giving a subsidy of Rs 500. The companies were therefore selling the fertiliser to farmers for Rs 1,200 per bag.

With rise in global prices, the actual price of DAP reached Rs 2,400 per bag. In order to ensure that the farmers get DAP at the old rate of Rs 1,200 per bag, the Centre has decided to increase the subsidy to Rs 1,200 per bag.

Mandaviya said that in the case of urea, the MRP (Maximum Retail Price) is fixed while the subsidy amount keeps changing. On an average, he said the government is providing Rs 900 per bag subsidy on urea.

However, he said the government provides a fixed amount of subsidy on non-urea fertilisers, including DAP.

Sensex, Nifty fall from record highs, investors eye Fed meet

PNS ■ MUMBAI

Benchmark indices Sensex and Nifty retreated from record high levels on Wednesday following intense selling in Reliance and HDFC twins as investors turned cautious ahead of the outcome of the US Federal Reserve's policy meeting. The 30-share BSE index ended 271.07 points or 0.51% lower at 52,501.98.

It had closed at an all-time high of 52,773.05 on Tuesday. The broader NSE Nifty retreated from a record and declined 101.70 points or 0.64 per cent to 15,767.55.

PowerGrid was the top laggard in the Sensex pack, shedding around 2 per cent, followed by IndusInd Bank, Reliance, L&T, UltraTech Cement and Bajaj Finance. On the other hand, Nestle, NTPC, ONGC, Bajaj Finserv Hindustan Unilever and Infosys were among the gainers. Investors kept an eye on the two-day US Federal Reserve meeting, which is set to conclude on Wednesday.

Lack of fresh trigger from overseas markets also weighed on the local stocks as Asian markets closed mixed. Bourses in Shanghai, Hong Kong and Tokyo ended on a negative note, while Seoul settled with gains. Equities in Europe were trading mixed in mid-session deals. International oil benchmark Brent crude was trading 0.14 per cent higher at USD 74.09 per barrel.

Under the partnership, cargo electric three-wheeler Altigreen NEEV is being introduced, the company said in a statement. Altigreen Propulsion Labs CEO Amitabh Saran said there is a growing demand for sustainable last-mile services in Delhi-NCR, owing to environmental concerns and increased operational costs of ICE (internal combustion engine) vehicles. "We believe that Altigreen NEEV provides an ideal, robust, long-term solution that is tailor-made for Indian road conditions. The partnership with MoEving will help both the companies achieve their vision of deploying environment-friendly mobility solutions in the region," he added. MoEving Founder and CEO Vikash Mishra said, "At MoEving, we have deployed multiple Altigreen NEEVs across Bangalore and Delhi-NCR. We look forward to deploy more NEEV EVs across all our cities pan India."

I-T dept notifies cost inflation index

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The income tax department has notified the cost inflation index for current fiscal beginning April 2021 for calculating long-term capital gains arising from sale of immovable property, securities and jewellery.

The cost inflation index (CII) is used by taxpayer to compute gains arising out of sale of capital assets after adjusting inflation.

The Central Board of Direct Taxes (CBDT) on June 15 notified the cost inflation index for the current fiscal (2021-22).

"The Cost Inflation Index for FY 2021-22 relevant to AY 2022-23 & subsequent years is 317," the Central Board of Direct Taxes said while notifying the CII number.

Tax experts said this inflation index of 317 seems reasonable for the computation of capital gains in the case of sale of jewellery and real estate properties.

"Covid pandemic led to the economy's contraction, high revenue deficit, widening fiscal deficit, even then overall inflationary graph never spiked like what it used to be before 2013. All this led to a very nominal increase of 16 points in the cost of inflation index over the last financial year, and the inflationary impact of Covid could not be seen on the same," AMRG & Associates Senior Partner Rajat Mohan said.

This CII number would help taxpayers to compute the long-term capital gains on which they are liable to pay income tax.

Nangia & Co LLP Partner Shailesh Kumar said for calculation of taxable income in nature of 'long term capital gain', original cost of capital asset (including immovable property, shares, securities, jewellery, etc.) is indexed to level of cost inflation in the year of sale as compared to cost inflation index in year of purchase of asset.

Fuel demand rebounds in India

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

India's fuel demand rebounded in the first half of June as easing of coronavirus lockdowns helped sales but the consumption was still lower compared to last year.

While petrol sales rose by 13 per cent during June 1-15 over the same period of last month, diesel consumption was up 12 per cent, according to data compiled by state fuel retailers. Fuel demand had recovered to near-normal levels in March before the onset of the second wave of Covid-19 infections led to the reimposition of lockdowns in different states, stalling mobility and muting economic activity.

Rupee slips 1 paisa to close at 73.32 against US dollar

The rupee on Wednesday fell by 1 paisa to end at 73.32 (provisional) against the US dollar ahead of the outcome of the US Federal Reserve meeting. At the interbank foreign exchange market, the rupee opened at 73.29 per dollar as against its previous close of 73.31. It hovered in the range of 73.26 to 73.38 during the day. The domestic currency has lost 52 paise in the seven trading sessions to Wednesday. Meanwhile, the dollar index, which gauges the greenback's strength against a basket of six currencies, fell 0.04 per cent to 90.50. "The USDINR spot remains in the mid-range ahead of the Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) announcement. If the FOMC pushes back tapering talk, it will dismiss the uptrend in spot. Otherwise any hint over the timing of tapering will continue the dollar rally, pushing the USDINR spot higher towards the crucial resistance of 73.50," said Rahul Gupta, Head Of Research- Currency, Emkay Global Financial Services.

Singapore's population growth slows down to 1.1% in '10-'20 decade

PNS ■ SINGAPORE

Singapore's population grew at its lowest pace in the 2010-2020 decade at 1.1 per cent every year, a slowdown from 2.5 per cent annually in the preceding decade, according to a media report on Wednesday.

The population data was released by the Department of Statistics (DOS) in its first statistical release from the 2010-2020 census, the Channel News Asia reported.

"It tells us where we were, where we're at now, and identifies some of the things that we need to address going forward," said Minister in the Prime Minister's Office Indraneel Rajah, who oversees the National Population and Talent Division.

Though some of the data will be affected as the survey was done amid the COVID-19 pandemic, Rajah said the census captures "broad trends over the decade ... notwithstanding the blips over the last one and a half years".

The total population increased from 5.08 million in 2010 to 5.69 million in 2020. Within this, the citizen population grew from 3.23 million to 3.52 million, while the permanent resident population remained "stable" at around 0.5 million, it added.

The number of non-residents rose from 1.31 million to 1.64 million. Twenty per cent of Singapore residents had no religious affiliation in 2020, a slight increase from the 17 per cent a decade before, according to the census.

Power consumption grows 9.3 per cent

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Power consumption in the country grew by 9.3 per cent in the first half of June to 55.86 billion units (BU), indicating a slow recovery in commercial and industrial electricity demand, according to power ministry data.

Power consumption was recorded at 51.10 BU in the first half of June last year (June 1 to 15), the data showed.

According to experts, the recovery in power consumption and demand was slow in the first half of June despite the low base of last year, which indicates a slow recovery in commercial and industrial demand. In the entire June last year, power consumption slumped by nearly 11 per cent to 105.08 BU from 117.98 BU over the same month in 2019, mainly due to fewer economic activities amid COVID-induced restrictions.

Experts are of the view that the recovery in power demand and consumption in the rest of June is not likely to be robust because of the early onset of Monsoon.

In the first fifteen days of May (from May 1 to 15) this year, power consumption was 55.23 BU despite lockdown restrictions imposed by many states amid the second wave of COVID-19. Thus, a month-on-month comparison indicates that power consumption grew marginally by 1.14 percent in the first half of June.

Peak power demand met or the highest supply in a day witnessed a growth of over 6.6 per cent in the first half of June at 174.09 GW (recorded on June 9), compared to 163.30 GW on June 11 last year.

Peak power demand met in the first half of June 2019 was 182.45 (recorded on June 14). The peak demand in the entire June (2020) slumped to 164.98 GW from 182.45 GW in the same month in 2019.

Experts believe robust recovery in commercial and industrial power consumption as well as demand is likely from July onwards as many states are easing local restrictions amid a decline in number of daily new positive cases of COVID-19.

UK inflation up more than expected amid fluctuations

British consumer prices rose by more than expected last month as fuel and clothing costs surged following the easing of COVID-19 restrictions. Inflation accelerated to 2.1 per cent in the 12 months through May from 1.5 per cent in April, the Office for National Statistics said Wednesday. That was higher than the 1.8 per cent rate economists had forecast. While the inflation rate topped the Bank of England's 2 per cent target for the first time since July 2019, economists said the bank's Monetary Policy Committee was unlikely to raise interest rates any time soon. A strengthening pound and adequate labour supply are likely to keep inflation under control, said Samuel Tombs, chief economist at Pantheon Macroeconomics in London. The inflation will probably peak at around 2.8 per cent later this year before returning to the 2 per cent target by the middle of 2022, he said in a note to clients.

Gold slips by Rs 48; silver up by Rs 340

Gold in the national capital on Wednesday dipped marginally by Rs 48 to Rs 47,814 per 10 gram amid muted global trends, according to HDFC Securities. In the previous trade, the precious metal had closed at Rs 47,862 per 10 gram. In contrast, silver rose by Rs 340 to Rs 70,589 per kg, from Rs 70,249 per kg in the previous trade. In the international market, both gold and silver were trading flat at USD 1,859 per ounce and USD 27.78 per ounce, respectively. HDFC Securities Senior Analyst (Commodities) Tapan Patel said, "Gold prices traded near four-week lows as traders and investors are awaiting outcome from the US FOMC meeting." Motilal Oswal Financial Services Vice-President (Commodities Research) Navneet Damani said, "Gold prices traded steady after a fall witnessed in the yesterday's (Tuesday) session, due to a stronger dollar and an uptick in US yields as investors look forward to the outcome of the US Federal Reserve meeting."

Youngest, oldest lose more jobs: Survey

PNS ■ MUMBAI

When it comes to losing a job permanently, the youngest and the oldest segments in the workforce have reported an increase in setbacks in the second wave of the pandemic, a survey of by a Fortune500 company has said.

The survey, conducted in April this year, covered 2,000 persons in India.

Six per cent of those over 55 years of age reported having permanently lost their job, as against 4 per cent last year.

In those aged under 24, the proportion reporting a permanent job loss has increased to 11 per cent from 10 per cent in the year-ago period, the survey done by financial technology company FIS said.

The Centre for Monitoring Indian Economy in May estimated that over 1 crore Indians have been rendered jobless because of the second wave of the pandemic and the unemployment rate had touched a 12-month high of nearly 12 per cent.

It said that across all the other buckets of age groups, there was a dip in the number of people reporting a permanent loss of employment in 2021 as compared to the year-ago period.

Apart from the permanent job loss, nine per cent of those aged 18-24 said they have faced temporary layoff as against 21 per cent last year, while in the case of those over 55, the incidence came down to seven per cent from last year's 13 per cent.

Meanwhile, the pandemic and its economic impact - the GDP contracted by 7.3 per cent - also seems to be driving up incidents of frauds with one third of those polled saying they experienced a fraud in the last 12 months.

Among the 18-24 year olds, 38 per cent said they witnessed fraud in the last 12 months while the same went up to 41 per cent in the case of those aged between 25 and 29.

"The financial frauds were mostly through phishing, followed by QR code/ UPI scams, but consumers were also victims of card scams and skimming," a company statement said

SBI report: RBI may maintain status quo in August policy

PNS ■ MUMBAI

With retail inflation witnessing significant uptick in May, the RBI is likely to maintain status quo in its August monetary policy review, according to a report.

According to the SBI's research report- Ecowrap, inflation may remain elevated in the coming months due to several global and domestic factors.

"We expect a status-quo in August. We believe RBI would still try to find a marriage of convenience of regulatory and developmental measures and monetary policy in August policy," the research report said on Wednesday. It further noted that "the die has been cast, but the RBI can still hold out with a firm message of ratcheting up inflationary pressures in the August policy statement."

While we have overcome the first wave of the pandemic, the second wave is giving chills to many industries due to lack of business and income. With the help of WEHub, startups have put the pandemic behind them. The Pioneer's K RAMYA SREE talks to women entrepreneurs to understand how they're overcoming the pandemic.

Pandemic: A teacher to several entrepreneurs

The second wave of the pandemic has only added to the already existing woes, with many diversifying their product offerings or pivoting their ideas to stay afloat. "The word entrepreneur is fulfilled only when an entrepreneur learns to face unexpected challenging times. Hence, WEHub is helping start-ups from various sectors by addressing their pandemic-related challenges, and then extensively mapping solutions for them with the prime goal of keeping their business afloat. Amid the lockdown, it is helping start-ups re-strategise and reconnect with the market after the pandemic is over. We've also seen many new budding entrepreneurs remodel their businesses and create successful growth amid the crises. Take for instance, one of our startups: Shree Latha Garments and Ladies Tailors from Nizamabad, Telangana. During the pandemic, Latha Nadukuda started getting orders from local Self-Help Groups (SHGs) to make masks and PPE kits for the local government and private hospitals from parts of Telangana," informs Deepthi Ravula, CEO of WEHub.

With the growing reputation of the products crafted by Shree Latha Garments, more government orders came in, leading to the growth of the business. During the pandemic, all employees worked from home, and had a steady source of income, with some of them earning up to Rs 1.5 lakh per month.

As companies, big, small, and tiny, struggle to find their feet amid the Covid-19 mayhem, WEHub, is going about incubating differently — by helping start-ups fine-tune their business strategies to tap newer opportunities unfolded by the pandemic. "With the steps being taken by the state and central governments to contain the Covid scenario, we are extending our support to women-led enterprises to sustain and scale and be prepared for the post lockdown scenarios," she adds.

Shobana Uthayashankar, CEO and founder of Innogle, sharing with us her lockdown struggles, explains, "Start-ups have particularly been vulnerable, and still continue to face various distressing challenges both, from a business and operations' perspective. When we were about to normalising the first wave loss, the second wave hit us. We identified to overcome a few challenges by inventing technical methodology to overcome the second wave impact in terms of remote customer support and problem-solving. In the meantime, government and other related bodies supported by providing funds/grants for startup sustainability."

How are the founders overcoming the challenges? "I would say, for the time being, scaling down the operation would be a safer option to have business sustainability and it depends on industry specifics and of course, founders are coming up with innovative ideas with different business models to sustain themselves. WEHub supported Innogle to identify and bridge the gap to scale up the business in the areas of Business Internal gap analysis, connecting domain-specific experts and mentors to fulfill the real needs of the startup at the right time. Unlike other accelerators and incubation programs, we have seen evidential support and the guidelines from WEHub and the team members."

Kanika Bansal, founder, and director of Designocare shares, "Our startup is in the R&D prototype phase of the ventilator. All our plans to do fabrication, testing, procuring material like electronics, etc., are heavily impacted as a majority of the industrial areas, suppliers of raw materials, etc., could function due to the lockdown, or were downsizing, material couldn't reach Hyderabad/India, and the huge demand, rise in the R&D cost have all added to our financial burden. Testing of the product in hospitals was not a feasible option as doctors and hospitals are quite full. Our team and their families were affected, hence some of the key team members are unable to work. As our product involves a lot of hardware components, the team cannot work from home completely. Hence, the burn rate was high as the project pace slowed down."

She adds that as an entrepreneur, she was constantly worried about the team and their well-being during Covid. "Unlike corporate companies, we cannot provide health insurance. We were worried about our own family and suffered some personal losses, including losing some close family members and friends to the virus. We dealt with high levels of stress: taking care of the company, family, managing funds so all employees were paid salaries in full and on time, it was hectic. The first wave came as a thunderbolt from the sky, we were not prepared at all. We were learning things on the go, worked on resolving one problem at a time. At the time of the first wave, we were in the designing phase of our ventilator hence, a majority of the activities could be done remotely. But in the second wave, we were more prepared and educated about the various precautions to be taken. Learning lessons from last year, our employees were also well prepared and could resolve issues related to infrastructure and remote working."

SulakshanaMandhadi, the founder of Shu Shu Babies, explains how the second wave of Covid impacted the founder as an entrepreneur. She shares, "Mentally it is draining, and especially when we stepped into the market when Covid was at its peak. On a positive note, it is good that I have learned the hardships at a very early stage. Financial and mental pressure mounted, but we learned to stay calm and believe in our product and mission. Rather than worrying about things that are out of my reach, I looked for solutions. That's why we started to concentrate on E-commerce sales, but the lockdown has brought down those sales because of shipping restrictions. Then we decided to concentrate on the Hyderabad and Telangana markets in particular, where we could deliver goods with no restrictions. We are also focused on Amazon sales as restrictions for shipping are minimal. To overcome financial pressure we are leaning on WEHub to guide us through loans and schemes for MSME businesses. This second wave made me realise that the entrepreneurial journey is not easy, but it is worth fighting for."

"Ever since my association with WEHub, the journey has been a little less bumpy. WEHub supported me in finding a mentor (the most important part of any entrepreneurial journey), guiding me through financial assistance in terms of schemes and loans (taking a little financial burden away from me), and supported me in finding the right digital partner (which is as well one of the keys for branding)," adds she. These tough times definitely did encourage founders to come out of this, stronger and wiser.

Optimistically it might be a good thing to happen as we get to see the downs at a very early stage and learn to survive. One might lose the fight but the experience gained is much more precious than the loss. Hang in there and don't lose hope!

Chrissy Teigen apologises for "past horrible tweets"

In a blog post, US model and television personality Chrissy Teigen reflected on the crushing weight of regret for the things she has said in the past. Teigen published a series of tweets in May apologising to TV personality Courtney Stodden, who accused her of online bullying. Stodden accepted the apology but said it could just be an attempt to limit damage to Teigen's reputation. In her latest blog post, Teigen said she was privately reaching out to people she'd insulted in the past, though she did not say who. "There is simply no excuse for my past horrible tweets," wrote Teigen, who is married to singer John Legend. "I was a troll, full stop. And I am so sorry." "I took to Twitter to try to gain attention and show off what I at the time believed was a crude, clever, harmless quip. I thought it made me cool and relatable if I poked fun at celebrities," she continued. "In reality, I was insecure, immature, and in a world where I thought I needed to impress strangers to be accepted," Teigen added. Teigen currently has 13.5 million Twitter followers and 35 million on Instagram — where she also shared a link to her blog post. She said she was not seeking sympathy, and that she was "no longer the person who wrote those horrible things" after getting married, having kids, and attending therapy. "We are all more than our worst moments," Teigen wrote. "I won't ask for your forgiveness, only your patience, and tolerance." In 2011 Teigen, who was aged 25 at the time, sent Twitter messages to then-16-year-old Stodden, urging them to take their own life. During that period Stodden rose to fame as the teenage bride of actor Doug Hutchison, who was aged 50 when they married.

COVID AND THE NERVOUS SYSTEM

Recent studies have found that Covid could affect your nervous system too. Researchers said that Coronavirus disease can cause severe inflammation in the central nervous system. The study, led by a team of researchers from the University of Freiburg in Germany, showed that a severe inflammatory response can develop in the central nervous system of Covid-19 patients involving different immune cells around the vascular system and in the brain tissue. "Even though there was already evidence of central nervous system involvement in Covid-19, the extent of inflammation in the brain surprised us," said lead author Henrike Salie, Faculty of Medicine at the University's Medical Center. "In particular the many microglial nodules we detected cannot usually be found in the healthy brain," added Marius Schwabenland, Faculty of Medicine, at the varsity. For the study, published in the journal Immunity, the team used a novel measurement method, imaging mass cytometry, and were able to determine different cell types as well as virus-infected cells and their spatial interaction in previously unseen detail. The immune changes are particularly detectable near small brain vessels. In these areas, the viral receptor ACE2 is expressed, onto which the coronavirus can dock, and the virus is also directly detectable there, the researchers said. "It seems plausible that immune cells recognise infected cells and inflammation then spreads to the nerve tissue, causing symptoms. It is possible that early immunomodulatory or immunosuppressive treatment could reduce inflammation," said Professor Bertram Bengsch, Section Head of Translational Systems Immunology in Hepatogastroenterology at varsity.

physical contact. 'One to one interaction' between faculty and student, that helps in creative solutions and research outcome, will also need physical connect, though some part will take place online.

NEP 2020 envisage growth from 26 per cent to 50 per cent in Gross Enrolment Ratio(GER) in higher education. India have around 40,000 "brick-and-mortar" institution imparting undergraduate education. To double GER, a very layman calculation suggests establishing 40000 more undergraduate institutions! One may argue, that we could encourage existing institutions to expand, but would that extend our reach to every remote place across the country!

Land, faculty, finance and other resources to build required infrastructure, is fraught with challenges. India must use digital technologies to completely revolutionise traditional education content and delivery process. Going forward, we have to implement tech driven learning environment. Meaningful, innovative hybrid learning solutions of learning is what students will look forward.

For better learning and research, institutions will surely thrive to explore meaningful blend of digital and physical learning synergy. A well crafted hybrid- solution can reduce the cost of learning substantially and also help to overcome the problem of faculty shortage. Policy makers and institutions will see the merit of reducing, say engineering programme, from four years of physical contact sessions to three years by allowing students to complete the theoretical core courses online thereby reducing cost of imparting education. Many experimentation is already happening. We will experience more creative solution coming up. These solutions will go a long way in bringing into the learning ambit several more deprived students and at a much lower cost.

Covid acted as catalyst. It forced everyone to switch from physical classroom teaching to online teaching overnight. Reluctant students and teachers switched to virtual platform, quickly adopted and started appreciating certain values of online teaching and learning.

Thus, post-Covid will see a hybrid environment of coexistence of physical and virtual platforms, reinforcing one another. Traditional universities will have to transform into new kinds of entities, optimise their existing operations in a search to increased capability to impart quality education and also help achieve NEP target.

Unlock new opportunities

The HR functions look pretty simple on the outside but in actuality it does not end with the recruitment of a candidate. A whole lot of work begins after the recruitment of an employee like on-boarding, resource allocation, resource management, compensation and benefits, performance management, promotions, employee engagement, and motivating strategies. All these tasks look and sound easy but are the opposites when performed at the organisational level and hence SAP HCM is the most widely used software across industries to streamline the HR processes.

A well-crafted solution can reduce the cost of learning substantially and also help to overcome problem of faculty shortage, says Dr Debasis Sanyal.

The education ecosystem has been going through major transformation for quite some time. Virtual education platforms have been making good inroads. It's not only complementing and supplementing classroom teaching, it independently has become an important platform for synchronous and asynchronous learning across wide range of users, from primary to higher education and training. This transformation is primarily due to (a) experimentation in virtual learning space and (b) change in demographic profile.

After 2007-08, Massive Open Online Courses (MOOCs) became popular and many thought MOOCs will replace physical class room learning to a great extent. That did not happen though many of these courses have extremely rich content. The failure of MOOCs courses to maintain connect and excitement with the users over a sustained period have being held as the primary reasons behind the limited success.

Most students, after going through some initial modules, lost interest. Further users were less committed as it was free to those who did not opt for certificate or degree.

HYBRID IS THE WAY FORWARD

experimentations in recent years have made learning using virtual platform more interactive, simple, flexible, easy to comprehend and cost effective. Disregarding age the asynchronous learning modes have become very popular, from primary to higher education and training. As these modes also helps self-learners in problem solving and creative solutions, people are less dependent on formal sessions. Many short term physical training needs have thus reduced.

The new generations, Y and beyond, are much more technology savvy and also very independent in their thinking and behaviour. They demand more flexibility. Virtual learning platforms, specially asynchronous mode fits well to their behavioural framework.

These platforms, supported by AI, ML and other emerging technology helps users to get answer to their queries instantly. It allows users to go back and forth while they are learning, providing both fast and slow learners the much needed flexibility.

Education institutions by and large are involved in three things; transfer of knowledge, peer to peer learning, and teacher-student one to one knowledge transfer.

A significant part of 'transfer of knowledge' aspect will move to digital platform, specially in higher education. In primary and tertiary too synchronise and asynchronous learning will keep becoming more popular as it provides the much needed flexibility. It fits perfectly to the desire of the new generation to learn 'at any time' and 'at one own pace'. Popularity of BYJU, Unacademy are cases in point.

However, peer to peer learning, which significantly contributes towards enhancing soft skills (team spirit, conflict resolution, leadership skills, etc.) will require

Hummels own goal helps Les Blues win opening game against Germany

FRANCE OFF TO WINNING START

AFP ■ MUNICH

French players Lucas Hernandez (21), Adrien Rabiot and Kylian Mbappe (10) celebrate after Germany's Mats Hummels, center, scored an own goal during the Euro 2020 group F match between Germany and France at the Allianz Arena in Munich on Tuesday night

Mats Hummels own goal was enough to hand France a 1-0 victory over Germany on Tuesday as the world champions made a winning start to their Euro 2020 campaign by controlling the game in Munich.

Hummels turned the ball into his own net in the 20th minute, which ultimately decided the contest.

France also saw Kylian Mbappe and Karim Benzema have second-half goals ruled offside, while Adrien Rabiot hit the post for Les Bleus.

"It was a clash that could have been a semi-final or a final, so to take three points was important," said France coach Didier Deschamps.

"We played a big game against a very good German team, but we were up to the level and this victory does us good."

The result leaves France second on goal difference in the early Group F table behind Portugal, after the holders' 3-0 win over Hungary earlier in Budapest.

The home defeat piles the pressure on Germany ahead of their next game against Cristiano Ronaldo's Portugal on Saturday, also at Allianz Arena.

"It was a brutally intense game," said Germany head coach Joachim Löw. "We fought until the end and I can't blame the team, we gave it everything we had. What was missing was a bit of penetrating power in the final third. We didn't do enough there."

He refused to blame Hummels for the own goal, saying: "There is no need to reproach Mats for the own goal. It was difficult for him to clear."

It was a heartbreaking night for Hummels, back to boost the German defence after a two-year exile from international football.

Seven years ago, it was Hummels' headed goal which knocked France out of the 2014 World Cup in the quarter-finals as Germany went on to win the title in Brazil.

Miranchuk reignites Russia's campaign

AP ■ ST PETERSBURG

A special goal by Aleksei Miranchuk allowed Russia to kickstart their Euro 2020 campaign with a 1-0 win over Finland in Saint Petersburg on Wednesday, but the game was marred by an injury to Mario Fernandes.

Miranchuk, of Serie A side Atalanta, produced a glorious finish in first-half stoppage time for the only goal of the game between the neighbours in Group B.

It blows open the section after Russia, one of nine participating nations at the Euro playing matches at home, had lost 3-0 to Belgium in their opening game at the weekend.

Finland, making their debut at a major international tournament, had beaten Denmark 1-0 in Copenhagen on Saturday, a game completely overshadowed by Christian Eriksen's cardiac arrest.

Russia's Aleksei Miranchuk, front, celebrates after scoring his side's opening goal

Here it was Russia's Fernandes, the Brazilian-born CSKA Moscow right-back, who provided an injury scare.

The 30-year-old went up for a high ball in the Finland box in the first half and came down awkwardly, the back of his neck taking the full force of the landing.

He needed to be stabilised and was stretchered off before being taken to hospital.

The Russian team's Twitter feed said he was undergoing tests for a suspected spinal injury.

Russia went on to win the game without Fernandes, as Miranchuk turned on the edge of the box and played a one-two with skipper Artem Dzyuba before sending a glorious left-foot shot into the top corner of the net.

That was enough for the 2018 World Cup quarter-finalists to win the game but it could have been very different.

Finland thought they had gone in front inside three minutes when Joel Pohjanpalo headed in a Jukka Raitala cross.

However Pohjanpalo, who got the winner against Denmark, was this time denied as a VAR check confirmed a marginal offside against the Bayer Leverkusen player.

Russia went on to have the better chances and could have won by a wider margin, with Finland goalkeeper Lukas Hradecky producing a superb fingertip save to deny Daler Kuzyaev in the second half.

Russia's final group game will be in Denmark next Monday, while Finland should again have a sizeable support behind them as they stay in Saint Petersburg to play Belgium.

Arnautovic banned for goal celebration

AFP ■ LAUSANNE

Austria forward Marko Arnautovic has been given a one-game Euro 2020 ban for insulting a North Macedonia player in his side's opening match at the tournament, UEFA said on Wednesday.

UEFA said Arnautovic had been punished for 'insulting another player' and the 32-year-old will miss his side's match against the Netherlands in Amsterdam on Thursday as a result.

European football's governing body had opened an investigation into Arnautovic following the incident in Sunday's 3-1 win over North Macedonia in Bucharest.

The former West Ham United player, who now plays for Shanghai Port in China, netted Austria's third goal in the game

Media reports claimed he insulted Leeds United's Ezgjan Alioski, referring to the North Macedonia defender's Albanian heritage.

Coca-Cola take $4 billion hit after Ronaldo's PC

Budapest: Portuguese superstar Cristiano Ronaldo removed Coca-Cola bottles placed in front of him at a Euro 2020 press conference here, which reportedly cost the global beverage giant a staggering $4 billion.

A well-known fitness enthusiast, Ronaldo set aside two Coca-Cola glass bottles which lay in front of him during a press conference ahead of Portugal's opening Euro match against Hungary here on Monday.

According to media reports, the share price of Coca-Cola, one of the official sponsors of Euro 2020, slipped from $56.10 to $55.22 almost immediately after Ronaldo's gesture.

The market valuation of Coca-Cola went from $242 billion to $238 billion, a fall of $4 billion.

On Tuesday, France mid-fielder Paul Pogba also removed a bottle of Heineken beer that had been placed in front of him at a Press conference. PTI Legendary opener Sunil Gavaskar believes that India will go in with both Ravindra Jadeja and Ravichandran Ashwin against New Zealand in the World Test Championship final as Southampton's 'boiling hot' weather is going to ensure that the pitch dries up progressively and assists spinners.

Gavaskar is part of the match's commentary panel and is currently in Southampton with first-hand knowledge about the pitch and conditions for the match starting June 18.

"In Southampton, it's been boiling hot over the last few days so the pitch will definitely be dry and help spin as the match progresses, so yes both Ashwin and Jadeja will play," Gavaskar said.

Southampton's maximum temperature has been over 25°C for the past few days but there is a forecast of rain from Thursday.

For Gavaskar, it's not just bowling but all-round abilities that give India the kind of balance they need going into a marquee match like this.

"That (Ashwin and Jadeja together) also gives depth to the batting as well as give a fine balance to the bowling attack. For the series later (vs England) much will depend on the weather and pitch conditions."

While New Zealand will be on a high after their series win against England, Gavaskar doesn't feel that the Indian team is under-prepared either just because it didn't get any practice matches.

"(In) today's tours there are barely one or two practice games before the Test series begins and the Indian team has had intra-squad matches so they have had that practice."

"The team is a good blend of youth and experience and most of the players have been to England several times so they know the conditions and what to expect," said the former India captain.

I've reached here because of criticism: Rahane

Ajinkya Rahane doesn't mind a bit of 'criticism' but has never been too overtly bothered by what people think about his game as he goes on with his job of winning Test matches for the Indian team.

Despite his blow-hot-blow-cold form over the last few years, India's Test vice-captain with 1095 runs in 17 games is team's top scorer in the two-year World Test Championship cycle leading to the final against New Zealand.

"It feels special," Rahane said about emerging as the top scorer.

But what about the flak that he has faced because of poor run of scores?

"I'm happy to take criticism. I feel it's because of the criticism I'm here. I always want to give my best whether people criticise me or not.

"For me, it's important to give my best for my country and contribute each and every time be it as a batsman or a fielder," Rahane, who played a massive role as skipper during epic series against Australia, said.

Having played Test cricket for more than eight years, Rahane knows that public opinion is fickle and at best left alone with focus on controllables.

"I don't really think about criticism. If people criticise me, that's their thing, and that's their job. I cannot control all these things. For me, I always focus on controllables, putting my best foot forward, working hard and following my process and the result follows."

Rahane feels that even if he scores 40 and it proves to be useful for the team's cause, he is more than happy.

"I will be playing my natural game. Winning is really important whether I score hundred or not. I don't want to put too much pressure on myself and even if my 30 or 40 is valuable for the team, I am happy."

The Indian vice-captain in 2019 had played for the Hampshire county and has a better idea about the ground where he has also played two Tests in 2014 and 18, both of which the visitors lost.

"I like to be in the present. I know the conditions. It's about being in the moment, adjusting to the conditions. Also me being the highest scorer doesn't matter now. It's past. I just don't want to put extra pressure and would want to play freely," said Rahane, who has three hundreds and six fifties in this inaugural cycle of WTC.

For Rahane, the WTC final is just another game and his mental make-

English Women's dominate Day 1

Indian Women picked up the crucial wicket Tammy Beaumont (66) in the second session but England Women consolidated their position by reaching 162 for two at tea on the opening day of the one-off Test here on Wednesday.

After getting rid of Lauren Winfield-Hill (35) in the first session of the day, India Women toiled hard for most part of the post-lunch period before debutant off-spinner Sneha Rana picked up her maiden Test wicket.

She got rid of in-form of Beaumont, who was brilliantly caught by Shafali Verma at short leg.

Beaumont faced 166 balls and decorated her innings with six fours en route to her second Test fifty.

Skipper Heather Knight (47 not out) batted cautiously and remained unbeaten in the company of Natalie Sciver (11 not out) as England made 76 runs off 28 overs in the second session.

Earlier, the hosts made a solid 86 for one in the opening session.

The Indian pace duo of veteran Jhulan Goswami and Shikha Pandey made a promising start, doing just enough to trouble the English batswoman between second slip and gully to the boundary.

After a slow and cautious start, England picked up the pace. Winfield was the more positive of the two batters as she lofted Pandey over the mid-wicket to hit the first six of the innings and in the process brought up England's fifty in the 17th over.

An over later, Winfield hit another maximum, this time over backward square leg off Vastrakar.

Vastrakar eventually had the last laugh as she had Winfield caught by wicket-keeper Taniya Bhatia, giving India the breakthrough.

As many as five players made Test debut for India, including Verma, Deepti Sharma, Vastrakar, Rana and Bhatia, while for England Sophia Dunkley was the lone player to earn a Test cap.

Indian women team is playing its first Test match in seven years. It last played the traditional format of the game in November 2014 against South Africa in Mysuru.
