New delta plus variant could become a variant of concern

Delta Plus variant, a mutated version of the more aggressive B.1.617.2 strain that drove the second wave of infections in India, is undergoing additional mutation called K417N which could become a 'variant of concern' if unchecked, said AIIMS Chief Dr Randeep Guleria, adding that India needs to learn from the UK where the said variant is causing a surge in cases. Dr Guleria said India could see a faster surge if aggressive Covid-appropriate behaviour is not followed. He also insisted on aggressive surveillance to guard against any spike in the Covid cases following unlocking in parts of the country.

Tamil Nadu lockdown now till June 28

The Tamil Nadu government today announced major relaxations, including the resumption of metro services and inter-district public transport, as it extended the Covid lockdown in the state by a week. State capital Chennai and three surrounding districts - Tiruvallur, Kanchipuram and Chengalpattu - have been provided major relaxations as part of the easing of lockdown amid the receding second Covid wave. The ongoing lockdown in the state has been extended till June 28. The relaxations will not be enforced in Coimbatore and 10 other districts that have been categorised as hotspots, officials said.

All Coronavirus deaths to be certified, or action likely: Centre in Court

All coronavirus deaths regardless of where they take place, should be certified as Covid deaths, the Centre has said in an affidavit in the Supreme Court amid media reports of huge discrepancy in death figures in at least six states. In a 183-page affidavit filed late last night, the Centre also promised action against doctors who fail to comply with this rule. So far, only deaths of coronavirus patients that took place in hospitals were certified as Covid, not the ones that happened at home or even at hospital parking lots, leading to a discrepancy in fatality figures that ran into lakhs.

AP SETS NEW RECORD IN VAX

- Completes 13.59 lakh vax doses in one day
- Crosses 1 crore-mark in first dose

CPRADEEP KUMAR
■ VIJAYAWADA

Andhra Pradesh has created a new record by administering 13,59,300 Covid vaccine doses to people across the state in one single day on Sunday when reports came last at 10 pm. Total inoculations became more than double with Sunday's massive vaccination drive. In the process, the State also crossed the one-crore mark in the administration of the first dose of the vaccine.

A mega Covid vaccination programme was organised by the state government, mothers' of children aged below five years and people above 45 years of age were given the Covid vaccine shot starting from 6 am on Sunday. Earlier on April 14, the government had administered 6,28,961 vaccine doses and that record was surpassed with a new record by administering 13,59,300 doses, according to the state health department.

In the process, the state also Anil Kumar Singhal IAS, Principal Secretary to Health, visited the #COVID Vaccination Centre in Khadi Colony, Tirupati. He inspected the arrangements and interacted with the people taking the jab.

five years, began at 6 am in more than 4,589 vaccination centres in all 13 districts of the state. The two Godavari districts, East and West, topped the list with West Godavari with 1.64 lakh and East Godavari 1.55 lakh inoculations followed by Krishna district, 1.40 lakh peo-

The vaccination programme was carried out as part of a mega vaccination drive in 4,589 centres set up across 13 districts in Andhra Pradesh.

The Medical and Health Department has implemented the directives of the Chief Minister YS Jaganmohan Reddy to set up vaccine centres at the village and ward secretariats and provide the vaccine to the people.

PREVENTING ANOTHER COVID SURGE Scale up health infra, speed up vax: WHO

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The World Health Organization (WHO) on Sunday called upon countries in its south-east Asia region to scale up public health infrastructure, rigorously implement social measures and make efforts to accelerate vaccination to prevent another COVID-19 surge. This week, Maldives and Myanmar confirmed the transmission of coronavirus variants of concern. Earlier, variants of concern have been confirmed in Bangladesh, India, Indonesia, Nepal, Sri Lanka, Thailand and Timor-Leste, the global health body said.

The coronavirus variants of concern along with the opening of economies and societies contributed to the recent surge in cases global-

Retd judge Kanagaraj appointed

- Chief of AP Police Complaints Authority

PNS ■ VIJAYAWADA

The Andhra Pradesh state government appointed retired judge of Madras High Court V Kanagaraj as the chairman of AP state police complaints authority. Kumar Vishwajeet, principal secretary to the government, issued orders to this effect on Sunday.

About a year after Kanagaraj was removed by the Supreme Court as the Andhra Pradesh State Election Commissioner, retired judge of Madras High Court V Kanagaraj was on Sunday appointed as Chairman of the AP State Police Complaints Authority. The YS Jaganmohan Reddy government modified its own rules, framed in October last year, to rehabilitate Justice Kanagaraj in the new post.

According to the Andhra Pradesh State-Level Police Complaints Authority (Administration and Procedure) Rules, 2020, only those below the age of 65 years are eligible for appointment as the Authority Chairman. Justice Kanagaraj is 20 years past that age and hence the government had to relax Rule 4 (a) to enable his appointment. Principal Secretary (Home) Kumar Vishwajeet issued an order on the retired judges' appointment and said three other members of the Authority would be appointed subsequently.

The AP State Police Complaints Authority is mandated to look into complaints against officers of the rank of Additional Superintendent of Police and above. It shall take into cognizance allegations of serious misconduct by the police personnel, which would include incidents involving death, grievous hurt or rape in police custody.

The Police Complaints Authority has been set up in accordance with the judgment of the Supreme Court in a civil writ petition on September 22, 2006.

Insolvency law changing the way society perceives biz failures: Sahoo

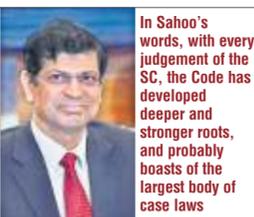

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Fuelled by a huge unsatiated appetite for freedom of exit, the insolvency law is changing the way the society perceives business failures as it becomes a reform by, for and of the stakeholders, according to IBBI Chairperson M S Sahoo.

Little over five years after its enactment, the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code (IBC), which provides a time-bound and market-linked framework for resolution of stressed assets, has passed the constitutional muster. In Sahoo's words, with every judgement of the Supreme Court, the Code has developed deeper and stronger roots, and probably boasts of the largest body of case laws.

In value terms, the Code has rescued 70 per cent of distressed assets through insolvency resolution plans and has released remaining 30 per cent of such assets through liquidations.

Sahoo, who has been at the helm of the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Board of India (IBBI)

In Sahoo's words, with every judgement of the SC, the Code has developed deeper and stronger roots, and probably boasts of the largest body of case laws since its inception in October 2016, said the Code is changing the way the society perceives business failures.

IBBI is a key institution in implementing the Code.

According to the IBBI chief, by rescuing viable businesses through the insolvency process, closing unviable ones through liquidation, and facilitating voluntary liquidations, it is releasing the entrepreneurs from honest business failures.

"Firms, which may fail to withstand market pressures, would need to use the Code for either a re-organisation of business or a clean and dignified exit. 'Failing in succeeding' will soon be the new mantra for budding entrepreneurs in the country. Days are not far ahead when we will celebrate failure," Sahoo told PTI in an e-mail interview.

Since the provisions of the Corporate Insolvency Resolution Process (CIRP) came into force on December 1, 2016, a total of 4,376 CIRPs have commenced till the end of March this year.

Out of the total, 2,653 have been closed, including 348 CIRPs that ended in approval of resolution plans. As many as 617 CIRPs were closed on appeal or review or settled, while 411 were withdrawn and 1,277 ended in orders for liquidation, as per IBBI's latest quarterly newsletter.

Citing the takeaways, Sahoo said that a huge unsatiated appetite for freedom of exit "made the Code a reform by, for, and of the stakeholders, and prohibition on undesirable persons to wrest control of a stressed company ushered in fair debtor-creditor relationship."

Odisha rolls out scheme for kids orphaned by Covid

PNS ■ BHUBANESWAR

With several children having been orphaned since last year, after the COVID-19 pandemic struck, Odisha Chief Minister Naveen Patnaik on Sunday launched a scheme to provide financial aid to all kids who have lost one or both their parents, no matter what the cause.

The beneficiaries of the 'Ashirbad' scheme -- applicable from April, 2020 -- have been divided into three categories -- those who have been orphaned, ones who have to move to welfare homes for want of a caretaker, and children who have lost their earning parent, a statement issued by the chief minister's office said.

Under the scheme, the government will be doling out Rs 2,500 per month for every kid who has been orphaned due to loss of one or both the parents.

The amount will be transferred to the bank accounts of guardians or caretakers of the beneficiaries till they attain the age of 18 years.

If such children have to shift to childcare institutions in the absence of a caretaker, an additional amount of Rs 1,000 will be allotted for them every month.

Similarly, children who have experienced the death of the earning parent will be given Rs 1,500 each. Their mothers, if eligible for the Madhu Babu Pension Scheme, will be provided allowances on a priority basis.

All such kids will be able to avail benefits of Centre and state-run food schemes and free medical services under the BJD dispensation's Biju Swasthya Kalyan Yojana.

Finances under severe strain, can't pay Rs 4L exgratia to Covid victims

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Centre has told the Supreme Court that ex-gratia compensation of Rs 4 lakh cannot be paid to the families of those who have died of COVID-19 as it is beyond fiscal affordability and the finances of central and state governments are under severe strain.

In an affidavit filed before the top court, the Ministry of Home Affairs said the Centre submitted that it has by ways of "Minimum Standard Relief", under section 12 of the Disaster Management Act, 2005, taken several steps providing for substantial and speedy measures by way of increase in health, infrastructure, ensuring food safety to every citizen.

"The prayer of the petitioner for payment of ex-gratia to all deceased persons due to COVID-19 is beyond the fiscal affordability of the state governments."

India records less than 60,000 cases after 81 days

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

India recorded less than 60,000 new coronavirus infections after 81 days taking the total tally of COVID-19 cases to 2,98,81,965, while the active cases further reduced to 7,29,243, according to the Union Health Ministry data updated on Sunday.

A total of 58,419 fresh infections were reported in a day. The death toll climbed to 3,86,713 with 1,576 fresh fatalities, the lowest in 63 days.

Is a friendly match on between AP and TS ?

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Chief Ministers of Telugu States, while seeming to have cordial relations, never lose an opportunity to assert their own state's rights over shared river waters on which contentious projects are coming up.

In this context, the State cabinet's recent criticism of the 'illegal' projects conceived by AP, including the Rayalaseema Lift Irrigation Project and the Rajolbanda Right Canal, as well as TS Chief Minister K Chandrasekhar Rao's comments in this regard on Saturday have raised eyebrows. Having accused AP of 'theft of water', TS has expressed its resolve to construct its own projects, regardless of the ones proposed by AP. Telangana political circles are now of the view that, considering the impending Huzurabad Assembly bye-election, KCR wants to stoke Telangana sentiments for reaping political benefits. However, ruling party leaders of Andhra Pradesh said it was just a 'friendly match' between the two CMs, who have "no differences". For, before issuing the statement on irrigation projects, the Chief Minister's Offices in both the states discussed the issue.

According to YSR Congress leaders in Telangana, former minister and BJP leader DK Aruna has taken up an agitation on the Rajolbanda Diversion Scheme (RDS) against the Andhra Pradesh government. The controversy on RDS is decades old. During the separate Telangana movement, Telangana politicians utilised the RDS controversy as a weapon against Andhra leaders. The allegation with regard to RDS is that Andhra Pradesh is illegally utilising more water and doing injustice to Telangana region.

The TRS government now thinks that the agitation taken up by BJP leader DK Aruna may create problems for TRS, particularly during the upcoming Huzurabad assembly bye-election. According to sources, KCR has decided to bring the situation to neutral, thereby denying any political mileage to BJP on the RDS controversy. So, he wants to create an impression that the TRS government is fighting against the Andhra Pradesh government to protect TS' interests.

This explains why, as a counter to KCR's statement on irrigation projects, the Andhra Pradesh CMO or Andhra Pradesh Irrigation Minister chooses to give 'reply' through the media.

Queenly birthday bash

For film stars and other celebrities as well as those with power and pelf, it is natural to hire event managers and celebrate their birthday in regal style, with tabloids and dailies splashing those dazzling moments the next day. But a young officer in Telangana, treated with utmost respect in official and political circles for her prominence in CMO and proximity to powers that be, saw her birthday being celebrated spontaneously in style: food distribution, free eye checkup campaign, planting of saplings, shower of wishes from prominent people, selfies with saplings, musical rendition by fans, photomontage, collages and whatnot. All this was done on the birthday of IAS Smita Sabarwal. Her followers across the state, from villages to HI-TEC City, celebrated her birthday. A fan page of the bureaucrat gave a call for planting a sapling; of course with a selfie. As part of the Green India Challenge, Smita also planted a sapling. She appreciated everyone who did something good to mark her queenly birthday.

Geographies do not distance mentor-mentee

In bureaucracy too, sound mentor-mentee relationship is beyond geographies. They may miss being colleagues because of a posting, but their relationship puts magic in the work to be done. Yadadri Bhongir got a new Collector last week and a former boss shared his excitement on Twitter. Principal Secretary Arvind Kumar congratulated Pamela Satpathy on being posted as Collector Yadadri-Bhongir and said that it was "well-deserved & recognition of her hard work & dedication". Pamela thanked Arvind for being a mentor all through her journey and even said that she was always indebted for the support. The Municipal Administration Department and specifically Warangal is going to miss her, the senior official pointed out, while saying that they will continue their good work.

Dhoti-clad Collector

In June 2019 the Tamil Nadu government modified its earlier order on dress code to include dhoti as formal dress for men working in state government offices. Even otherwise, on January 6th, dhoti-clad babus are common in Tamil Nadu and Puducherry offices since they celebrate International Dhoti Day. We don't know how many borders dhoti has crossed. Whatever it may be, dhoti did make an entry in TS official circles. On a couple of occasions during scorching summer in May, an IAS officer was seen in dhoti. Clad in the comfortable non-formal wear, the Collector of Rajanna Sircilla carried out inspections in villages. The officer, Krishna Bhaskar, who is IPS-turned-IAS, was seen perfectly duty-conscious in dhoti, inspecting the construction of hospitals, grain purchase centers, and the like. The onset of monsoon has perhaps changed his preferences. These days he is seen in formals.

Masking begins at home

While lifting the lockdown completely, the Telangana government made it a point to put the onus of Covid-appropriate behavior on the public. So, people are still expected to wear masks, maintain appropriate distance, follow hand hygiene, and of course, get vaccinated. Like in the past, there are also people who flout the very rules they are supposed to popularize and help enforce. The latest official to join the band wagon is Siddipet Collector Venkatrami Reddy. A picture of his without mask, while accompanying Minister Harish Rao (who was inspecting arrangements for the inauguration of Integrated Collectorate Complex by the Chief Minister), drew public attention and evoked social media outrage. The picture sends a wrong message, considering that masking, like charity, begins at home. People were given specific instruction to wear mask even at home, after the second wave peaked. With the Huzurabad bye-election on the horizon, and the third wave round the corner, maybe this time they will recommend double-masking at home.

Babu has reasons to feel at home

After an agonizingly long wait, 2006 batch IAS officer Revu Mutyala Raju has been allocated subjects in the CMO. He has been given housing, redressal of applications and grievances of elected representatives. Housing has been a priority area for Chief Minister YS Jaganmohan Reddy, who has targeted construction of at least 23 lakh affordable houses over the next few years. Raju will now have to also deal with MPs and MLAs. This surely comes as a whiff of fresh air for Raju, who otherwise had hardly anything to do for more than one and half months.

Painful last journey of a beloved bureaucrat

Former chief secretary of combined Andhra Pradesh SV Prasad, a towering and beloved bureaucrat who died of Covid recently, merited the glowing tributes that were paid to him. After all, he had won the hearts of everyone with whom he had come in contact. He was loved by everyone, right from a senior bureaucrat to a support staffer in his office. Few turned up for the last journey of the ever-smiling babu, understandably because of the lethality of the second wave of Covid. Only three persons shouldered the responsibilities for Prasad's last rites: Telangana DGP M Mahender Reddy, Telangana Transco CMD D Prabhakar Rao and APTransco executive director A Chandrasekhar Reddy. They proved to be good Samaritans for not just the living, but also the dead.

Yours truly

PNS ■ VIJAYAWADA

Andhra Pradesh has logged 5,646 new Covid cases and 50 deaths during the 24 hour period ending 9 am on Sunday. A total of 1,00,001 samples were tested during the period. Continued from Page 1

The active cases further declined to 7,29,243 comprising 2.44 per cent of the total infections, while the national COVID-19 recovery rate improved to 96.27 per cent, the data updated at 8 am showed. A net decline of 30,776 cases has been recorded in the COVID-19 caseload in a span of 24 hours.

As many as 18,11,446 tests were conducted on Saturday taking the total cumulative tests conducted so far for detection of COVID-19 in the country to 39,10,19,083. The daily positivity rate was recorded at 3.22 per cent. It has been less than 5 per cent for 13 consecutive days, the ministry said, adding the weekly positivity rate has declined to 3.43 per cent. Recoveries continue to outnumber daily new cases for the 38th consecutive day. The number of people who have recuperated from the disease surged to 2,87,66,009, while the case fatality rate stands at 1.29 per cent, the data stated. Cumulatively, 27,66,93,572 COVID-19 vaccine doses have been administered so far. India's COVID-19 tally had crossed the 20-lakh mark on August 7, 30 lakh on August 23, 40 lakh on September 5 and 50 lakh on September 16. It went past 60 lakh on September 28, 70 lakh on October 11, crossed 80 lakh on October 29, 90 lakh on November 20 and surpassed the one-crore mark on December 19.

Meanwhile, Telangana political circles feel that the sudden change in the style of functioning of KCR is mainly due to the impending Huzurabad Assembly bye-election.

Given the outcomes of Dubbaka and Nagarjuna Sagar Assembly bye-elections, KCR has taken a decision to take measures well in advance to ensure victory in the Huzurabad Assembly bye-election. Moreover, the by-poll has become all the more prestigious to TRS with former minister Eatala Rajendar joining BJP.

KCR's planned surprise visits across the state, statements against Andhra Pradesh government to stoke Telangana sentiments among people are all part of his political strategy, opined a senior political leader of Telangana.

Scale up health infra, speed...

"We need to continuously strengthen our efforts to test, trace and isolate. Physical distancing, hand hygiene and proper wearing of masks need to be stringently implemented. These measures should be in full force and for longer periods in areas reporting more transmissible variants of concerns," said Poonam Khetrapal Singh, the Regional Director of WHO South-East Asia. Even as countries scale up vaccination against COVID-19, they need to implement public health and social measures in a tailored and agile manner, she said. Singh, in a statement, said a risk-based approach is needed for public health and social measures and these measures should be implemented by the lowest administrative level and adjusted to the intensity of transmission and the capacity of health systems. A number of countries are currently at different phases in the evolution of the COVID-19 pandemic and are facing varying epidemiological situations. Though the region is now witnessing an overall decline in cases mainly due to a dip in cases in India, in some other nations are still seeing a spike in cases. "We must not forget that the pandemic is still around and must guard against complacency at any level. We must continue to implement combinations of public health and social measures until globally there is high vaccine coverage among health workers, and high-risk and vulnerable groups," Singh said in the statement.

Insolvency law...

Significant improvements in the score for resolving insolvency made doing business in India easier and emergence of new markets for resolution plans, interim finance and liquidation assets are among others. While pointing out that six amendments and dozens of subordinate legislation have kept the Code relevant with the changing needs and addressed implementation difficulties, Sahoo said that mostly importantly, "the rule of law got institutionalised in an anarchic stressful situation when the claims of all creditors together is inconsistent with the available assets of the company". All said, there are also misses but not many. Apart from the few missing elements such as cross border and group insolvency to complement corporate insolvency, Sahoo said that though the work has begun, an institutional framework for grooming a cadre of valuers is sometime away. "As compared to previous regime which took nearly five years for conclusion, the process under the Code yielding a resolution plan takes on average 400 days. It, however, falls short of intended 180/270 days," he said. He also pointed out that an economic legislation is typically a skeleton structure and "judicial pronouncements provide flesh and blood to it" as well as resolve grey areas. "While conceding the freedom to experiment to the legislature, the apex court proactively settled the jurisprudence, explained several conceptual issues, settled contentious issues, and resolved grey areas, at an unprecedented pace, bringing in clarity as to what is permissible and what is not," he emphasised.

Odisha rolls out scheme for kids...

The state government will also facilitate their education at respective schools. If required, arrangements will be made for admission of such children in Adarsh Vidyalayas and central schools. They will receive assistance for higher education under the state's 'Green Passage' scheme. Keeping their overall well-being in mind, the state has also decided to give approval for pucca houses under various schemes to the guardians and caretakers of these kids. The 'Ashirbad' scheme, however, will not be applicable for kids who have been adopted by someone, the statement said.

Objection, Hon,ble CJI, Sir: You're 'Muddu Telugu bidida', but...

HC UPADHYAY

True, it is a happy occasion for the people of both Telugu States to see their beloved son of the soil occupying the coveted post of the Chief Justice of India (CJI) and there is every reason for them to rejoice and celebrate it. It is equally a happy occasion for all countrymen to welcome the new CJI. Further, there is nothing wrong in the newly appointed CJI visiting places of pilgrimage or meeting privately his kith and kin as well as friends in close circles. Obviously, up to this stage, nobody could have any objection. But the matter gets really serious when the celebrations in the form of felicitations cross all limits of maintaining 'aloofness' by a Judge. Without any intention to belittle the importance of the incident or showing disrespect to the august post of the CJI or the person concerned Justice N.V.Ramana, it is, however, necessary to remind not only the CJI but all other judges of the country that such a show of public appearance could have been avoided. The 16-point 'Restatement of Values of Judicial Life', first adopted by the Supreme Court on May 7th 1997 and later made applicable to all the judicial officers in the country, clearly lays down that "Every Judge must at all times be conscious that he is under the public gaze and there should be no act or omission by him which is unbecoming of the high office he occupies and the public esteem in which that office is hailed." Further, the said document also states: "A judge should practice a degree of aloofness consistent with the dignity of his office." Among others, there are also restrictions on mingling with the people in general and keeping close association with individual members of the Bar, besides restrictions on joining a Club, refraining from entering into public debate or expression of views in public etc., which form part of the self-drawn 'Lakshman Rekha' for judges. In the course of his about a week's sojourn to the Telugu States, the CJI chose to meet scores of people from different walks of life such as politicians, bureaucrats, practising lawyers and businessmen. Had he kept the concept of 'aloofness' in mind, he could have avoided such a worthless public show of aggrandizement easily. Among the visitors, who knows how many of them have their cases pending before the Supreme Court or other courts? But it is for certain that among the brass of the Telangana police, which included the DGP and 3 Commissioners, one is a subject matter of the Supreme Court-ordered enquiry headed by the former judge of the same Court Justice V.S.Sirpurkar and the Committee is yet to submit its Report to the apex court on the allegations of fake encounters by the concerned Police Commissioner. Such meetings go against the very first point of the Code, which says: "Justice must not merely be done, but it must also be seen to be done... any act of a judge...whether in official or personal capacity, which erodes the credibility of this perception, has to be avoided." Applying this measuring rod, the Hon'ble CJI seems to have, may be inadvertently though, crossed the self-drawn Lakshman Rekha and set a bad precedent of allowing one and all for his felicitations. Still what is worse is the mysterious silence by the leaders of the legal profession and their associations, leave alone the politicians and media moguls, who, at the slightest opportunity, come out openly in support of morals, ethics and values in judiciary. Plea for SC Regional Benches The demand for the establishment of Regional Benches of the Supreme Court at Kolkata, Chennai/Hyderabad and Mumbai has been raised once again by the South Indian Advocates Joint Action Committee. A representation to this effect was submitted to the Chief Justice of India N.V.Ramana during his recent sojourn to Andhra Pradesh and Telangana by the Convener of the Joint Action Committee S.Nagender. On the face of it, there is nothing exceptional in the demand of lawyers, considering the factors such as distances from different parts of the country to the seat of the Supreme Court of India at New Delhi and litigation costs involved. However, there is a strong opposition to the idea of setting up Regional Benches of the Apex Court by some of the Delhi-based Supreme Court lawyers who think that their monopoly would end if the demand for establishment of Regional Benches is conceded. A compendium of ST laws There is not much literature available on Adivasis, meaning the 'first inhabitants or aborigines' with official name of 'Scheduled Tribes'. Most of them are concentrated in central, eastern and north-eastern regions. These regions are witnessing a variety of ethnic, socio-political conflicts. Scheduled Tribes (STs) are one of the few sections of society in India who do not shy away to rebel against those in power whenever their rights are violated and there is a threat to their culture and self-governance. The book entitled, 'Fifth Schedule to the Constitution', by veteran scholar, practicing lawyer and a former legislator

Dr. Jai Prakash Gupta, provides an insight into the development of ST-related laws in the country. The Fifth Schedule to the Constitution of India, as the author puts, 'is a Constitution within the Constitution.' The said Schedule determines the political and Constitutional arrangements of over 108 districts in 10 states. Published by Satyam Law International, New Delhi, the book would be of immense use particularly to lawyers, lawmakers and researchers. TS-HC snubs State government In a rare expression of anger, the High Court of Telangana rebuked the topmost authorities of the state government, particularly those heading the Home Department, for their crass indifference to the Court's directives. The matter pertained to the filling of some 174 posts of additional Public Prosecutors in Criminal Courts. On previous occasions when the matter came up for hearing before the division Bench comprising the Chief Justice Hima Kohli and Justice B.Vijay Sen Reddy, the government pleader had sought time for conveying the decision of the government for the appointment of additional Public Prosecutors. However, when the matter came up for further hearing on June 16, the government pleader requested for some more time. At this, the enraged Chief Justice angrily asked when the work in Criminal Courts has crippled because of almost 50% vacancies of Public Prosecutors, how the top bureaucrats can take matter so lightly and threatened to initiate proceedings against top bureaucrats under the Contempt of Court Act if they failed to fill the existing vacancies within three weeks. Indeed, it is a sad commentary on the state of affairs prevailing in state of Telangana. Hope, the powers that be would wake up from the slumber at least after this latest dose of caustic warning from the High Court.

Naidu urges DGP to drop false cases against Dalits

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Leader of the Opposition and TDP National President and former Chief Minister N Chandrababu Naidu on Sunday demanded that the Director General of Police (DGP) took action against the erring police officials responsible for the non-stop harassment of the Dalit youth in Kammappalem village in Kodavalur mandal of the Nellore district.

Naidu wrote a letter to the DGP, urging for lifting of the false cases and the rowdy sheet opened against SC youth Karakata Mallikarjun by the Kodavalur police.

The innocent youths from the weaker sections were becoming victims of lawlessness of the ruling YSRCP leaders all over the State, he wrote. Mallikarjun was one such victim who was further victimised by the police by opening a rowdy sheet without valid proof.

The TDP chief said, "On the morning of 16th June 2021, Karakata Mallikarjun, a Dalit from Kammappalem village in Kodavalur mandal in Nellore district was stopped en route to Nellore and was attacked by the YSRCP henchmen.

As the video clipping (enclosed) clearly shows Mallikarjun was stopped by two YSRCP goons and was pulled off his bike. Within no time another two YSRCP goons joined to beat Mallikarjun. When Mallikarjun tried to run away the four YSRCP goons chased and attacked him."

The TDP chief said, "It is appalling to note the manner in which a section of police is joining hands with the ruling YSRCP goons in attacking people in general and Dalits in particular across the State.

It appears that there is scant regard for the fundamental rights guaranteed by the Indian constitution. In this backdrop, it is appealed that immediate action against the real culprits be taken and the false cases filed against Mallikarjun be unilaterally removed.

Simultaneously, an inquiry needs to be carried out against the Kodavalur police that attempted to falsely implicate Mallikarjun."

Day time relaxation a big relief, inter-state buses ply

PNS ■ VIJAYAWADA

The day-long curfew relaxation implemented from Monday is going to give a big relief to all sections of the society including common people across the state. The state government gave curfew relaxation from 6 am to 6 pm due to a decrease in Covid positive cases in the state. The APSRTC buses which were confined to depots due to curfew will resume operations to all 13 districts and also to Telangana State.

The auto-rickshaws, taxis and cabs are going to ply during day time from Monday. The auto-rickshaw drivers who faced a lot of financial hurdles due to the curfew norm to nurture their families are hoping for improvement in their incomes due to daylong plying. Auto rickshaw union members say that willingness of people is a must for transportation purposes and they are hoping restoration of APSRTC bus services and increased daylong business activity would help auto-rickshaw, taxi and cab services.

Further, the adjacent Telangana lifted lockdown in the State and cancelled e-pass norms to vehicles to enter Telangana giving direct entry to AP vehicles without any hurdles and would help Andhra people to go to Hyderabad and other places of Telangana for various purposes including for treatment purposes.

The government offices are going to work as usual and banks are also returning to their normal work schedule. Earlier the government offices, banks, shops and other business establishments were closed by afternoon due to curfew restrictions. According to the police, the argument started over names of some of the family members not being printed on a wedding card. Sarvesh and Shruvan had an argument with their relative Yadagiri four days ago as the names of their parents were not printed on a wedding invitation. The marriage of their relative was performed on June 16 and since then, the issue started. Small traders badly hit due to tax hike: TDP

PNS ■ VIJAYAWADA

Telugu Desam Party commercial wing state leader D Rakesh on Sunday said that the tax hike by the Jagannathan Reddy Government was hitting the small traders all over the State very badly.

Rakesh deplored that the additional taxes at a difficult Covid pandemic time were pushing the small traders into a severe financial crisis. They were not even able to pay the rents for their shops because of the arbitrary and anti-trader policies of the YSRCP regime.

In a statement here, the TDP leader said that over 10 lakh small traders were getting stuck in more severe difficulties because of the anarchic policies of the YSRCP. Municipal Minister Botsa Satyanarayana was saying that the tax would not cross 15 per cent but the reality was proving to be totally different. The newly introduced system of calculating tax based on the property values would cause a 2 to 3 fold rise in the final tax. Moreover, the new system would lead to a yearly rise in the tax.

Rakesh said that Kerala, Tamil Nadu and other States have given concessions and also cancelled house taxes to save their people and small traders as well. In AP, the little assistance announced by the Government reached just a few.

The YSRCP Government should immediately withdraw the tax hike. Also, a special package should be announced to save the small traders from ruin. The TDP would launch a statewide agitation if the Government did not come to the rescue of the traders in this troublesome period.

APCUF plans two-day protest against tax hike from June 29

PNS ■ VIJAYAWADA

Demanding rollback of increased property tax and cancellation of garbage collection tax, the AP Urban Citizens Forum decided to stage protests in front of municipal offices across 13 districts in the state on June 29 and 30.

On Sunday, APCUF convener Ch Babu Rao said that the committee conducted a meeting virtually and decided to intensify protests by staging agitations for two days in front of municipal offices on June 29 and 30 following Corona protocol.

Babu Rao said that Minister for municipal administration

Botsa Satyanarayana claiming imposing of only Rs 186 crore on people through property tax hike but Rs 186 crore was not a meagre amount as it is putting the huge extra financial burden on the public who were already facing severe problems due to the Corona crisis.

He alleged that the minister was trying to deceive people by claiming an increase of property tax to only 15 per cent but it would increase above 100 per cent in the coming years due to a change of property values.

He said that APCUF will conduct a public ballot on the property tax hike and would conduct a one lakh signatures campaign against a tax hike. He demanded Minister Botsa Satyanarayana to conduct a poll on property tax online in view of the Corona crisis and further to invite objections and suggestions on this issue.

Babu Rao said that the people were facing a lot of financial difficulties due to the prevalence of Covid-19 for the past 14 months in AP and were unable to bear the extra financial burden. He and other leaders demanded Chief Minister YS Jaganmohan Reddy to announce a property tax waiver in view of Corona and to roll back hiked property tax and a new tax on garbage collection.

Highlighting the need of clean economic development, BEE has urged state governments to aggressively promote energy efficiency and conservation to achieve comprehensive development by reducing emissions intensity on economy under the Nationally Determined Contributions (NDC) goals of the nation.

As part of this, the BEE held a stakeholders consultation meeting through webinar with all states SDAs including APSECM to discuss on enhancing energy efficiency in key sectors, including industry, MSMEs, buildings, electric appliances and transport etc., which are key to promote energy efficiency in the country.

energy. "The Union government will lay a balanced emphasis on economic development and environment. It is adopting a climate friendly and cleaner path to achieve cleaner economic development," he said. Energy efficiency can play a pivotal role in achieving energy security, contributing to give the opportunity to grow economies, provide jobs, reduce energy demand and lower greenhouse gas emissions, he added.

The BEE estimated that various activities of BEE related to energy efficiency and conservation are going to result in reduction of 557 million tons of CO2 per annum by 2030. It also estimated the energy-saving investment potential of the country to be around Rs 10.02 lakh crore by 2031 under the moderate scenario and Rs 13.20 lakh crore under the ambitious scenario.

"Energy efficiency is one of the most powerful tools to achieve the objective of Chief Minister Y S Jaganmohan Reddy to make the state a destination for cost effective power. Every consumer and industry in the state will benefit from cost effective power. It will promote growth, job creation and full-fill energy needs at a cost effective basis.

Probe into anomalies in housing body

PNS ■ KADAPA

District Collector Harikiran on Sunday directed the Kadapa district police to immediately conduct an inquiry into the alleged irregularities in the Employees' Mutually Aided Co-operative House Building Society and submit a final report.

A letter to this effect was written to the District Co-operative Officer, the District SP and the District Registrar. District AR constable Balaji (1597) said that irregularities had taken place in the Police Housing Society and that flats should be allotted on the basis of seniority.

In 2004, the then SP Sajjanar started a housing society for the welfare of police officers and staff in the district. A total of 1,735 policemen joined the Police Housing Society, which was started by Sajjanar as the Chief Promoter. Subsequently, allegations of irregularities in the Police Housing Society, including the sale of Society premises and flats of its organisers, have cropped up.

Complaints were received that the flats were not being sold to the actual beneficiaries.

Responding to Balaji's complaint, the CM directed the District Collector to conduct a comprehensive inquiry into the matter and submit a report immediately.

Following orders from the CMO, District Collector

Harikiran wrote a letter to the Kadapa District police asking them to immediately submit a final report on the allegations against the Employees Mutually Aided Co-operative House Building Society. The District Police department has been embroiled in controversy following orders from the CMO to launch an inquiry into the House Building Society.

90% cases being probed by JIOs, says Prakasam SP

PNS ■ ONGOLE

District Superintendent of Police Siddharth Kaushal said here on Sunday that the Junior Investigation Officers (JIO) project was launched with the objective of training 482 Head Constables (HCs) and Assistant Sub-Inspectors (ASIs) as investigation experts. The SP has set up a number of specialised training classes to enhance their expertise.

Speaking at a mentoring session here, Kaushal said that before the launch of the JIO project, all cases were being investigated only by the SI and senior officers and hence the registration of cases in the district was low, but after the launch of the project, 90 per cent of the cases were being investigated by the JIOs, while the remaining 10 per cent cases such as SC/ST and special grave cases were being investigated by senior officers.

The SP said the station house officers should take appropriate steps to prevent any illegal activities and corruption among JIOs by giving appropriate instructions to them. Authorities were instructed to take steps to provide JIOs with basic facilities, stationery and technical support as part of the investigation.

The officials were warned that there would be continuous surveillance on the personnel who resort to corruption in the department.

The MLA said that as government efforts alone were not enough to tide over the present crisis being faced by the people due to the spread of Covid-19 cases, social organisations should join in to mitigate the sufferings of the people. Sanitary workers were playing a crucial role in keeping the city clean, which was key to check the spread of any disease, he said and lauded the services of sanitation staff and para medical staff of RUIA Hospital.

Lord rides 'Chinna Sesha Vahanam'

PNS ■ TIRUPATI

Lord Prasanna Venkateswara Swamy, dressed in the celestial attire of Damodar Krishna and mounted atop the golden Chinna Sesha Vahanam with a globe of butter in one hand and his favourite flute in the other hand, had a ride on "Chinna Sesha Vahanam" on the second day of the annual Brahmotsavams at the temple of Appalayunta Prasanna Venkateswara Swamy Temple here on Sunday.

It is believed that Chinna Sesha is the personification of Vasuki, the king of serpents. Later in the evening, the Lord mounted the golden "Hamsa Vahanam" playing the veena. The procession signifies the incarnation of the Lord assuming the form of a divine swan. Legend has it that Lord Maha Vishnu assumed the guise of a swan to restore the entire Vedic records to Lord Brahma, which were in the possession of a demon. The ritual explores themes of nobility and virtue, with the Lord asking humanity to embrace wisdom and shed all vices.

Don't vandalise monuments, Guntur Rural SP tells people

PNS ■ GUNTUR

Guntur Rural SP Vishal Gunni and his family visited Kondaveedu Fort on Sunday morning. He first visited the Children's Park, Yogi Vemana Mandapam, Lakshmi Narasimha Swamy Temple and the famed three ponds of Puttalamma Muthyalamma and Vedulla.

He said due to the lack of proper understanding of heritage, culture and language in our society, many historical monuments, temples, many ancient monuments such as the earthen fort at Putta fort in Kondavidu fort have been destroyed by people. In the West, especially the United States, which does not have even a 400-year history, is taking care of even 150-year-old structures. "Although our cultural traditions have a history of a few thousand years, we have not been able to preserve them. We all have a responsibility to preserve the ancient monuments."

Yoga can help combat Covid third wave, says scholar

VASIREDDY RAVICHANDRA ■ GUNTUR

Yoga originated more than 5,000 years ago. Scholars and sages documented since then have documented its uses to society. The ancient practice is relevant to the present times when Covid-19 pandemic has been playing havoc with the lives of people the world over.

In an exclusive interview with the The Pioneer at Happy Club here on Sunday, Vadde Saraswati Devi, Research Scholar from Annamalai University, said the pandemic has had a negative impact on people ruining them physically, mentally, psychologically, emotionally, socially and financially. It has left many people suffering from mental health issues like loneliness, fear, depression and anxiety.

Saraswati Devi said research had proved that Yoga can help reduce stress level, increase awareness and build immunity apart from improving strong physical and mental health. This has been acknowledged by the World Health Organisation (WHO) and the United Nations (UN).

Regular Yoga practice has shown effective results to build the body strength, immunity, increase energy level, bring down stress and improve positivity and freshness, the Yoga scholar said.

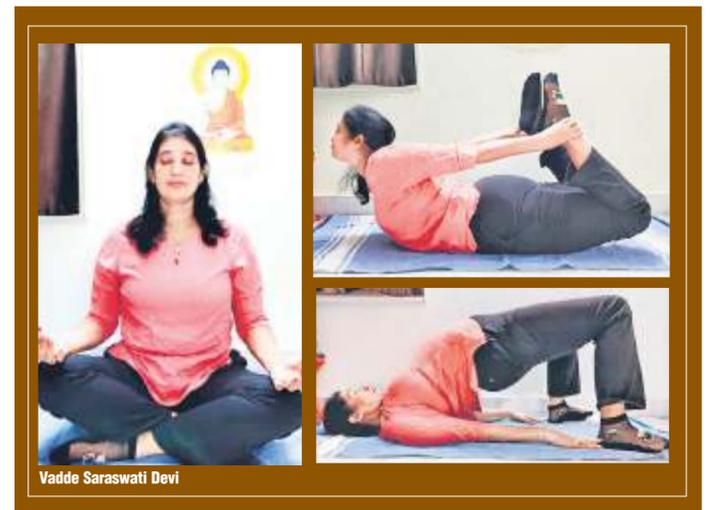

How virus attacks our body

Saraswati Devi further said lack of sleep, poor nutrition and life stress weaken our immune system and develop sickness. Stress mainly affects our body's ability to fight virus. When we stress, the cortisol hormone stays in blood for an extended period of time, the body develops resistance, leading increase in inflammation, she said. New research has shown that when people are sick, they use antibiotics to recover from infections, Saraswati said and added that the medicine fails to help the body develop new immune system. Yoga can rescue people from this. It removes toxins in the body, calms the mind and induces better sleep.

She said some of the Yoga postures that boost our immunity during the pandemic are Sisuasana, Pachhimothasana, Bhujangasana, Dhanurasana and Sethubandhasana.

Pranayama is very useful for lung health while meditation for 20 minutes can result in improvement in health condition and developing immunity, she said and observed "When we are strong, we will be free from viruses. Whether it is first, second or third wave, we can easily fight the virus. So practise Yoga and stay safe."

CENTRE'S INVITE FOR TALKS

Farooq begins deliberations with party leaders

PNS ■ SRINAGAR

National Conference (NC) president Farooq Abdullah on Sunday started the process of consultations with senior leaders of the party over the invitation for talks from the Centre to mainstream political parties of Jammu and Kashmir.

Former chief minister Abdullah met senior leaders of the party, including NC general secretary Ali Mohammad Sagar and provincial president of Kashmir Nasir Aslam Wani, a party leader said.

He said the others who attended meeting were Chowdhary Mohammad Ramzan, Sheikh Mustafa Kamal, Mian Altaf, Mubarak Gul, Sakina Itoo, Khalid Najeb Suhurwardy and two Members of Parliament – Mohammad Akbar Lone and Hasnain Masoodi.

The party leader said Abdullah had called the leaders for consultations over the issue of the invitation for the meeting with Prime Minister Narendra Modi on June 24.

"The consultations are on. After the party president is done talking to party leaders, a meeting of the People's Alliance for Gupkar Declaration (PAGD) will take place where the member parties will discuss the issue and take a collective decision," he said.

Speaking to reporters after the meeting, the NC's Kashmir provincial president Wani said the process of deliberations over the Centre's invite has been started by Abdullah.

"The party president has started the process of consultations with the senior party leaders and these meetings will continue till tomorrow. The consultations with few senior leaders took place today, he (Abdullah) will meet few more in the evening and some tomorrow morning. I think, we will be able to give a clear picture to you by tomorrow," he said.

"The consultations are on. After the party president is done talking to party leaders, a meeting of the People's Alliance for Gupkar Declaration (PAGD) will take place where the member parties will discuss the issue and take a collective decision," he said.

Wani, however, said the NC has not so far called any "structured or organised meeting" to take a decision over the issue.

The party leader also said he does not know if and when the PAGD will meet, but if it does, "the issue may be discussed there".

The PM's meeting with all political parties from Jammu and Kashmir on June 24 is part of the Centre's initiatives to bolster political processes, including holding assembly elections in the Union Territory.

Invitations were sent out to 14 political leaders from Jammu and Kashmir, including four former chief ministers, for participation in a high-level meeting to be chaired by the PM, which is expected to set the road map for holding assembly elections in the UT.

The invited leaders of eight political parties -- the NC, PDP, BJP, Congress, Jammu and Kashmir Apni Party, CPI(M), People's Conference, and the Jammu & Kashmir National Panthers Party -- were telephonically invited by Union Home Secretary Ajay Bhalla for participation in the meeting to be held at the prime minister's residence at 3 pm on Thursday, June 24.

This will be the prime minister's first interaction with all the political parties of Jammu and Kashmir since August 5, 2019 when the Central government abrogated the state's special status and bifurcated it into UTs. The erstwhile state has been under the Centre's rule since June 2018.

Petrol crosses ₹97 in Delhi, diesel nears ₹88 after another price hike

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Petrol price in the national capital crossed Rs 97 a litre and diesel neared Rs 88 after fuel prices were raised yet again. Petrol price was hiked by 29 paise per litre and diesel by 28 paise, according to a price notification of state-owned fuel retailers.

The hike -- 27th in seven weeks -- pushed fuel prices across the country to new historic highs. In Delhi, petrol hit an all-time high of Rs 97.22 a litre, while diesel is now priced at Rs 87.97 per litre.

Fuel prices differ from state to state depending on the incidence of local taxes such as VAT and freight charges.

Senior BJP leaders in UP again to review party's functioning from today

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

The BJP's national general secretary (organisation) BL Santhosh and Uttar Pradesh in-charge Radha Mohan Singh will be here on a two-day visit from Monday to review its programmes, their second this month as the party sets in motion preparations for the crucial assembly polls next year.

During their earlier visit from May 31 to June 2, Singh had shot down speculation of a leadership change in the state and had defended the Yogi Adityanath government's handling of the COVID situation.

An aide of Radha Mohan Singh told PTI that Santhosh and Singh will be on a two-day visit to Lucknow beginning Monday. "During his visit to Lucknow, BL Santhosh will review the various works of the organisation including 'seva hee sangathan', vaccination and other ongoing programmes," a senior UP BJP leader said and added that the working committee (Karya Samiti) of the party is likely to meet by June 30.

Another party leader said that a few days before Deepavali (in November), the party will come into "full election mode" for the 2022 UP Assembly elections.

Besides a few BJP lawmakers expressing resentment openly on the handling of the second COVID wave, the major opposition parties -- the SP, the BSP and the Congress -- are planning to make it a major issue in the state Assembly polls, which are only months away.

The visit by Santhosh to Lucknow comes after the Uttar Pradesh unit of Bharatiya Janata Party appointed its state MLC A K Sharma, a former IAS officer, the party's state vice president.

Sharma, considered a trusted aide of Prime Minister Narendra Modi, was handed over the new assignment amid speculation that he would be inducted into the Yogi Adityanath government in a senior ministerial position ahead of the next year's assembly elections. Sharma's appointment as the vice president of the BJP's state unit negates the chances of his induction in the state Cabinet because of the BJP's larger principle of one-man-one-post, a party leader said.

Archana Mishra from Lucknow and Amit Valmiki from Bulandshahr were appointed as secretaries of the state unit.

The BJP on Saturday also announced the appointment of Pranshudatt Dwivedi from Farrukhabad as the chief of BJP Yuva Morcha, Geeta Shukla of Auraiya as party's Mahila Morcha chief, Kameshwar Singh of Gorakhpur as Kisan Morcha chief. During his previous visit to Lucknow, both the deputy chief ministers Keshav Prasad Maurya and Dinesh Sharma, and the UP's Law Minister Brijesh Pathak had met Santhosh.

On June 1, Santhosh had praised the UP government's handling of COVID-19. In a tweet, he had said, "In five weeks, @myogiadityanath's Uttar Pradesh reduced the new daily case count by 93%... Remember it's a state with 20+ Cr population.

MVA alliance for 5 yrs, not permanent fixture: Congress

PNS ■ MUMBAI

The three-party MVA alliance, comprising the Shiv Sena, NCP and Congress, was formed in Maharashtra for five years and is not a permanent fixture. Every party has the right to strengthen its organisation and the Congress has always given priority to providing relief to COVID-19 affected people by making available blood, oxygen and plasma at various places," Patole said.

His remarks came after Chief Minister and Shiv Sena president Uddhav Thackeray on Saturday said people would "beat with footwear" those who only talk about contesting polls alone without offering solutions to people's problems.

Talking to reporters here, Patole said there was no clarity in Thackeray's speech about who he was referring to.

Even the BJP has spoken of contesting elections independently, Patole said, noting that previously all the four parties - Congress, NCP, BJP and Shiv Sena - had contested local bodies and Assembly polls independently.

"We formed the Maha Vikas Aghadi (MVA-in 2019) for five years to stop the BJP. This is a not a permanent fixture. Every party has the right to strengthen its organisation and the Congress has always given priority to providing relief to COVID-19 affected people by making available blood, oxygen and plasma at various places," Patole said.

The Sena and Congress, adversaries for decades, formed government in Maharashtra along with the NCP after the Uddhav Thackeray-led party fell out with the BJP in 2019.

In a veiled swipe at local Congress leaders, Thackeray on Saturday said people would "beat with footwear" those who only talk about contesting elections alone without offering solutions to people's problems.

All political parties should keep ambitions aside and focus on economy and health, the CM had said.

Patole said Thackeray made the comments on the occasion of the Shiv Sena's 55th foundation day as the party president and not as chief minister.

Meanwhile, Shiv Sena MP Sanjay Raut on Sunday said his party has always fought all battles of self-respect and pride of Maharashtra and the party on its own strength.

"The Shiv Sena's path ahead is clear. Let others come out of their chaos as one leader of another party speaks of going alone, and another leader from the same party says it was not the party line," the Rajya Sabha member told reporters.

Rajbhar in talks with AAP, TMC to form front to counter BJP

PNS ■ BALLIA

President of the Suheldev Bharatiya Samaj Party, Om Prakash Rajbhar, on Sunday said that he is trying to bring TMC chief Mamata Banerjee, AAP leader Arvind Kejriwal and Shiv Sena president Uddhav Thackeray on a common platform, and form an effective front to counter the BJP.

The SBSP had contested the 2017 Uttar Pradesh Assembly elections in alliance with the BJP but later parted ways.

Assembly polls in Uttar Pradesh are slated for early next year.

"Yesterday, I met Aam Aadmi Party leader and Rajya Sabha MP Sanjay Singh, and his approach was positive. He has given in-principle approval to be a part of the Bhagidari Sankalp Morcha.

The final decision about joining the morcha will be taken by Kejriwal. In this regard, there will be a meeting with Kejriwal in Delhi next week," Rajbhar told PTI. When asked whether Kejriwal is ready to join the morcha despite the presence of Asaduddin Owaisi's AIMIM, the SBSP chief said, "The need of the hour is to stop the BJP. If the BJP can join hands with Mehbooba Mufti, then Kejriwal and Owaisi too can come on the same platform to stop the BJP."

Rajbhar said his "effort will be to bring TMC chief Banerjee, and Shiv Sena president Thackeray on a platform, and form an effective front to counter the BJP."

L'dweep moots shifting of HC jurisdiction from Kerala to Karnataka

PNS ■ KOCHI/NEW DELHI

The Lakshadweep administration, which has been facing widespread protests from the islands' people over some of its policies, has mooted a proposal to shift its legal jurisdiction from the Kerala High Court to the Karnataka High Court, officials said.

The proposal was initiated by the administration after several litigations were moved before the Kerala High Court against the decisions taken by the islands' new administrator Praful Khoda Patel.

These decisions included revising standard operating procedures for Covid appropriate behaviour, introduction of the 'goonda act' and demolishing hutments of fishermen for widening of roads. Patel, who is the administrator of Daman and Diu, was given the additional charge of the Union Territory of Lakshadweep in the first week of December last year, when the former administrator Dineshwar Sharma died after a brief illness.

This year, as many as 23 applications, including 11 writ petitions, have been filed against the administrator of Lakshadweep and also against the alleged high-handedness of either the police or the local government of the islands.

However, for reasons best known to the island's administration, which is under the spotlight over its handling of these issues, it has made a proposal for shifting its legal jurisdiction from the high court of Kerala to Karnataka.

Efforts to seek comments from the administrator, A Anbarasu, and Collector of Lakshadweep S Asker Ali did not fructify.

Mails to their official e-mails and WhatsApp messages did not elicit any response to a question asking the rationale behind mooted of the proposal for shifting of legal jurisdiction.

The jurisdiction of a high court can be shifted only through an act of Parliament, according to the law.

Low intensity earthquake hits Delhi

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

A low intensity earthquake of magnitude 2.1 struck the national capital on Sunday.

The quake had its epicentre in Punjabi Bagh area at a depth of 7 km. It struck at 12.02 pm, according to the National Centre for Seismology. No loss of life or damage to property has been reported so far.

The NCS has deployed additional earthquake recording instruments for close monitoring of seismic activity in and around Delhi after the NCR region witnessed a series of tremors from April to August last year.

Based on the analysis of satellite imagery, the signatures of active faults have been observed at various locations like Wazirabad, Timarpur and Kamla Nehru Ridge in Delhi; Jhunjhunu and Alwar district of Rajasthan; Sonapat, Sohna, Gurgaon, Rohtak, Rewari and Nuh districts in Haryana; and Baghat district in Uttar Pradesh.

The National Capital Region of Delhi and its surroundings had experienced minor and small magnitude earthquakes during April to August 2020.

Bengal plans more Covid beds for women amid third wave threat

PNS ■ KOLKATA

The West Bengal government is planning to allot more hospital beds for women as it prepares to deal with the possible third wave of the COVID-19 pandemic, a senior health official said on Sunday.

The state is planning to reverse the gender ratio in the 26,000 COVID beds at state-run and private hospitals, Director of Health Services Ajay Chakraborty told PTI.

"The gender ratio for COVID-19 beds in West Bengal at present is around 60:40 for males. We are planning to reverse this by reducing the number of beds for male patients and increasing those for the females and make it 40:60," he said.

The plan is being formulated to cope up with a possible increase in the demand for beds for children during the third wave, Chakraborty said.

"The new COVID variant (Delta) is affecting all in a family. So, there will be high possibilities of children getting infected as well as their mothers. We have planned to keep them together even in case the mothers are negative or they have recovered," he said.

The government is consulting health experts to chalk out the plan, the official said.

"We have set a September deadline to be battle-ready for the possible third wave," he added.

"The admission rate of children was much less compared to the adults since the outbreak of the pandemic. But, it went up during the second wave and going by the warnings of the doctors and scientists, we presume that it will go up by two-fold in the coming months," Chakraborty said.

In view of this, the state government has decided to reserve at least 5 per cent of the critical care unit beds and another 10 per cent of the high dependency unit (HDU) beds, he said.

Chakraborty said the Health Department is planning to scale up paediatric intensive care unit (PICU) beds to 500 and HDU beds to 1,000.

Six new PICUs are being set up in Jalpaiguri, Cooch Behar, North Dinajpur, Purulia, Rampurhat and Diamond Harbour, he said.

Kerala seeks moratorium on repayment of loans

PNS ■ THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

The Kerala government has approached the Centre to put in place a moratorium on repayment of loans till December 31 in order to provide relief to individuals in the unorganised sector, MSMEs, agriculture and others adversely affected by COVID-19 pandemic and the subsequent lockdown.

Kerala has sought a moratorium of loans without accrual of interest and penal interest during the moratorium period. Kerala Finance Minister K N Balagopal, in a letter to Union Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman, said the impact of the second wave induced lockdown has adversely affected the economic and social well-being of all sectors of the society. "...it is felt that the burden of repayment of the loans taken by individuals, especially those in the unorganised sector, MSMEs and agriculturalists is particularly onerous at this time, and these sections need some relief by way of moratorium on the repayment of loans at least till December 31, 2021," Balagopal said in a letter dated June 16. He said the state government has taken all steps to ameliorate the hardships faced by the people, especially the vulnerable sections. "I request your kind intervention to put in place a moratorium on repayment of loans at least till December 31, 2021 without accrual of interest and penal interest during the moratorium period," he said in the letter. The Finance Minister pointed out that the economy of Kerala has been under considerable stress since 2018 due to successive natural disasters including the massive floods which lashed the state wreaking havoc in most of the districts.

'Covid result of degradation of natural areas, species' loss'

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The COVID-19 pandemic is a result of degradation of natural areas, species' loss and exploitation, UNEP country head Atul Bagai said, underlining that countries, including India, must intensify their efforts to prevent and reverse ecosystem degradation.

He also highlighted that climate change, pollution and loss of biodiversity are three crises facing the entire planet and India, and are interconnected.

India has taken the path of short-term economic interest over decades and this has diminished the ability of ecosystems to provide and support both humans and other life forms, the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) official said while speaking to PTI.

"The COVID-19 pandemic is a result of the degradation of natural areas, species' loss and exploitation. This needs to change. India is already making a concerted effort to reduce carbon dioxide emissions and be part of the global effort to reach net-zero emissions by 2050," he said.

"India must intensify these efforts and participate actively in the UN Decade for Ecosystem Restoration that was launched on the World Environment Day, 2021, to prevent, halt, and reverse the degradation of ecosystems," Bagai said.

Several actions on this front are relevant for India, which include taking policy and legislative action, raising awareness and making smart choices, he said.

"For a better future, India must work towards creating food systems that work with nature, reduce waste, and are adaptive to change and resilient to shocks. This could also take the form of halting purchases of products that are not certified as sustainable or pledging and donating for restoration initiatives," the UNEP official said.

Bagai said that a barrier to restoration is limited awareness of negative effects of ecosystem degradation.

This can be rectified in many ways that include discussions on the value of ecosystems, campaigns that draw attention to climate change, biodiversity loss and pollution, empowering small-scale farmers and women farmers, changing patterns of consumption, challenging social norms and business practices, and capacity building and education, he said.

"We need to inculcate in India a culture that respects nature and cares for it. A healthier respect for nature will give us a healthier country and healthier people," Bagai said.

On the role of the youth on the climate change issue, he said they are part of the larger international youth movements demanding drastic and visible action in the face of global warming and climate justice, biodiversity loss, and development at the cost of the environment.

"My best advice to young people who are concerned about environmental issues is two-fold -- get informed and get involved. There is a wealth of opportunities to make a difference. Often the best place to get started is in your local community. There is much to be done, and we need everyone involved," he added.

In recent years, he said there has been a surge in global attention on marine litter and plastic pollution. "However, scientific knowledge on marine plastic litter and effective countermeasures remains insufficient. Keeping this in mind, the UNEP is implementing two major projects in India that focus on plastic waste management and reduction of marine plastic pollution," Bagai said.

Cracker unit blast: TN asked to conduct carrying capacity study

The National Green Tribunal has directed the Tamil Nadu government to conduct a carrying capacity assessment of an area in the state's Virudhunagar district where a blast at a firecracker factory in February killed 19 workers. The concept of 'carrying capacity' addresses the question of how much natural resources can be drawn from an area without the risk of degrading the environment there. A bench headed by NGT Chairperson Justice Adarsh Kumar Goel ordered the director of Industrial Safety to conduct the study in three months in coordination with the Tamil Nadu Pollution Control Board and the Central Pollution Control Board (CPCB). The report submitted to the Tamil Nadu chief secretary for further action. "There is a need for a study of the carrying capacity of the area to sustain the extent of such activities having regard to the potential for accidental, occupational and environmental hazards. The study may include the number of units to be allowed, size of operation of such units, the quantity of material to be used, siting criteria for the location of the units, arrangement for fire management and health services," the bench said.

Chirag announces yatra across Bihar from father's birth anniversary

LJP leader Chirag Paswan on Sunday announced the launch of "aashirvaad yatra" from July 5, the birth anniversary of his father and party founder Ram Vilas Paswan, from Hajipur in Bihar, as his faction takes the fight with a rival group to the streets. Paswan's announcement came following a meeting of the LJP national executive which endorsed his leadership and hit out at a faction headed by his paternal uncle Pashupati Paras for its work against the party's constitution. He asserted that over 90 per cent of the national executive members were in the meeting. The decision to launch the yatra from Hajipur is significant because Ram Vilas Paswan was elected to Lok Sabha from here a number of times and Paras represents the seat now in the House. Chirag Paswan said Hajipur had been "karmabhoomi" of his father.

Woman goes to old age home as son refuses to look after her

An elderly woman has been forced to stay at an old age home in Maharashtra's Aurangabad district after her son expressed his inability to take care of her because of his financial constraints due to the coronavirus-induced lockdown. Kiran Pardikar, aged around 60, lost her husband many years back and brought up her son by taking up tailoring job. Her son later set up a book stall near a court in Pune to earn a livelihood, but his business came to an halt last year amid the lockdown, Pundaliknagar police station's assistant police inspector Ghanshyam Sonawane told PTI. Due to differences with her daughter-in-law, Pardikar started staying separately since some time and her son arranged a room on rent and food tiffins for her. "The woman approached us recently seeking help to be sent to an old age home after realising her son's financial condition. We got new clothes for her and gave a letter to the 'Matoshri Vriddhashram' here to accommodate her," Sonawane said.

PAPER WITH PASSION

Afghan landmine

All stakeholders are busy formulating plans so as to have the most power once the US exits

Afghanistan is a worsening quagmire of confusion with the immediately involved parties working towards their own individualist goals. The United States is singularly focused on vacating the military bases and moving tones of equipment as a prelude to the withdrawal of its troops before September 11. The Taliban, working to a post-withdrawal plan, are intent only on bringing maximum territory under their control because that alone would give them leverage in the future to either negotiate or grab power. The Afghan Government is caught between a withdrawing ally and an aggressive rival, looking for every scrap of support to be able to wield power after September. There is no dearth of friends for the Afghan Government in the region, but none with the clout to nail a permanent peace agreement with the Taliban. The primary, and only, concern of the world is the prospect of the return of terrorism to Afghan soil once the Americans leave. Even with them around, the US never once felt satisfied that the threat to its national security from terror groups in the country has abated. On the one hand, the Taliban are only waiting to turn the country into an Islamic State and, at worst, what they call a "Caliphate". They are already flashing their religious identity as the Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan, intent on taking the country back into the dark ages with their irrational social codes. On the other, they have convivial relations with terrorist groups active in Afghanistan, including Al-Qaeda, and that makes their peace overtures suspect.

Despite signing the Doha Agreement with the US in 2020, the Taliban never attempted to formally distance itself from the terrorist group. India is at the forefront of nations wanting to ensure that terrorism does not raise its head in Afghanistan once again. It has no formal communication links with the Taliban and the word is that it may be reaching out to sections of the Taliban leadership that consider themselves nationalist and not under the influence of Pakistan. Much of the terrorist leadership is currently holed up in Pakistan; so is the orthodox and aggressive Taliban leadership for that matter. Having invested a lot in Afghanistan — it gave nearly $2 billion in reconstruction aid already — India wants to have a greater say in the country's return to democracy. However, it will have to contend with Pakistan which to date played a subdued role because of the formidable American presence, and now plans a more direct role because of its links with the Taliban and the protection it extends to some terrorist groups. It is to be seen if the signs of a bilateral thaw in the India-Pakistan ties do not face rough weather because of their clashing positions over Afghanistan. An indication will be available at the meeting of the National Security Advisers of India, Pakistan and Afghanistan — virtual or in person — at the Shanghai Cooperation Organisation meeting next week.

We in India have a long and enormous experience of being ruled by Muslim sultans and, of course, coexisting with them for centuries. This led to serious and prolonged oppression in the 50-year reign of Aurangzeb, which ended in 1707. There was a serious emotional parting of ways. In 1887, the then most prominent Islamic leader Sir Sayyid Ahmad Khan of Aligarh fame declared in a public speech that the Hindus and Muslims were separate nations. He repeated his contention the following year. The next eminence to pronounce the same sentiments in the early 20th century was Justice Syed Ameer Ali. Then in 1930, poet Mohammad Iqbal voiced

The third coming

There is an urgent need for our citizens to heed experts and desist from reckless behaviour in public

The third wave of the COVID-19 virus is rapidly stealing upon us, if one were to go by either expert opinion or by the insouciant behaviour of our fellow countrymen in crowded public places. Barely has the nation's nose emerged from the sinking feeling that was the second wave of the Novel Coronavirus and its myriad variants, what with the accompanying horrors of the shortage of medical oxygen, hospital beds and ancillary medical supplies, the scary prediction now comes that the third wave could be far closer to us than we had imagined. Delhi's All India Institute of Medical Sciences director Randeep Guleria has said in no uncertain terms that the third wave is inevitable in the "next six-eight weeks" if people don't adhere to COVID-appropriate behaviour. The virus can make a comeback within two months, much earlier than the trend noticed in India so far, if the unlocking process is not measured. Even though the vaccination drive is going on in full swing, with both the Centre and the State Governments doing their best to make amends for the earlier oversight and the time lost because of it, there is still a disconcertingly huge window during which the virus can stage a dreadful comeback before the effects of the inoculation drive kick in.

So far, India has been able to fully vaccinate only about five per cent of its 950 million eligible population, leaving the other teeming millions vulnerable to infections and deaths. Needless to say, there is an urgent need for aggressive surveillance strategy in the COVID hotspots and even to again order lockdowns in case of significant surge in any particular area. Meanwhile, while the number of cases is still declining in the country, this is the right time to reflect upon past mistakes and take lessons for the future: Remember how the second wave took the complacent nation by surprise and swept the healthcare system off its moorings in many States? The drop in the infection rate in India surely is a positive sign, but that should be no reason for us to slacken our vigil. If there is a sudden jump in the numbers, god forbid, no healthcare system in the world can deal with such a large number of people simultaneously needing intensive care. We need to utilise this time to strengthen our healthcare facilities; each life is worth fighting for.

Brutal tactics to keep the Uyghurs in check

PRAFULL GORADIA

Why can't the Hans of China learn from the example of Indian Hindus towards Muslims and be considerate enough to let the Uyghurs be?

Reports about the treatment of Uyghurs in general and their pregnant women in particular in Xi Jinping's China sound barbaric. If the purpose is family planning, fair enough, but it should be implemented by law and not by force. Cases were reported in this journal from Istanbul which mentioned several women who were up to six-and-a-half months pregnant being forcibly aborted, evidently posing a threat to their lives. True, Muslims are reputed to procreate much more prolifically than other people but that does not mean that the Government should resort to violent means to achieve smaller families.

According to the Hadith (Traditions), Prophet Muhammad once asked a man whether he was married. On being replied in the negative, Muhammad reacted by saying: "Then you are a brother of the Devil." In Islam, even ascetic orders are expected to marry rather than remain single. One of the Prophet's companions, Usman ibn Maz'un, wished to lead a life of celibacy; Muhammad forbade him. Normally such consent is given on condition of the celibate becoming an eunuch. In the same context, the Prophet exhorted his followers to marry women who will love their husbands and be very prolific: "For I wish you to be more numerous than any other people." (Mishkatul Masabih book XIII)

We in India have a long and enormous experience of being ruled by Muslim sultans and, of course, coexisting with them for centuries. This led to serious and prolonged oppression in the 50-year reign of Aurangzeb, which ended in 1707. There was a serious emotional parting of ways. In 1887, the then most prominent Islamic leader Sir Sayyid Ahmad Khan of Aligarh fame declared in a public speech that the Hindus and Muslims were separate nations. He repeated his contention the following year.

The next eminence to pronounce the same sentiments in the early 20th century was Justice Syed Ameer Ali. Then in 1930, poet Mohammad Iqbal voiced that Muslims should have a separate homeland even if inside an Indian confederation. Most Hindu leaders, Gandhiji downwards, ignored these statements and continued to believe that the Congress Party represented all communities. Rightly or incorrectly, because the Congress had members of all communities, the leaders presumed that all of their communities followed the Party. Eventually, Mohammad Ali Jinnah had the Pakistan Resolution passed by the Muslim League at its Lahore session on March 23, 1940. Yet, the Hindus took only limited notice. Nor did the British realise how serious was the Muslim desire for a separate homeland, a New Medina.

On August 16, 1946, Bengal Chief Minister HS Suhrawardy directed a massive pogrom, later called the Great Calcutta Killing; which over three days saw the bloody end of thousands of people. This was Jinnah's way of proving particularly to the British that Hindus and Muslims cannot coexist in the same country. India had to be divided. This is also based on the Islamic theology that Muslims need a Dar-ul-Islam, wherein the law laid down by Sharia is the only land wherein Muslims can flourish and fulfil themselves. Today, India still hosts more Muslims than any country except Indonesia. This is an unusual paradox. If so many Muslims can happily live in India, where was the need for Partition? Yet, the Hindus have accepted this contradiction without a protest. My question is if the Hindus can be so tolerant, why cannot the Hans of China be considerate enough to let the Uyghurs be?

INDIA STILL HAS MORE MUSLIMS THAN ANY OTHER COUNTRY EXCEPT INDONESIA. THIS IS AN UNUSUAL PARADOX. IF SO MANY MUSLIMS CAN HAPPILY LIVE IN INDIA, WHERE WAS THE NEED FOR PARTITION? YET, THE HINDUS HAVE ACCEPTED THIS CONTRADICTION WITHOUT A PROTEST

After all, China has to coexist with many other peoples and countries. There are 57 Islamic countries and they have not yet protested because of what? Possibly sheer fear or business interests. But for how long? Sooner or later, the Islamic fury must explode. In any case, I appeal to the Hans for tolerance in the cause of peace.

In a spirit of freedom and brotherhood, we allowed the Ayodhya litigation to go on for nearly a century, waiting for a court judgment. Then only we have begun to build a temple for lord Ram whom poet Iqbal had described as "Imam-e-Hind". The Muslims of Ayodhya were in favour of building the temple because it would multiply pilgrimage and consequently bring prosperity. The fight was about an edifice which had no minarets, no woovu for washing hands and feet before proceeding to prayers. In fact, it must have been meant as a mazar in Babar's memory after he died.

India has had three Muslim Rashtrapatis, Zakir Hussain, Fakhruddin Ali Ahmed and Abdul Kalam, plus several judges including Supreme Court Chief Justices and election commissioners appointed by, of course, Hindu Governments.

When it comes to elections, all adult citizens have the right to vote. There is no discrimination. In the bargain, Muslims in earlier elections voted en masse for one party and it won. The others were slack in casting their votes. But this was tolerant and no solution was applied to stop this practice. The easy solution was compulsory voting; that would have neutralised the en masse voting. But the Hindu ethos was too liberal for a drastic measure although nearly a dozen countries, led by Belgium and Australia, practise it.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A STEP IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION

Sir — In the first political engagement since the August 5, 2019, move by the Centre to end J&K's special status, Prime Minister Narendra Modi will on June 24 give an audience to the region's mainstream leadership, including those who were incarcerated for opposing the Centre's move. Modi will chair the meeting. All the leaders have been asked to go for a RT-PCR test before attending the meeting.

It will be the second major peace move in J&K after the successful renewed ceasefire agreement in February this year with Pakistan, which has been demanding a roadmap on J&K to expand the engagement with New Delhi. The sudden move by the Centre also comes in the wake of pressure from the international community, especially the United States, to restore democratic and electoral processes in J&K, which remains under the Centre's rule since 2018. It is a step in the right direction but how far this move will succeed remains to be seen.

SEVENTH INTERNATIONAL YOGA DAY

Sir — Yoga means "to add"; to add to the good habits in life, to add to peace and prosperity. In the current scenario, the COVID pandemic has devastated almost everything but one thing remains that has helped life move on smoothly, and that's HOPE.

During the troubled days, yoga can be a step towards positivity, relaxation of mind and physical strength. The United Nations gave its nod to the idea on December 10, 2014, and from June 21, 2015, the entire world started celebrating the International Yoga Day. The theme for 2021 is "Yoga for the wellbeing". India has contributed a lot but the patent of that invention was in the hands of the white-skinned developed nations.

We have contributed zero, decimal and a lot more to the world. Several inventions by Indians were being taken away and credited to foreigners. However, we never criticised such moves because we wanted peace and prosperity, unity in diversity. Yoga is not

Let Telangana schools remain shut

The Centre has advised the States to ease the COVID-19 curbs carefully since we are still living with the virus; it is not fully eradicated. All the States are accordingly easing curbs. In Tamil Nadu, the places of worship have been shut for a long time. Those who believe in God, seek peace and solace by visiting temples. I request the Government to open the temples for the public observing all the norms and COVID protocols.

Meanwhile, the Telangana Government has lifted the lockdown completely. It is shocking that the State has asked the education department to open all categories of educational institutions beginning July 1. Playing with the lives of students in these times of the pandemic is a matter of serious concern.

The first wave was severe. The second was ferocious and claimed many lives. The third wave is said to be round the corner. It is likely going to affect children the most. Our vaccination strategy is slow. Only 30 crore people have so far been inoculated. Another one crore are in the queue. Our wards, who are below 18 years of age, are yet to be included in the inoculation drive. It may take another few months to inoculate them since the vaccine supply is not commensurate to the population of India. Without masks or maintaining social distancing, people are seen moving around.

At this point, the move to reopen educational institutions seems to be worrisome, problematic and unproductive. It amounts to inviting trouble. It is hard to enforce discipline among students to adhere to the standing protocols against COVID. The heavens will not fall if schools are not opened right now, when the third wave is likely to hit the nation with more severity in a few weeks. The Telangana Government should roll back its decision of reopening of educational institutions.

WEAR FACE MASKS TO SAVE LIVES

Sir — As India prepares to battle the third wave of the COVID-19 pandemic, vaccinating as many citizens as possible with both doses is unquestionably the most rational way of countering the virus. However, it is equally important for each one of us to prove our pertinacity by wearing face masks.

A face mask is a crucial protective gear to safeguard ourselves. Scientific evidence goes deep into the containment of the Novel Coronavirus by wearing face masks. When a person expels droplets into the air, they quickly evaporate and shrink to become tiny airborne particles, called "droplet nuclei".

But in a moist atmosphere, between a person's mouth and the mask, it takes nearly a hundred times as long for a droplet to evaporate and shrink into droplet nuclei. This means that nearly any kind of simple cloth mask is great for source control. The mask creates humidity, and prevents the virus-containing droplets from turning into droplet nuclei, allowing the fabric of the mask to block the droplets. Studies suggest that if 80 per cent of people wear masks in public, the COVID-19 transmission can certainly be halted.

PEOPLE NEED TO TAKE INITIATIVE

World leaders keep meeting on climate change issue but there is no genuine commitment to the cause

VK BAHUGUNA

The Covid-19 lockdown last year had one positive fallout - the sky regained its brilliant blue as the perennial haze of pollution lifted and one could see the Himalayan range from far-off places like Delhi and Chandigarh. Metros like Delhi and Mumbai became pollution-free, wild animals started foraging for food in cities and towns, and rivers became cleaner. This is, however, a grim reminder that humanity must change its materialist, extravagant lifestyle and establish equilibrium with nature. That is the special message of the pandemic.

When the air pollution levels came down, there was a perceptible decline in respiratory diseases. One study said the improved air quality index on account of reduced human activities in Chennai was similar to that of European countries. The forests got a reprieve with reduced instances of forest fires, illegal felling of trees, and poaching. This writer noticed how migratory birds which normally returned home during February-March stayed back till May end. In zoos sans tourists the animals regained their natural composites and behaviours. In the Satpura Tiger Reserve of Madhya Pradesh, tigers, which had got used to regular movement of tourists, started liking their isolation and fretted upon seeing forest guards on patrols. According to Central Pollution Control Board, the Ganga, Yamuna, and Gomati rivers' water became cleaner. Dolphins were sighted in the Ganga near Meerut.

These examples tell people to adopt climate-friendly behaviours in their day-to-day lives. Look at Jadhav Payeng from Jorhat, Assam who got the 'Forest Man of India Award' in 2010 for turning 550 hectares of barren land into a lush green forest.

National Governments the world over started climate change negotiations after the Kyoto Protocol came into being in 2005. However, there is no genuine commitment to climate change even though world leaders meet every now and then because of never-ending politics. In India too, despite good initiatives like the solar alliance, the bureaucracy is unable to stem the rot in the field of environmental conservation.

Let us consider some citizen's initiatives which can make a big difference to the environment. Let us go for water harvesting and recharging in every home. Climate change was responsible for about 74 per cent of flash floods and droughts in the last 20 years. In cities 90 per cent of rainwater goes waste because of excessive construction activities. In contrast, 90 per cent of the rainwater gets absorbed in forests, recharging the aquifers, streams, and rivers. Every household having a 200 sq. mt. area can recharge around two lakh litres of rainwater every year.

Second, each tree gives oxygen for 10 people to survive. Everybody should plant a tree every year. A big tree absorbs 21 kg of carbon dioxide (CO2) and in 100 years reduces one tonne of CO2.

Third, food wastage is the biggest environmental problem as it wastes water and food grains. In 2019, nine billion tonnes of food was wasted in the world, releasing 70.41 lakh tonne methane gas. If we stop this wastage, eight percent reduction in greenhouse emissions can be ensured. Four, we must stop the use of paper cups to save at least 65 lakh trees and billions of gallons of water. Five, we need to use electricity carefully because 40 percent of carbon emissions are due to electricity production. If we can switch off the wi-fi and laptops we can reduce the emissions by 16 percent. Six, cars contribute to huge carbon emissions and if we limit the car speed to 70 kmph, it will reduce emission by 8 percent. The principle is at the speed 100 kmph the emissions increase by 28 percent.

Dealing with Delhi CM Kejriwal's 'ration mafia'

UTTAM GUPTA

The scheme mooted by the Delhi Government will only create more avenues for the middlemen to make money at the cost of the taxpayer

Arvind Kejriwal, Chief Minister, National Capital Territory (NCT) of Delhi has justified his much-trumpeted scheme for door-step delivery of ration on the ground that this will help rein in what he describes as 'ration mafia' while ensuring that every grain of the subsidized food reaches the person (read: the poor) for whom it is intended.

Who is this 'ration mafia'? How does it plunder the subsidized food? Can the scheme prevent it?

Under the National Food Security Act, 2013, the Union Government directs the Food Corporation of India and other state agencies to procure food from the farmers at MSP (minimum support price) and organize its distribution to a mammoth population of 800 million people through an elaborate network of fair price shops (in common parlance, these are called 'ration shops') at the subsidized price of ₹2, ₹3 and ₹1 per kg for wheat, rice, and coarse cereals, respectively. Each person is eligible to receive 5 kg of cereals per month.

Considering that the cost of procurement, handling, and distribution is higher (in fact, many times more) than these ridiculously low selling prices, the Centre reimburses the excess amount as 'food subsidy' to the FCI and other agencies and is paid from the Union Budget.

During 2020-21, a total of ₹463,000 crore was paid to FCI. Apart from regular payment of ₹215,000 crore, this included about ₹150,000 crore towards free food given to all the 800 million beneficiaries as also to the migrant labour during April-November, 2020 under the Aatmanirbhar package. The balance amount was used for paying off a good slice of the loan taken by FCI from the National Small Savings Fund (NSSF) to finance the shortfall in subsidy reimbursements by the Centre in the past. Additionally, Rs 40,000 crore was paid to other state agencies under decentralized procurement (DCP).

During 2021-22, payment to FCI is expected to be about ₹302,000 crore including ₹202,000 crore being the budget allocation and an additional about ₹100,000 crore to provide for free food under Aatmanirbhar till November 2021 (announced subsequently to mitigate the impact of the second pandemic wave). A further ₹40,000 crore is available for DCP.

The scheme is pan-India, covering all the 28 states and eight union territories including the NCT of Delhi. The stuff unveiled by Kejriwal is merely an improvisation of this scheme. Unlike the latter wherein the beneficiary has to go to the ration shop for collecting 5 kg of cereals per month, under the former, the State Government will arrange for delivery of 4 kg of wheat flour and one kg rice at his/her doorsteps. Hopefully, he/she need not pay extra for getting 'wheat as flour' or receiving ration at home.

However, the delivery will be at a huge cost to the state exchequer by way of the Government having to pay vendors for picking up wheat from the ration shop, process it into flour and deliver back to the shop in round one, and then lifting the wheat flour plus rice and delivering the packet to each of the millions of beneficiaries at their homes in round two. This cost will have to be funded by the state as an 'additional subsidy' over and above what is given by the Centre.

(The writer is a policy analyst. The views expressed are personal.)

Fundamentally, the Delhi scheme being the same as the Centre's, if the charge (read: 'ration mafia') leveled by Kejriwal holds for the latter then this will also hold for the former. Let us examine.

When the owner of a ration shop has in his stock wheat/rice meant for distribution to ration card holders (RCH) at ₹2/₹3 per kg, he may get a strong temptation to divert it to the open market where they can fetch a minimum of ₹25/₹35 per kg. He will take deliveries from the FCI godown in the name of a 'fictitious' RCH and sell all those quantities in the market raking in a clear bonanza of ₹23 and ₹32 per kg on wheat and rice, respectively. This indeed is happening on a massive scale all over India and has been recognized by the Prime Minister too.

To stem the rot, the Modi Government has taken several measures including the One Nation One Ration Card (ONORC) scheme which has at its core, the e-POS machine at all ration shops. Under this modus operandi, supply of the subsidized food to the beneficiary is made conditional upon him/her authenticating - using Aadhaar - taking delivery with the sale getting registered on the e-POS machine. This is uploaded onto the web portal on a 'real time' basis which should help in detecting dubious sales if any.

Since 2014, reportedly, the Government has weeded out close to 44 million bogus ration cards which are equivalent to 176 million beneficiaries (assuming four persons on a card) or nearly 20 per cent of 800 million covered under NFSA. This is a creditable achievement. However, considering the large-scale diversion which in some states could be as high as 50 per cent, there is still a long way to go.

The menace of bogus ration cards is only a part of a larger problem in the public distribution system (PDS) as pilferage could be happening even at other levels in the supply chain; for instance, at the rake unloading points and godowns of the FCI. Reports of the disappearance of food stocks worth about ₹20,000 crore in Punjab in 2016 is a glaring example. The misuse of budgetary resources also manifests in other forms such as inefficiencies in handling operations of FCI/other state agencies and inflated claims (including bogus claims) towards various expenses.

All this happens because, under the existing system, the agencies get reimbursement for the costs on an 'actual' basis. This indeed is the most serious flaw in the scheme. Camouflaged under the noble banner of 'food subsidy', albeit, for the millions of poor, this often goes unchallenged even when irregularities are pointed out by Comptroller and Auditor General (CAG).

The scheme mooted by the Delhi Government does nothing to address this flaw. It will only create more avenues for middlemen to make money at the cost of the taxpayer. What is the way forward?

The solution to the problem cannot be seen in isolation from its source. It has to do with plenty of food available 'virtually for free' which ignites the greed of stakeholders leading to pilferage and other ills. This free cult has to stop.

The Government should unshackle the food supply and distribution chains. It should put the subsidy currently built into the sale price of food, say, ₹32 per kg on rice (cost: ₹35 per kg minus subsidized price: ₹3 per kg) or ₹160 per person per month (under the NFSA, he/she is eligible to get 5 kg in a month) in the account of a beneficiary who can use it to buy from wherever he/she chooses. This is the Direct Benefit Transfer (DBT) of subsidy. While fully protecting the poor, it can help in curbing the colossal loot and wastage of public money that is germane to the existing dispensation.

Will Prime Minister Modi bite the bullet?

Re-inventing privacy in the digital market

Digital markets that emerged as State's attempts to ensure safety for lives of citizens now shape up benefitting organised and powerful corporates

The Covid-19 pandemic has facilitated the rapid expansion of e-commerce and digital trade, commerce, and financial transactions. At the same time, it put paid to socially interactive marketplaces and face-to-face contacts. Safety is the key concern that confines citizens to digital platforms and shrinks the space of personal liberty, social interaction, and human collectives and communities. One is reminded of Benjamin Franklin's warning, "Those who would give up essential Liberty, to purchase a little temporary Safety, deserve neither Liberty nor Safety."

If in the name of safety, the 'social contract' is relinquished and it is replaced by the authority of the State to govern the lives of private citizens in exchange for safety and security, it ends up benefiting the minions of the digital markets that set up a new normal for citizens.

What philosopher Michael Sandel characterized as a transition from market relations in socially necessary fields like health, education, and human security to an overall 'market society' is seemingly taking a digital turn during the pandemic. This picture of digital markets restrains choice-based consent and limits it to partially-informed advantages. Digital economy tweaks choices, restrains access to essential resources, and dilutes ethical practices to market sentiments, even if it creates moral hazards. An AI-controlled collusive behaviour on the part of human traders and customers is the outcome of uncontrolled digital deals that might tamper with the sovereign individuals.

A moral hazard of such a digital marketplace is the way the bot called Tay on Twitter, which learned abuses from the trolls, heaped it back upon a feminist activist. Both State and non-state actors use botnets to surreptitiously control infected devices to hack, spy, and disable targets. As botnets cannot be attributed with intent, it helps to distance the actus reus of the perpetrator and allow them to escape with impunity. As a result, botmasters enjoy economic incentives to spread these bot networks that can be used for mining cryptocurrency, credit card fraud and distributed denial of services, etc. The bots can further position themselves as autonomous agents (AA) by camouflaging their point of origin, while they can feed their masters confidential information so that the targeted victim suffers definitive harm in multiple socio-economic parameters.

Given this default and design difficulty in fixing liability on cyber-attackers, there is a greater risk for liberty and freedom of speech of internet users. In a sense, cyberspace itself can be used to curtail and abridge various freedoms like privacy rights and the right to dissent by deploying surveillance and secret watch. Digital marketplaces facilitated a direct connection between cyberattack and surveillance, as personal data breaches are the route through which these actions are carried out. Though cyberattacks are illegal, surveillance assumes both legality and legitimacy by subjecting users to irrevocable meta consent as the new social contract in digital, virtual, and cyberspaces. The ecosystem of the digital market, therefore, constructs the human agency and utilizes underlying technological structures to give meanings to both security and surveillance mechanisms. Digital markets create contested information spaces where the defense of users' rights versus the powers of governmental institutions remain locked up in a battle of legitimacy. The digital marketplace makes it possible to reduce the human being to a node, or better, into datasets on its networks. The digital life of such a reduced person is endowed with nominal rights of privacy and liberty, as such rights are subjected to the arbitrary ordeal of policing, profiling, moralizing. This is how digital marketplaces make it impossible for the marginalized segments of society by making them 'illegible' in political and economic affairs, if not completely 'ineligible'.

In the name of safety and security concerns, privacy breaches have been normalized by thinning down the line between legal surveillance and illicit attacks. The growth of digital trading and the increase in economic transactions in cyberspace now provides both the final reason and justification for increased control by both state and non-state actors. Once the right to privacy is breached in this manner, the resultant insecurity defeats all ethical-legal injunctions that could have given healthy immunity to digital markets.

Govt open to more measures to boost economy, says CEA

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The government is open to coming out with more measures to boost the economy which has been hit by the second wave of the coronavirus pandemic, says Chief Economic Advisor (CEA) K V Subramanian.

He, however, added that the demand for a fresh stimulus package has to be considered against the backdrop of a host of initiatives taken by Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman in her budget for 2021-22 presented in February.

The Chief Economic Advisor was responding to a suggestion made by some industry bodies that the government needed to come out with a Rs 3 lakh crore stimulus package to boost the economy which was badly hit by the second wave of the coronavirus pandemic in April-May.

According to an assessment by the Reserve Bank, the second wave has cost the nation about Rs 2 lakh crore in terms of output lost.

"Like last year, we do remain very open to coming up with more measures as well...but I think it is really important to take into account the big differences between last year and this year when we talk about stimulus," he told PTI in an interview.

Elaborating his point, the CEA said that unlike the previous budget which was framed before the pandemic, the 2021 budget was presented amid the pandemic and had already incorporated significant fiscal expansion.

The focus is particularly on infrastructure spending which leads to construction activity and subsequently creation of jobs in the informal sector and demand generation, he said. It was witnessed during the January-March quarter of the last financial year, he added.

The significant capital spending by the government led to a 15 per cent increase in the construction sector in the fourth quarter and the gross fixed capital formation to GDP surged to 34 per cent, the highest in the last six years.

Emphasising that the final objective is to ensure that the economic recovery gathers pace, he said, the government will do whatever is necessary to ensure that. With regard to food security for the poor, he said, the government has already extended the free food programme for 80 crore population till November.

DISINVESTMENT

Draft cabinet note for 100 pc FDI in oil PSUs okayed

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The commerce and industry ministry has floated a draft cabinet note seeking inter-ministerial views on a proposal to allow up to 100 per cent foreign investment under automatic route in oil and gas PSUs, which have an 'in-principle' approval for disinvestment, sources said.

The move, if approved by the union cabinet, would facilitate privatisation of India's second biggest oil refiner Bharat Petroleum Corp Ltd (BPCL).

The government is privatising BPCL and is selling its entire 52.98 per cent stake in the company.

Sources said that as per the draft note, a new clause would be added in the FDI policy under the petroleum and natural gas sector.

approval for disinvestment of a PSU has been granted by the government.

For BPCL privatisation, mining-to-oil conglomerate Vedanta had put in an expression of interest (EOI) for buying the government's 52.98 per cent stake in the PSU. The other two bidders are said to be global funds, one of them being Apollo Global Management.

After collating the views, the commerce and industry ministry would seek approval of the union cabinet on the proposal.

At present, only 49 per cent FDI is permitted through automatic route in petroleum refining by the public sector undertakings (PSU), without any disinvestment or dilution of domestic equity in the existing PSUs.

According to the proposal, foreign investment up to 100 per cent under the automatic route would be allowed in cases where an 'in-principle'

SAIL postpones commercial production of HH rails

State-owned Steel Authority of India Ltd (SAIL) has postponed its plans to begin commercial production of head hardened (HH) rails at its Bhilai Steel Plant in Chhattisgarh, as the foreign experts involved in the trials left India in the wake of the second Covid wave.

In April when cases of coronavirus infections were on the surge in several parts of the country, the experts from Europe left for their respective countries. Replying to a query on its production plans for HH rails, SAIL said that cold commissioning of HH rails has been done and hot trials were taken in March this year. "The entire process was going on with the help and support of foreign experts...but it had to be postponed mid way due to the second wave of pandemic. The work will resume as soon as the situation is conducive for experts to return," the steel maker said.

Vedanta emerges successful bidder for coal block

Vedanta has emerged as successful bidder for a coal block in Odisha which was put for re-bid in the second attempt of auction of blocks for commercial mining. With the successful auction of Kuraloi (A) north coal mine in Odisha, the total number of mines successfully auctioned in the first tranche of auction for commercial mining is 20 out of total 38 coal mines offered, the coal ministry said in a statement. The country's export of leather, its products and footwear has jumped to USD 641.72 million in April-May 2021 from USD 146.79 million in the corresponding period last year, the Council for Leather Exports (CLE) said on Sunday.

CLE's newly elected chairman Sanjay Leekha said that after a prolonged period of market slow-down caused by the Covid 19 pandemic, which led to 27.72

"As per latest data, export of leather, leather products and footwear increased from USD 146.79 million in April-May 2020 to

Rapid digitisation fuelling mkt demand in India and overseas

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Digital networks integrator Sterlite Technologies Ltd has said that rapid digitisation is fuelling demand for solutions, both in India and overseas, despite the COVID pandemic. STL Group CEO Anand Agarwal said running operations in the backdrop of pandemic gives the company confidence that processes have been strengthened to the extent that it is now better prepared to navigate through the situation on ground. STL further indicated that it is planning solution hub -- involving some element of downstream manufacturing and assembly -- closer to its customers although modalities for the same are yet to be worked out. Asked about the business impact of recurring waves of infections sweeping across nations, Agarwal said: "From client side we had lesser issues. The demand continues to be strong because people continue to see a shift happening towards digital". In India, he said, the demand scenario remains strong when it comes to Indian telcos and ecosystem. The same is the case with the overseas markets like the US and Europe, where clients are looking for faster deployment of solutions, as economies open up.

Global trends, vax, pace of monsoon to drive markets

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

With no major domestic macroeconomic data to be released this week, the equity market trend will be determined by global cues, pace of monsoon and the vaccination drive, analysts said. The expiry of monthly derivatives contracts may add to volatility, they added. "Markets are likely to spend some more time in a range and we expect volatility to remain high due to the scheduled derivatives expiry of June month contracts. With no major event, participants will be closely eyeing the global markets for cues. "Besides, the progress of monsoon and updates on the vaccination drive will also be in focus," said Ajit Mishra, VP Research, Religare Broking.

Siddhartha Khemka, Head - Retail Research, Motilal Oswal Financial Services Ltd, said, "Going ahead, monsoon and the pace of vaccination would decide the further direction of the market." During the previous week, the 30-share BSE benchmark Sensex declined 130.31 points or 0.24 per cent. Global equities were caught off guard last week after the US Federal Reserve signalled earlier-than-expected rate hikes.

FPIs invest Rs 13,667 cr in Indian markets

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Foreign portfolio investors (FPIs) pumped in a net Rs 13,667 crore so far in June as Indian markets continued to remain attractive to overseas investors. However, market experts noted that FPIs withdrew money from Indian equities this week. According to depositories data, FPIs invested Rs 15,312 crore in equities between June 1 and June 18. "The US Federal Reserve has signalled that it will start raising interest rates in 2023. This caused a sell-off on a global level that caused some money to be withdrawn from Indian equities," said Harsh Jain, co-founder and COO at Groww.

Labour Min mulls extending ABRY deadline till March to boost hiring

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Ministry of Labour and Employment is considering extending the timeline of the Atmanirbhar Bharat Rojgar Yojana (ABRY) till March next year from the existing June 30, in a bid to boost fresh hiring in the country amid the pandemic, said sources.

Under the ABRY approved by the Union Cabinet in December last year, the government pays mandatory employees provident fund contributions of workers as well as employers for new recruits for a period of two years.

Under the scheme with an outlay of Rs 22,810 crore, workers recruited from October 1, 2020 to June 30, 2021, were covered. "The Ministry of Labour and Employment is in the process of circulating a Cabinet proposal for extending the timeline for ABRY till March 2022," sources told PTI. The source explained that about 21 lakh new recruits are benefitted so far which is far less than government's expectation of 58.5 lakh. Therefore, the labour ministry would push for extending the deadline of the scheme till March next year as the allocation of funds for the scheme was done keeping in mind the 58.5 lakh beneficiaries, the source added. During the pandemic, the government took a series of steps to boost employment generation and to give relief to workers grappling with job loss and pay cuts. The ABRY was one of those measures. Government had allocated Rs 22,810 crore for the entire period of implementation of the scheme from 2020 to 2023.

Easing of rules: Automakers initiate production ramp-up

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

With COVID-19 situation easing across various states, leading automobile companies in the country have initiated steps to ramp up production to "normal levels" to meet pent-up demand, clear backlog and reduce waiting periods on their products. Auto firms, which were forced to down shutters temporarily due to lockdowns and curfews, expect business activity to pick up going ahead with the opening of dealerships across states.

"With the easing of the lockdown in various states, production is gradually ramping up and likely to stabilise to normal levels by the end of the month," Tata Motors Passenger Vehicle Business Unit President Shailesh Chandra told PTI. He noted that production at the company's passenger vehicle plants operated at about 50 per cent capacity during the lockdown period in April and May, constrained by pandemic restrictions and compliance to safety protocols as also shortfall in supplies from vendor partners located in auto clusters across various states.

Several states and union territories have announced easing of curbs on account of decline in the number of coronavirus infections. The Delhi High Court Friday took cognisance of the violation of COVID-19 protocols in various markets in the national capital and observed that such breaches will only hasten the third wave of coronavirus which cannot be permitted at all.

Yamaha to press ahead with retail expansion

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Japanese two-wheeler major Yamaha is seeking to leverage on the 'drastic shift' in consumer behaviour, with preference for personal mobility over public transportation brought about by COVID-19, and press ahead with its plans to expand retail footprint in India despite the pandemic-induced disruptions, according to a senior company official.

Yamaha Motor India Group, which had suspended manufacturing operations at its factories at Kanchipuram in Tamil Nadu and Surajpur in Uttar Pradesh from May 15 to May 31 when the second wave of the pandemic hit the country, has started production at the two locations from the beginning of the month to gradually get back to business.

Mahindra Logistics eyes sharp growth

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Mahindra Logistics saw a "significant" impact on its business in the last two months due to lockdowns in various states, but now it is back on "stronger" recovery path and expecting this momentum to further consolidate during the second half of this fiscal, a top company official has said. With Covid lockdowns and restrictions being eased in various states, the company is optimistic of carry on the positivity in business outlook gathered in June to the third and fourth quarter of FY2022.

As far as its preparedness for the likely third wave of the COVID-19 pandemic is concerned, the company has taken up several programmes internally to tackle and mitigate the impact of a new wave of coronavirus infections.

CII suggests measured opening up of activities

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Industry chamber CII President T V Narendran has suggested that the government should follow a cautious approach in opening up of all activities with a view to avoid a possible third wave of the COVID pandemic.

The focus of opening up in the immediate run, he said, should be on economic activities including restarting the supply chains as they are essential for reviving the growth and ensuring livelihoods to the vast majority of the workforce.

"We should prioritise what activities should be allowed, rather than opening up everything. Avoid the avoidable activities. There are many things which do not need to happen. There are many things which need to happen like economic activities...but social events etc... can wait for a few months, let them wait for a few months. Why increase the risk," Narendran told PTI in an interview.

He cautioned that one should be "very" watchful before unlocking so that "we do not open up sooner than required and create a (coronavirus) wave three".

Several states and union territories have announced easing of curbs on account of decline in the number of coronavirus infections.

The Delhi High Court Friday took cognisance of the violation of COVID-19 protocols in various markets in the national capital and observed that such breaches will only hasten the third wave of coronavirus which cannot be permitted at all.

The new CII president said that economic activity has shrunk in May and to some extent in April and everyone was impacted by multiple local lockdowns, disruptions to supply chains and demand.

"The fact that economic activity has come down is obvious, it has also reflected in the GST (Goods and Services Tax) numbers...The second wave has derailed economic recovery," he added.

He also advocated for appointment of a "Vaccine Czar" for speedy vaccination coverage, stating that there should be a minimum 71.2 lakh average daily vaccination doses from now till December 2021 to cover the entire adult population. Vaccination is here to stay and the country needs to be ready for the long term, he said.

PANDEMIC REDEFINING, FINE-TUNING FATHERHOOD

SHIKHA DUGGAL

Anyone can father a child but being a dad takes a lifetime! Fathers play a vital role in every child's life that cannot be filled by others. Following the outbreak of the coronavirus, we saw a completely new outlook of a father toward the child because they're spending every waking hour with their kids! A father faced with the new challenge of being both dad and teacher at the same time, the virus brought with it feelings like anxiety, stress, uncertainty which was being felt strongly by kids of all ages, for which a father had to be there while balancing work from home situations. A poll at a parenting platform found that over 53% of parents felt more engaged in their child's learning compared to before lockdown! With no physical classes and uncertainty due to postponement/cancellations of exams, fathers had no choice but to become more involved than ever before in their child's learning! For many dads, this Father's Day was very different. Sure, they have always loved their kids and valued being a parent but never before have so many fathers spent so deep moments in the parenting trenches.

Dr. Sufla Saxena, a consultant pediatrician feels during such times, fathers supported the whole family, in a way they tried to take away some of the loneliness and desperation that children may feel. "From making kids aware about the pandemic and safety precautions, discussing with them the possibility of one or more family members going into isolation, being supportive if they come up with any queries, setting up a daily routine for the child for online school work, monitoring what the child does online, doing fun exercises, keeping the kid's morale high by praising them from time to time for their work, etc. — a father is doing it all!"

Even Dwayne Johnson mentioned that the most important thing that he learnt about raising kids in the pandemic was to just be there!

"As social beings, children in their formative years require greater opportunities for extracurricular activities and interactions. Lack of this can hurt their cognitive and emotional development. This put immense pressure on fathers to keep their children engaged through activities while juggling extended work hours. It was thus no surprise that for some children, screen time shot up as much as they looked to keep themselves entertained. Despite mothers sharing the duty, kids predominantly expect their fathers to take charge of extracurricular activities like sports, travel, and gaming among other things. Such activities are essential bonding exercises between fathers and children and at the same time crucial for improved wellbeing and emotional development," asserts Dr. Subi Chaturvedi, a distinguished public policy professional and former member of the United Nations, Internet Governance Forum, Multi-stakeholder Advisory Group.

Dr. Sufla Saxena

Sarvesh Sahni with his son Atharva. She further adds how online gaming with multiple players is coming up as an interesting alternative to outdoor sports and activities while acting as a good mediation between dads and kids — "We aren't talking about playing video games in isolation for hours anymore. Online, multiplayer games provide opportunities for interaction, engagement, and fair competition. As we belong to the golden age of social gaming, young dads are certainly making the most of it. As online gaming is a de-stressor for older age groups too, fathers are engaging with their children through a well-chosen skill-based game. There is a popular trend in the west where parents have been playing online games with their children and other than sharing commands and strategies in-game, they have been talking to their children about school, their friendships, and everything that is going on in their lives. This gave birth to the popular

'Dad Gaming League' too that has seen a considerable growth during the pandemic." We see a welcoming transition in how fathers are more physically present in the home these days, it indirectly affords a change in how we perceive the conventional gender roles of parenting now. Child counsellor Saakshi Singla shares, "Coronavirus has been unrelenting and there is growing uncertainty in all of us. But this time it is even harder for fathers with young children. Managing children's challenging behaviours along with an increase in work from home hours and added care responsibilities have been very hard and exhausting on them. It was important that as fathers, they keep their sanity through self-care and invest in their own self-regulation skills also since they can never pour love on their kids from an empty heart cup. It's like, behavioural issues in children are growing and the patience of parents is wearing thin. But here's what we need to remember instead of worrying about children giving a hard time with their problematic behaviour — that children could be having a hard time themselves — and it's important to shift our gaze to that."

From having more meaningful conversations with kids, getting to know them better, sharing anecdotes with them about their own life, appreciating the child more, discovering new interests with them — this way of tackling kids in the pandemic could also be a watershed moment for gender equality in the home. A father from the city, Sarvesh Sahni reports how the lockdown has taught him to appreciate every little moment with his son. "Wouldn't it be nice if children came with instructions? This thought often crosses my mind when I see my 3.5-year-old son. Though he is not an infant anymore, I realised children always need undivided attention. My son, Atharva is a powerhouse of energy and keeps me on my toes throughout! Mostly, mothers are seen as the ones who do more of the caregiving when it comes to children. However, I was active in the caring journey of my son and found it fun and exciting. The lockdown with the work from home meant that not only was I present but more involved and connected. The sheer bliss of clapping when he chanted those nursery rhymes, putting a chocolate smiley on his tumbler of milk were moments that made our bond even stronger."

How celebrity fathers are doing it right!

From taking paternity leave to be with his wife Anushka Sharma who was due to deliver the baby to hilariously giving an ad which shows fathers from across the country giving the ace cricketer tips on how to be a hands-on dad, Virat Kohli has done it all.

Hardik Pandya's picture feeding milk to his newborn son Agastya has been loved by his millions of fans. Cricketer compensated for the days he missed being with his son when he had to go to the UAE for Indian Premier League.

Tusshar Kapoor had once shared that parent-hood nourishes his soul. He had said how he wanted to nurture his child with all the love he can and he enjoys it. He loves taking him to the park and playschool. It doesn't feel like work.

Telugu star Nandamuri Balakrishna recently paid tribute to his father on his birth anniversary, calling him a source of inspiration. In doing so, he highlighted that one's nannagaru is always one's first hero.

While talking about his way of parenting in an interview, Mahesh Babu revealed that he is the one who pampers his kids while his wife Namrata known to be a strict mom. Several times, actor and a dotting father admired how his son Gautam growing up as his carbon copy and he fondly calls his daughter 'Sita papa'. The actor was also seen taking a selfie with his daughter Sithara! The little diva was smiling with her dad.

In view of World Music Day, we talk to Kadence, a music brand, and award-winning singer-songwriter Shayan Italia about how music has become more personal, over performances, and the trends in music back in our humble abodes, amid the pandemic.

YOGA SE HI HOGA

On International Yoga Day today, child prodigy Ishwar Sharma, who is a three-time world Yoga champion, talks to The Pioneer's RACHEL DAMMALA about how he fell in love with the practice at such a tender age, how it helps him, what makes him teach this lifestyle to many, and more.

Keeping the current pandemic, and the lockdown and isolation it called for, in mind, yoga has become a powerful tool that many claimed helped deal with the stress of uncertainty and isolation, as well as to maintain physical well-being. One such beneficiary is a British-Indian yoga boy who won the Global Child Prodigy Award, and many such laurels for his contribution to the field. 11-year-old Ishwar Sharma, from Sevenoaks in Kent, had been practicing yoga since he was three. He saw his dad wake up every morning to practice yoga before he began his day. That eventually became a habit, then a hobby, and now a part of him, that he can't miss for anything.

Talking about yoga helps him, Ishwar tells us, "Yoga helps me concentrate, it helps me focus on various things better. Apart from that, it's so much fun, it's another hobby I absolutely enjoy doing, yet, it's a big part of my everyday life. Yoga also helps me relax." Ishwar day starts with yoga and ends with it.

"On a normal day when I've school, I wake up at 5 am, practise yoga for about 20 minutes. It lifts and wakes me up early in the morning, and charges me up for the day. And just before it's time to hit the bed, I practise yoga again for another 20-30 minutes, it relaxes and calms me down. Also, it's good for my eyes, helps me deal with my autism and ADHD," Ishwar shares.

With the many medals and awards he's received, ask what he wants and wishes to contribute, he replies, "I want more and more people to take up yoga as part of their daily lives. I want them to taste the benefits of this and be able to lead a better life." Ishwar, who had led daily yoga classes for 40 children across 14 countries during the coronavirus lockdown, says he wishes to continue teaching to as many as possible.

Ishwar, who also has the skill to chant up to 50 shlokas from the Vedas and Bhagavad Gita says his favourite yoga postures have to be Ashthavakrasana or the eight-angle pose, which comes with a hoard of benefits. "This basically is the hand-balancing asana dedicated to the sage Astavakra (who had 8 deformities), the spiritual guru of King Janaka," Ishwar explains. He also tells us about his recent favourite Vrischikasana or the scorpion pose, which is an inverted asana that combines a forearm balance and backbend, which he had mastered only last year.

Recently, I think that's where I'll head someday, maybe!"

Nickelodeon, one of India's leading kids' entertainment channel that has characters like Motu Patlu, Shiva, Rudra, and Dora which eventually emerged as role models for children by providing life lessons to them, has onboarded Ishwar Sharma for their #YogaSeHiHoga campaign, this year. The channel has pioneered in celebrating International Yoga Day year on year and spreading the message of a healthy lifestyle amongst the kids through yoga practice. Talking about how he relates to the campaign - Yoga Se Hi Hoga and why yoga is beneficial for strengthening any individual, Ishwar shares, "I am extremely delighted to have associated with Nickelodeon for Yoga Se Hi Hoga campaign. Yoga is so much fun and has helped me in so many ways and it's great to know that the campaign is reaching out to kids like me and encouraging them to take up yoga as a practice. While I have personally not consumed Nickelodeon cartoons, I have heard so much about Motu Patlu, Shiva, and Rudra through my cousins. I just hope now everybody understands the benefits of yoga."

Asked if he wants to grow up to take up teaching yoga professionally, Ishwar is quick to answer, "I don't think I will take the professional route, but I'm sure about being a diligent practitioner of yoga throughout my life. I also like creating new stuff, and I think that's where I'll head someday, maybe!"

MUSIC IN '20-21 CREATED, CURED, AND COMFORTED

RACHEL DAMMALA
SHIKHA DUGGAL

Throughout 2020 and until now, people across the globe have turned to various things to find solace in, and art has been the biggest of those. But music beat it all and turned comfort cushion that has something for everybody and every situation. Reels on Instagram and quick, short musical covers on TikTok are proof of this.

Explaining this phenomenon, Indian-born, international multi-award-winning entrepreneur, pianist, songwriter, musician, and global traveller, and 'Global Indian Of The Year' - Shayan Italia said, "Music has always been the world's universal language and always will be. This last year has caused a lot of suffering, a lot of pain to many — loss of loved ones, loss of livelihoods, and more. Music is a solace for many, a go-to where one can for a moment lose their sense of reality and seek hope and comfort. This need rises beyond excellence. It is an expression of self so to speak. Instagram Reels is modelled on TikTok and allows one to create uplifting, fun, and sometimes insightful videos that capture the attention of another and for a moment make them laugh. Smile, and feel good, that's all that matters. These social tools that use musical expressions as their backbone only help us connect with each other in ways we never thought possible. It also demonstrates the power of music as a medium globally."

Also, have you noticed that most of these short covers had one thing in common — their cute little guitars called Ukuleles! They emerged as very popular instruments since the onset of the pandemic in March 2020. The trend continued well into 2021, with over 70-80 thousand ukuleles sold since January 2021! "While the ukulele trend was largely supported by the lockdown, and people picking up fun hobbies, this year it has been more about wanting to pursue something interesting in their own time. The trend, started by the lockdown, has evolved into something more — playing a musical instrument for fun! Ukulele was commonly referred to as a 'chota' guitar by people and till 2019 not many understood its real essence and qualities. Till the pandemic hit in March 2020, we used to sell quite a few ukuleles. However, with the lockdown, there were a lot of people who wanted to try something different. The ukulele is a perfect combination of 'easy' and 'fun'. Learning a musical instrument makes one feel accomplished — and that was a big draw. Sales have risen by 300 percent since the pandemic started and are consistent in 2021 as well," informs Yash Gupta, entrepreneur in residence, Kadence, one of India's leading music instrument brands.

But why has the ukulele received much love these days? "The ukulele is a perfect companion for several situations. It will be an ideal travel companion. Small, light, and portable and fits perfectly into the travel backpack. It is something you can play at home, to your child, pet dog, or just to yourself. It is something that you can play at a party to entertain people," opines Yash Gupta.

The demand is here to stay. People, today, realise that playing an instrument can be fun and simple. Manufacturers are so sure, that Kadence recently set up their first manufacturing unit in Bengaluru, which will also be manufacturing ukuleles. They hope the demand will grow. Apparently, the quirky and charming ukulele caught the attention of people from almost all age groups. Retired senior citizens, kids, working adults, and hobbyists between the age group of 20-60 years are also buying the Ukuleles and learning to play it! Yash informs that Bangaloreans and Hyderabadis loved the uke the most, followed by Mumbai, Delhi, and Chennai.

"The ukulele is one of the easiest instruments to port around, and on average, not as expensive as a guitar. I've used the Ukulele in many of my studio recordings and it brings back great memories. Its sound is playful, fun, uplifting, and joyous, so it would connect with the youth instinctively. One of my favourite songs of all time Somewhere Over The Rainbow by the great Israel Kamakawiwole is a masterpiece using this instrument. Not only is the song legendary, but his vocal and ukulele performance is sheer magic. I think it still stands as the most famous ukulele song perhaps of our generation," reminisces Shayan Italia.

individuals, helping people reach the hospital in an emergency, sourcing oxygen cylinders for those in need, ensuring a ritual and traditional cremation for the deceased due to Covid, explains to us how he is trying to bring about a difference in the community through riding. "My motorbiking is helping me reach out to people in distress at the prescribed moment when required. Unlike a four-wheeler with my RE 500 Classic, I can reach people faster, which is a must in emergencies. I have never kept count of the people I have been helping, but to give a rough count, I might have helped around 200 families or more," says Ravi who feels rallying about Covid norms can create better awareness in the community. "The only way to make the society a safer place is to ensure proper distancing. The most effective way for that would be imposing section 144 under which people can't gather or move around in groups," he adds.

Jayesh Nair, a Hyderabad-based businessman is another good Samaritan distributing homemade food to the needy and Covid affected families. Since April this year, after witnessing the conditions/situations of the Covid affected families, Jayesh has served around 50 families by distributing food and buying medicines and essentials for the affected mask, wash their hands, stay home, and not to come out unnecessarily?"

This young social worker has helped more than 1000 families with grocery, cooked meals, distributing sanitizers and face masks for the police officials in Hyderabad. Joshua feels that humanity is the only religion and is glad to help the homeless people in times of need. His only dream is for more bikers from the biking community to come forward to contribute to a noble cause.

"Motorcycling really has a positive impact on my physical and mental health. It helps me commute with no hassles, in case of emergency," says another biker Dr Roshan Reddy, Director of Anaya Hospitals in Hyderabad. The young doctor has been providing free audio/video consultations/counseling sessions for Covid positive patients and their families, helping patients find bed/oxygen/ventilators/drugs through his sources. A simple "thank you" from his patients is what keeps him motivated. Though there is a decline in the number of Covid cases post lockdown, which is good news, Roshan feels that people not following protocols should be punished by law. "Humans can only be safe when Covid safety measures are implemented from within," he adds.

Ravi Nair, an event manager by profession, who has been contributing to the community by distributing home-cooked food, delivering medicines required for the affected

In connection with World Motorcycling Day, The Pioneer's K RAMYA SREE speaks to some of the heroes of the riders' community on how they are making a difference and bringing a smile to people's faces in Telangana.

In this difficult phase, while the city dwellers still manage to have timely access to essential commodities, many who live in villages and remote parts of the country aren't that lucky, they barely manage a single meal a day and have to walk for kilometers at a stretch, only to procure a few bags of ration to provide for their families. During the lockdown period in Telangana, some good Samaritans in the riders' community have been trying to make a difference. Many riders took individual initiatives and helped in social distancing and raising funds during the pandemic.

Recognising and empathising with the agony of such people, several Royal Enfield riders from Hyderabad have come forward to extend a helping hand. They are doing their best to give back to society whether it is by delivering essential items like medicines and groceries or by distributing homemade masks to the ones who are in dire need. Many of them have also volunteered in helping manage traffic check posts, verifying and fulfilling food requests from migrant workers, patrolling interior roads to help maintain social distancing, painting markers for social distancing in front of shops as well as ensuring that people are wearing masks at all times when stepping outside. These riders are no less than frontline heroes and we wanted to share some of their stories with you. Spain face threat of early exit

AFP ■ SEVILLE

Luis Enrique admitted he expected more from Spain at Euro 2020 after a 1-1 draw with Poland on Saturday left his team facing a fight to reach the last 16.

Gerard Moreno missed a penalty and Alvaro Morata squandered the rebound as Spain's scoring woes struck again, with Robert Lewandowski's header earning Poland a valuable point in Seville.

After starting with a stalemate against Sweden, Spain sit third in Group E and may well now have to beat Slovakia in their final game on Wednesday to avoid an embarrassing early exit.

"I was expecting more," said Luis Enrique. "I was expecting six points and zero goals conceded. But this is the reality."

"We're coming into the crunch match now and if we want to progress we need to win. If we win, we'll go through. If not, we'll be out. That's the reality."

Morata poked in from close range to put Spain in front but Lewandowski's 60th goal of the season pulled Poland level before Moreno's penalty hit the post.

The rebound came quickly to Morata but with Wojciech Szczesny committed down to his right, the goal was open for the striker to score his second.

Instead, the whistles that accompanied Morata against Sweden last week were saved for the whole Spanish team at the final whistle.

Poland, meanwhile, formed a huddle on the pitch before going to over to salute their supporters, after the deadly Lewandowski came up trumps again to keep his own team's hopes of progress alive.

a passionate and prepared defence of Morata on Friday as he said the team would be "Morata and 10 others".

But he also replaced Ferran Torres in the starting line-up with Moreno, the Villarreal striker whose 23 goals was second only to Lionel Messi last season in La Liga.

Morata's best moment came in the 25th minute and it could hardly have been easier, even if a little shuffle put him in the right position to poke in Moreno's shot from the right.

The offside flag went up and Spain's players appeared to expect the cancellation but instead the goal stood.

Poland came again though and twice went close before half-time, Karol Swiderski hitting the post with a curling shot that came back for Lewandowski, but he smashed

'Barca move will give Depay something extra'

Amsterdam: Netherlands coach Frank de Boer is hopeful Memphis Depay's Euro 2020 form will be positively impacted after the confirmation the striker will play for Barcelona next season.

Depay has long been linked with a move to the Camp Nou and on Saturday Barcelona announced the 27-year-old had signed a two-year deal to join on a free transfer from Lyon.

"Maybe the transfer to Barcelona will give him something extra to help him perform at his best," De Boer told reporters ahead of the Dutch team's final Group C game against North Macedonia.

"We need Memphis at his best to go as far as we want in this tournament but we have confidence in him and he is a confident player."

Depay, who scored 20 goals in Ligue 1 for Lyon in the season just finished, converted a penalty in the Netherlands' 2-0 win over Austria.

However he has come in for some criticism from some fans and media for failing to take other chances.

"I think Memphis is his first critic and I'm sure the criticism doesn't affect him," De Boer said of the former Manchester United player, who is a huge star in the Netherlands.

"He knows if he played well or not so let's hope for the Netherlands that he can reach the level that we have in mind."

The Oranje have already secured qualification for the last 16 as winners of Group C after beating both Ukraine and Austria in their first major tournament since the 2014 World Cup.

"We know our path to the final and to get to the final you have to win every game, so I don't really care who we play next," De Boer said. "We have no influence on it."

'Bubbling' Germany back on track: Müller

AFP ■ MUNICH

Thomas Müller said confidence is now sky high in the Germany camp after getting their Euro 2020 campaign back on track with a 4-2 thumping of holders Portugal on Saturday.

"We are allowed to feel a little euphoria," said Müller after Germany moved second in Group F, level on three points with Portugal and a point behind leaders France.

"It's just fun playing in this atmosphere. The cauldron is boiling."

Germany now need to beat Hungary in Munich on Wednesday to be sure of reaching the knock-out stage.

"Now we have the three points, we are well in the tournament and have it in our own hands," added Müller.

"We mustn't get carried away and become arrogant — but we must believe in our quality."

Max wins French GP to extend c'ship lead

AP ■ LE CASTELLET

F1 championship leader Max Verstappen overtook Lewis Hamilton on the penultimate lap to win the French Grand Prix on Sunday and extend his lead over his title rival to 12 points.

Verstappen used the DRS system to catch Hamilton on Lap 52 and pass him on the inside before zooming off to clinch his third win of the season and 13th of his career. A bonus point for the fastest lap made it a great day for Red Bull, which had never beaten Mercedes on the Paul Ricard circuit in southern France.

It was a close call, though, with Red Bull's gamble on a two-stop strategy for Verstappen countered by a one-stopper for Hamilton as Mercedes kept him out on the same tires.

With five of 53 laps left, Hamilton was only 3.5 seconds ahead.

Verstappen quickly ate into that lead, kept calm and then positioned himself perfectly to attack on a long straight in the way Hamilton has done countless times in his record 98 wins.

"When we made the call to do a two-stop, luckily it paid off," Verstappen said. "We had to work hard for it."

Verstappen, who won by 2.9 seconds, has 131 points to Hamilton's 119 after seven races.

Red Bull's Sergio Perez sneaked past a dejected Valtteri Bottas to take third place and strengthen Red Bull's lead in the constructors' championship: 215 points to 178.

"We pulled the trigger and we went with the two-stopper (for Verstappen) and it worked. And great job from Sergio making the one-stop work," Red Bull team principal Christian Horner said. "It's a team effort, the strategy guys are working the numbers and they go for it."

Verstappen has already matched his career best for a season with three wins and is emerging as a massive rival for the defending champion Hamilton, who is trying to win a record eighth F1 title to move one ahead of Michael Schumacher.

Shafali will be very important for us in all formats: Mithali

PTI ■ BRISTOL

Shafali Verma's spectacular debut has caught the imagination of the Indian women's team Test skipper Mithali Raj, who feels the teenager would be a key member of the side in all the formats of the game in future.

The 17-year-old, who had smashed a stroke-filled 96 in the first innings, made 63 in the second, to become the youngest woman and fourth overall to score twin half-centuries in her debut Test and was rightfully adjudged player-of-the-match.

"She will be very, very important to the Indian batting unit in all formats. She beautifully adapted to this format," Mithali said in a virtual media interaction after India, following on, salvaged a draw in the one-off Test against England.

"She didn't go like how she would go bonkers in the T20 format. She played sensibly against the new ball and it's great to have her."

Asked what prompted the Indian team management to hand Verma a Test debut in England, Mithali said: "She has great range of shots, and she can be very, very, effective in a format like this if she gets going. In no time, we could see that the score would be somewhere else if she gets going.

"Once we knew that it's a used wicket and there won't be much of a movement, we thought it would be a good time to give her a Test debut and she lived up to it."

Knight supports 5-day Test match

PTI ■ BRISTOL

England captain Heather Knight has hailed the one-off Test against India as a great advertisement for the women's game and said she would support five-day matches, instead of the current four-day contests.

"What a brilliant game of cricket. It was unfortunate it didn't have the dramatic and exciting finish that it could have done but what a game of cricket," Knight said after the match.

"It's been a great advert and shows that women's Test cricket has a place in the game... Maybe even play a five-day Test match."

Asked if she would be open to women playing five-day Tests, Knight said, "I would definitely be open to it. There has been a lot of draws in women's cricket, so it's definitely something that should be looked at."

"(We were) almost robbed of that finish because there wasn't an extra day and we didn't have the time in the game. So, yes, something I'd definitely be open to."

"I think if there was another day what a great finish it would have been," said Knight who hit 95 in England's first innings and took three Indian wickets in the match.

Jamieson 5/31 holds India to 217

PTI ■ SOUTHAMPTON

Kyle Jamieson continued his love affair with the Indian team, tormenting the star-studded line-up with disconcerting bounce and swing as New Zealand bowled out the opposition for 217 on day three of the World Test Championship final here.

Jamieson decimated India with marvellous figures of 22-12-31-5 as New Zealand took control of the Test match by reaching 36 for no loss at tea. Openers Devon Conway (18 batting) and Tom Latham (17 batting) negotiated the Indian pace attack pretty well.

However, it was 6 feet 8 inch tall Jamieson, who after last year's series in New Zealand, has once again turned into a nightmare for the Indian batsmen.

Having removed Rohit Sharma on Saturday morning, Jamieson was relentless with his length and the bounce did the rest with clever traps laid for skipper Virat Kohli and the dangerous Rishabh Pant.

Kohli and his deputy Ajinkya Rahane walked into a nicely laid trap as India failed to reach 250, a good total in the prevailing conditions as per batting coach Vikram Rathour.

The overcast conditions made batting difficult and the likes of Jamieson, Trent Boult (21.1-4-47-2) and Neil Wagner (15.5-40-2) indulged in a 'who blinks first' game with the Indian batters and came out trumps with some incisive seam, swing and short pitched bowling.

Kohli (44, 132 balls) couldn't add a single run to his overnight score as his RCB teammate Jamieson made life difficult for him.

Boult and Jamieson kept bowling outside the off-stump channel and Kohli kept on leaving before the lanky seamer went slightly wide off the crease and got one to aim at rival skipper's boot laces.

Rishabh Pant (4) didn't score a run for 19 balls and then got a boundary with a flick through mid-wicket. Two balls later, he took the bait when Jamieson angled one to the imaginary fifth off-stump. He went for an expansive drive only to be snapped in the third slip by Tom Latham.

Once the 61-run stand with Kohli had ended, Rahane (49, 119 balls) sensed that the scoreboard needed a move on and started playing a few shots.

But perhaps, the milestone was working on his mind and despite playing a mistimed pull-shot one ball earlier, Wagner with his signature short ball prevented him from reaching a well-deserved fifty.

Rahane's disappointment was evident as he fell into the trap to play the pull-shot despite knowing that Wagner had kept a deep fine leg and long leg for the shot.

Ravichandran Ashwin (22, 27 balls) threw his bat around and got some useful runs but was never going to last long as Tim Southee (22-6-64-1) took care of him just before lunch break.

Post lunch break, Jamieson removed Ishant Sharma and Jasprit Bumrah off successive deliveries but Mohammed Shami prevented him from completing a hat-trick.

TOCOG working on safe stay & training of Indian athletes

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The Tokyo Olympic organisers are working on how to ensure safe stay and seamless training of the Indian athletes inside the Games Village, according to a letter they have sent to the Indian Olympic Association (IOA).

The Indian athletes and officials travelling for the Olympics have been asked by the Japanese Government to undergo daily Covid-19 tests for a week prior to their departure and not to interact with anyone from another country for three days upon arrival, strictures that have left the IOA fuming.

Stricter regulations have been put in place for all travellers — including athletes, coaches and support staff — of 11 countries, including India, where different variants of Covid-19 have been identified, within 14 days of their arrival in Tokyo.

Terming the rules as "unfair and discriminatory", the IOA had written to the Tokyo Organising Committee of the Olympic Games (TOCOG) to ensure that mechanisms to prevent Covid-19 do not have any "adverse and detrimental impact" on performance of athletes.

In reply to the IOA letter, TOCOG said: "Tokyo 2020 is working to define how athletes of your NOC as well from other 10 countries and all other 195 NOCs can stay safe in the Villages and have training."

"We hope to provide you with those information and discuss together as soon as possible we develop it," the Games organisers said in a letter to the IOA.

The IOA, on its part, said that its president and secretary general were in discussion with TOCOG and seeking clarifications on the conditions imposed on the Indian contingent for Tokyo Olympics.

Uganda Olympic team member tests +ve on arrival in Japan

AFP ■ TOKYO

A member of the Uganda Olympic team has tested positive for coronavirus on arrival in Japan, just over a month before the pandemic-postponed Games, officials said.

The first group to arrive from Uganda — a nine-strong party, including boxers, coaches and officials — landed at Tokyo's Narita airport on Saturday. They are the second team to arrive after Australia women's softball squad on June 1.

But one of the African nation's delegation tested positive during screening at the airport, a Government official told reporters. The person tested twice but their condition remained unknown, reported local media.

"I heard the person has been isolated based on regulations," Hidemasa Nakamura, the Tokyo 2020 Games delivery officer, told reporters, renewing a pledge to take strict measures against infections.

Public broadcaster NHK said the group had all been vaccinated and tested negative in Uganda before they came to Japan.

The team was originally due to have arrived in Japan on June 16, but their flight was cancelled following a surge in Covid-19 cases in Uganda, local media said.

The other members of the Ugandan party have already left the airport for Osaka, western Japan, where they will train ahead of the Games.

This was the first case showing positive Covid test results among Olympic arrivals from overseas, local media said.

RAASHI KHANNA: SOUTH HAS A BANK OF GREAT ACTRESSES

Actress Raashi Khanna, who works predominantly in Telugu and Tamil films, feels roles for actresses in the South are no longer just about being pretty.

Raashi made her mark with Telugu films such as Tholi Prema, Venky Mama and World Famous Lover, after making her acting debut with Shoojit Sircar's 2013 Hindi film Madras Cafe.

"It's still a male-dominated industry but I think women are making their way ahead considering the new kind of films that are coming," Raashi shares.

"When I started my career, I was very lucky to do it with Oohalu Gusagusalade, which was a Telugu film and it established me as an actor, but post that, everything that I got was very commercial. Tholi Prema was a film that changed things for me because people then said that 'she can act also,'" she claims.

"If you want to stay for long in the Telugu film industry, you have to be a good actor like Anushka Shetty or Samantha Akkineni. These are the women who are changing the way people are looking at actresses down South, which wasn't the case earlier. Before all you had to do was just look pretty and do great in songs. Now you have to be a good actor and I think we have a bank of great actresses in the South as well. It is starting now and I still feel we have a long way to go," says Raashi.

The actress who will soon be seen in Thank You alongside Naga Chaitanya, adds: "Everything is changing, everyone is going pan-India and everyone is going into different languages."
