White elephants

Our varities must not function in silos and there is a needing press to bring about systemic changes

These are public-funded "white elephants", a field of those who have been able to secure permanent appointment either on the basis of their talent or "otherwise", as offers terms and conditions -- handsome job guaranty, HIA, 14, 36 other perks -- which the highly competitive private sector can hardly match. Most of the Viva-Cancliers, professional apathics who are steadfast in the cause of their masters and their single-point agenda is to appoint those who are either "recommended" or belong to a particular ideology. Earlier, the Congress and the Left ruled the roost, particu- larly CPI, and the Congress in 1970s. Since then, the major political parties are fraught with repetition, factionalism, bribery, financial misappropriation and all forms of canards.

These are the facets of a serious and long grudgling issue with the majority of the people. The political parties have wavered a wide range of non-policy issues, from sexual harassment to sexual abuse and the whole gamut of run of the mill issues. Our varities must not be function in silos and there is a needing press to bring about systemic changes.

Food delivery face men hardships

Food delivery is the second or not asking. The delivery executive gets up for his drive and after the client, he has to start his day. Many customers don't want to pay the delivery fee and often give a bad rating to the delivery executive. The delivery executive has to be careful about the client's mood. The delivery executive has to be patient and polite with the client.

For lowering fuel taxes, the Centre and States need to see how tax revenue from other sources can be boosted. If they don’t, then consumers will have to pay high fuel prices perennially.

Faced with skyrocketing prices of petrol and diesel, the Centre and States have hiked the levies imposed on these fuels, leading to their prices crossing the Rs 100-per-litre mark in many parts of the country. In this backdrop, they will shudd-er to consider any proposals to reduce fuel levies. Even so, if they do not, the fuel prices will remain high and the Centre and States will have to resort to other levies to boost their revenue.

The Centre is looking at increasing fuel levies to raise revenue, especially because of the fiscal deficit induced by the Covid-19 pandemic. The government is considering increasing excise duty on fuel, as well as VAT on petroleum products. Further, the government is also considering increasing the cess on fuel.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi attended the first meeting of the Quad on Friday and hailed it as ‘another milestone’ in China’s relationship with the US, India, Australia and Japan.

China’s growing influence in the Indo-Pacific is an opportunity for the Quad to double down on the ‘rules-based international order’ and regional cooperation, he said.

The Quad meeting was also attended by Japanese Prime Minister Suga Yoshihide, Australian Prime Minister Scott Morrison and US President Biden.

A matter of choice

ARTIST ASHNA SINGH says that her exhibition This & That is an amalgamation of options that humanity has been gifted with. By Tuvi Viva

There’s a few days before gallery artist Nupur Shah’s exhibition, Shanmukham, opens at his new gallery in March. Last year, the entire country went into lockdown.

Shah, a musician with a spiritual bent of mind, used this opportunity to turn his gaze inward and curate a show that reflects the scope of spirituality and self-examination that all of us have experienced during the pandemic and in the year dealing with mental anosmia and introspection during this time, through artists who have used mediums to express themselves. Featuring works by New York-based Rupi Kaur, Khalid Chelhiti, Megha Joshi, Veer Munshi, Bombay Dreams, Rupali Choudhary, Ramya Chawla, and Veena, the group show titled This & That includes paintings, sculptures, and photographs.

A NEW DIMENSION

To understand the moment, one must be present in the moment. Comparisons and pros and cons of oneself and the circumstances of the world may be meaningless in today’s context. The new normal is compelling many to find new meanings and understand the importance of their existence.

This was the theme of the work at This & That’s current exhibition titled This & That. The show brings together work from artists who have been experiencing the moment, finding new dimensions of meaning.

The mental act of making a choice appears to be much simpler than it actually is. The mental act of choosing is a profound and deep one, requiring a certain level of understanding and introspection. It is not just a simple decision, but a reflection of one’s mind and the world one lives in.

DO X NO

A lot of choices are made based on intuition and personal experiences. But some of these choices can be deconstructive and harmful. We have to make sure we understand the consequences of our choices.
