INSIDIOUS BLACK FUNGUS

t appears that Covid-19 is not the only calamity that India may have to deal with lar the coming days. There are people who are still trying to deal with the chaos, destruction and death that the second wave of Covid-19 has brought. The next punch comes to hit the country is black fungus or mucormycosis. The rising number of black fungus patients, especially in Maharashtra where 111 patients, especially in Maharashtra where 111 patient according to the Brihammumbai Municipal Corporation, is a cause of worry.

Mucormycosis, also referred to as zygonycois, is a serious but rare fungal infection caused by a group of modds called mucornycetes. These modds live throughout the environment. When someone breathes in these spores, infection in the situs or lung can occur. It primarily affects people who have health problems or take medicines that lower the body's ability to fight germs and sickness. It is affecting Covid patients more because of prolonged administration of steroids and subsequent immunocompromies (state.

prolonged administration of steroids and sub-sequent immunocompromised state. Dr Monalisa Sahu, Consultant Infectious Diseases, Yashoda Hospitals, Hyderabad shares dos and don'ts to follow to prevent black fungus.

DOS:

1) Keep high index of suspicion of mucormycosis in the below mentioned group of patients, as they are at high risk of developing the disease

3) Diabetic patients with

 Diabetic patients with Covid should target strict glycemic/glucose control, as uncontrolled diabetes itself is a risk factor for mucormycos

Patients should moni their blood glucose post Covid discharge from hospital, and more so in diabetics

DON'TS:

Don't neglect the signs and symptoms mentioned above which gives a clue to early diagnosis Don't hesitate to approach your doctor

Don't hesitate to approach your dodor with the above signs and symptoms, thinking it to be a mild bacterial sinusitis, and the suspicion of fungal infection should be high on the cards

The treatment of the mucormycosis requires aggressive management and on't hesitate to undergo the aggressive management or lose the crucial window period of early diagnosis and treatment, as early suspicion, early diagnosis and grangerssive management are the keys to success in the management of this disease

For the hospitals, treating centres and physicians: Use of clean and sterile water for humidifiers during oxygen therapy is very essential to prevent mucormycosis

According to the police, he was undertaking treatment of his infected son at his home. Following this, the Health Department officials pasted a notice mentioning "corona infected area." Due to this, the neighbours maintained a safe distance from him and his family. Possibly, Das was perturbed over this stigmatisation.

Reports quoting his wife suggested he took dinner with the family and went to his room to sleep. However, he was found hanging from the ceiling fan in the dining hall. After the victims wife raised the alarm, neighbours and security guard lowered him from the fan and rushed him to a nearby hospital where he was declared dead.

High and dry

Herd immunity is one thing; India needs to do a lot more to protect its people from the pandemic

he COVID-19 vaccination drive in India appears to be wafting in the air with a mind of its own. Never an easy task, what with a billion people to be vaccinated in time to avoid a third surge of the virus, the exercise is taking time even to take off. Whether it is owing to gigantic nature of the task at hand or the scattered nature of the vaccination management plan, one is not sure. The bare facts of the case, if the pandemic is to be brought under control at the very least by the end of this year, are before us. Scientists believe a minimum of 70 per cent of the population needs to be vaccinated for the herd immunity to set in. In India, that means the immunity can be achieved if nearly 94 crore people receive both doses of the vaccine. At two doses each, that calls for 188-odd crore doses. That is a tall order. Even if one were to scale down the vaccination to one dose under the assumption that it is better to give at least half protection to all than complete protection to only a few, even then, just under a 100 crore doses are needed. Where to get the doses from? How long will it take to acquire them? How long will it take to complete the vaccination process? If, at the end, it is only one dose that is given, an identical task stares at the country for giving the second dose.

Bear in mind that all this is for vaccinating only 70 per cent of the population. That means just about a third of the population will be left high and dry unless they largely constitute children who are yet to come under the purview of vaccination. The Serum Institute of India has said it will be in a position to produce 10 crore doses a month after July. One can assume that Bharat Biotech can produce anywhere between five and six crore doses a month after July. Zydus Cadila and Dr Reddy's Labs will be able to pitch in with threeodd crore doses a month. That can stretch the total figure of available doses per month close to 20 crore by August 2021 or thereabouts. That leaves five months till December to complete the task of giving around 100 crore doses. There are reports that are not so confident; they contend that the task may actually take over two or even three years. In any case, assuming the exercise ends by December, a population of 94-odd crore will receive one effective dose or half of them will get two doses each, as the case may be. The result is there for all to see: It is simply impossible to achieve herd immunity before the end of 2021 unless 188 crore doses are available at once and an unprecedented, organised, synchronised, national campaign is undertaken to complete the process in five months. The question to the Centre goes abegging: Where is the plan?

Amid the raging contagion, a handful of politicians are providing comic relief to citizens, albeit unintentionally handler Muriel Bing of the Friends fame said in the series: "I'm not great at advice. But can I interest you in a sarcastic comment?" Something simmer Chief Minister Trivendra Singh Rawat. The BJP leader, no less adept at stoking controversy as the incumbent Tirath Singh Rawat, has now taken to bat for the accursed Novel Coronavirus because, as it would appear, everybody is only hurling doses of vituperation at the poor pathogen. Choosing to look at it "from a philosophical angle", Rawat said that the virus is a "living organism which has a right to live". In the same vein, he warned the human species that despite considering ourselves to be the most intelligent on the planet and out to eliminate the virus, the killer is sensible enough to keep mutating itself. Slipping into some sense midway, he also clarified, to his credit, that people need to outpace the virus to stay safe. So far, so good! By that logic, do we need to go and offer ourselves to a tiger just because it has a life and the right to life? If the virus has the right to live as an organism, all of us don't?

And, as most of us would agree, the new-age politicians are nothing less than pernicious viruses. But do they really need to open their trap and prove it? As the old saying goes, it is better to keep your mouth shut and let the world think that you are a fool, rather than open it and remove all doubts! The unusual observation, as must Tool, rather man open it and remove an doubts! In eurobusia observation, as must have been the desired outcome of the former Chief Minister, went viral at a time when the entire country is battling a killer second wave of COVID-19. A Twitter user sarcastically said: "This virus organism should be given shelter in the Central Vista." Another said: "Shri Rawat should invite the virus home, feed it well and stay with it for at least 14 days." All done and dusted, the statement just goes on to show how devoid of empathy are our political leaders who, in spite of seeing the mass scale of devastation in terms of life, employment and business opportunities, can't keep themselves away from courting a headline-worth-of controversy. As Chandler said, one more time: "Handle? I can handle it. Handle is my middle name. Well, actually it's the middle part of my first name."

The endgame in Afghanistan

There's a host of implications emanating from the withdrawal of American troops from that country, and India needs to watch out imates of the number of people, mostly schoolgrifs, killed in three blasts in front of a co-educational school in Kabul on May 8, vary from at least 60 (BBC) to over 85 (CAN). The figure may rise further by the time this column is published. The diabolical intent to kill as many as possible is clear from the fact that a car bomb was first detonated and two improvised explosive devices followed as the grifs rushed out of the school in panic.

Two questions arise. Who is behind this ghastly crime? What are its implications? As to the first, no one has claimed responsibility. The Afghan Government has blamed the first, no one has claimed responsibility. The Afghan Government has blamed the strike. This leaves one with the Islamic State, which has staged terror attack in Kabul and elsewhere in Afghanistan and which retains its ability to strike despite losing a great deal of territory over the months.

The Taliban are the more likely culprits. There is no reason why one should believe them, particularly when the announcement that all American troops will leave

Afghanistan by September 11.
They know they will not win an election and they do not believe in democracy. They want to control Afghanistan by force and establish the Shariar rule.

Will they be able to do it?
What will happen if they do?
The answer to the fighting qualities of the Afghan National Security and Defence Forces (ANDSF), the support they continue to receive from the US and its NATO allies. As to the first, despite serious problems of desertion and unwillingness to enist, the Afghan National Army (ANA), the land warfara mor of the ANDSF, has emerged a battle-hardened force capable of confronting the Taliban and other terrorist organisations it faces. Its commando and special forces units have been particularly successful. Against this, the harsh fact is that the Taliban have expanded their control over huge tracts of Afghanistan's countryside and some cities, besides inflicting a number of heavy defeats on the Afghan troops. At least some of the reverses the later suffered the beginning of 2020 are attributable to the Trump administration's atrocious policies. These included asking the Government forces early in 2020 to go on the defensive in the interest of its peace nego the interest of its peace nego-tiations with the Taliban, and tiations with the Taliban, and arm-twisting it into agreeing to the Taliban demand of releasing 5,000 of their fight-ers in Afghan jails as a precondition for talks. Many of the released fighters have gone back to combat despite the Taliban's promise that they would not do so.

The Taliban, however, began gaining ground even before the Trump Administration's policies and Administration's policies and before the Trump Administration's policies and pressures hampered the ANDSF's operations. Also, while the capabilities of the Afghan troops have improved, a big question mark hangs against the future availability of effective air support, which has played an important role in many of the ANA's successful operations. According to one estimate, 80 to 90 per cent of the air support to it is now provided by the fledgling Afghan Air Force (AAF).

TO KANDAHAR OF THE INDIAN AIRLINES HIJACKED FLIGHT IC-814 IN DECEMBER 1999 SHOWED. THE TALIBAN WERE ACTIVELY PROMOTING TERRORISM AGAINST IT BY JAISH-E-MOHAMMED AND LASHKAR-E-TAIBA. DO WE HAVE A COHERENT POLICY TO MEET THE

The AAF, however, has been supported by the massive air power of the US. Also, international contractors, now doing the bulk of the maintenance work on its planes and helicopters, will depart with the American troops. This will seriously affect its operational capabilities. This underlines the importance of continued American aid. On July 7, 2012, Hillary Clinton, then US Secretary of State, announced in Kabul that President Obama had designated Afghanistan as a major non-NATO ally of the US. The questions are How much and of what kind?

Apart from military hardware, there is a need for funds. Countering ablend of insurgency and terrorism is a very expressive business. The US has provided over 886 billion as security assistance to Afghanistan between financial years 2002 and 2019. Since 2014, it has been providing between five and six ill the untoward dissemination of Coronavirus in India, the econom-Till the untoward dissernination of Coronavirus in India, the economic prosperty and healthcare developments were often considered complementary to each other. During the COVID pandemic, empirical corroborations show the gap between the two has not narrowed down, resulting in lopsided development. Every year, the Union and State Governments while appropriating their annual finances accord utmost priority toward superficial sectors or anciliary enterprises ie insurance sector and profiler marginal policy attention to our medical and health care sectors. It is appalling that since Independence, the percentage-based property allocation in healthread development of general every expected two monetary allocation in healthcare development had never exceeded two per cent of the overall financial allocations. Consequently, it results in a displeasing growth of certain sectors accompanied by social disparity caused by the whopping expenses incurred by the majority of our population in meeting the basic medicinal requirements at private hospitals. This disparity makes the downtrodden masses vulnerable in the spheres of human resource development, in seeking adequate health care benefits from the State. Ergo, the plunder bund-like insurance companies exploit them at their own whims and fancies, which in turn eclipses the economic development and ultimately takes lives of thousands of people in our country due to inadequate healthcare infrastructure. This pandemic has inadvertently helped our economy in highlighting the existing control has insolvertelly religious devolution in jungingling the existing infrastructure lacunaein the medical and healthcare industry. Due to the glaring deficiency of an adequate infrastructure and sufficient human resource in the public hospitals, the most sought-after health care schemes such as Avushman Bharat have also failed to meet the legitimate medicinal demands of the masses during the times of the pandemic. A report published in a leading daily newspaper highlights that barely 10 per cent of the Ayushman Bharat cardholders could take the benefit of this centrally sponsored scheme.

We have witnessed that ICUs, ventilators, availability of RT-PCR facil-tiles, oxygen cylinders, cardiac monitors for operation theatres, electrocar-diogram machines, adequacy of beds available, vaccines, ancillary med-icines and steroids, vertical transport facilities, staff and most importantcones and sterous, vertical transport racinities, start and most important-ly sufficient number of doctors were also inadequate in most of the health-care institutions. Scarcity of testing facilities and vaccines erodes the util-ity of rural and government hospitals and buildozes the poor patients to hasten to distant places for availing urgent treatment. It can be said that the genesis of this problem accentuated in the year 1991 when our counthe general soft with problem accommended in the year 1954 Which out country adopted the LPG (Liberalisation, Privatisation, Globalisation) policy. Since then the government allowed the private sector to take a lead in the health care industry and thereby the state in a gradual manner withdrew from its responsibilities for providing adequate health care means to the masses. This sturted public sector spending on medical services, resulting in excessive reliance upon the private sector in seeking health care benefits. The government needs to realize the fact that the private sector operates in a profit-centric manner and they will not take necessary initiatives to reach the masses at the grass root level. Presently in the rural areas, there are only 0.6 doctors per 1,000 population. A pure mercenary approach in the medicinal industry and inception of users' charges in healthcare sectors have placed the people at a disadvantage. Equilibrium in appropriating budgetary allocation between other sectors of our economy and the healthcare sector is a very crucial policy decision, which our country urgently needs to address for saving the lives of thousands of people who are dying due to the pandemic. Earmarking adequate precedence to the health care sector has also become non-negotiable in the present scenario.

Time to embrace the biological revolution

It is an inevitable, irreversible fact. Also, it hides within itself the potential of biological research and its unique opportunities for humanity hile ushering in the era of the biological revolution one cannot fall to notice that one of the biggest ironies in biology is that microbes, which are the oldest self-replicating organisms on earth and which were among the last to be discovered, have largely been ignored. it almost to the brink of disaster, partly because of the late discovery of microbes and

The lack of attention to micro-organisms is largely due to our observational bias. We biophysicists are work-Biologists in collaboration with biochemists, biophysicists are working hard to cutting-edge research on most of the areas of the burning issues to meet the demands of the growing population that consumes more and more transportable forms of stored energy. Scientists are turning to alternative sources of renewable energy like solar, hydrowind and tide. But our energy needs are still not being met because of their intermittent supply and needs are still not being met because of their intermittent supply and time difference between their production and demand. The alternative renewable energies are getting cheaper, better all the time. However, we are yet to find a way to store these energies ineffective, cheap, reliable ways, without much creation of waste.

If biologists can devise a battery that allows owercoming intermittency problems inherent in solar, wind, and other renewable sources, we could use clean and abundant sources to meet all our energy needs.

energy needs. The battery converts chemical energy to electrical energy by mov-ing electrons from one metal to another. Electrons are tiny negative-ly charged particles. The copper-zinc plates form positive and negative poles. It conducts the electric current. It can go as long as all the electrons get transferred. Thus, a battery is an energy transportation device. When the battery is discharged, we use electricity to charge. Dr. Angela Belcher, material scientist at MIT, is evolving viruses into variants that could organize non-biological materials such as gallium arsenide and silicon for semiconductors. Her experiment gave her confidence to build new tools to build batteries. She found that metals and metal oxides that metals and metal oxides worked particularly well. She found that viruses-building elements could be used to make electrodes that can open a door to clean and efficient, new way for making batteries. Her next step is a virus-based state of art battery, but could this battery take the form of a dashboard, seat cover, door panel? Nobody knows.

Until recently, it was undisputed that cell membrane itself is a medium for exchange of water from cells and outside. Dr Peter Agre, molecular biologist at John Hopkin's Institute, in 1980 while purifying Rh protein from red blood cell membranes to identify it made a discovery that the membrane has Rh protein that works as a gate and alters a particular substance whole with a pass to allow entry into the cell. These proteins are known as aquaporins.

Starting with a large volume of the red blood cells, he separated the cell membrane from the rest of its content. Next, he carefully isolated Rh protein from other persent proteins. We all need fresh water to survive but it is only five per cent of the total water volume of the earth. Most of it is in ice sheets and the soil.

Hence, water purification is critical for human survival. This idiscovery will use cell proteins of the cell membrane to purify water. We now know the whole family of aquaporin found in virtually all organisms on earth. A particular amino acid occupies a particular amino acid water.

Contrary to the theory by a famous economist, thomas Robert Malthus, the world would be rengulfed by war, famine and pestilence, but the convergence of biology and engineering is giving us great hope that we can avoid the gloomy future. How to bring together researchers from the fields of science for a collaborative effort in bioengineering by encouraging antional investment in fundamental research that motivates scientists to work in interdisciplinary areas.

For all this to happen we must be field of bloogy, where scientists and technologists can work on a platform to defer the sixth mass extinction of Holocene or Anthropocene.

experts leading the fight against pandemic. It may not be an exaggeration if one assumes India's second wave COVID battle is being fought in courts, national and local administrative offices. Each one in their desperation or compulsion to make the right announcement is giving a one in their desperation of compulsion to make the right announcement is giving a siloed decision, often over-reaching each other's territory, therefore creating an unwarranted bottleneck at a critical time. Examples have been quoted of differences between Delhi and Mumbai and will continue to be a case study for any future pandemic management, but what it showed was any governance has to start right at the colony cluster level. The biggest bunch of caregivers/administrators/counsellors are right in the neighborhood and therefore healthcare and civic infrare healthcare h althcare and civic infrastructure has to be upgraded at the mohalla level. Tossing a few social media posts with glossy pictures of infrastructure fail to impress when a person urgently needs to breathe. Running to courts to intervene is allowing the judiciary to walk into executive's core responsibilities while presenting a united face to any calamity/war or crisis is one of the basic rules of public administration. One does not start to gain brownie points before the unconnected and potentially dangerous parties during a criss situation. It is shocking to see central, state, local administrations if not judiciary, creating opposing guidelines for Covid management or trying to control surge with delays. Second, it is important for those at the top to understand that the pandemic is a blunt reminder of the gross neglect of rationale domain experts in policy making and governance. India still is governed by bureaucrats, who by training are generalists with no special domain knowledge for han-dling new world challenges and therefore solutions. Political leaders of any hue would always cater to their Political leaders of any hue would always cater to their constituencies and come up with the most populist schemes, which may or may not impact lives and livelihoods in the long term. An example, free food distribution, while at a humanitarian level it is a noble move yet ensuring a continuous supply of government subsidized ration is the only long-term solution. If the o'ne nation one ration card had been operationalised in major parts of India, along with various schemes for migrants and those out of the tose of the discount of the control of the contro migrants and those out of the social net, tons of public secsocial net, tons of public sec-tor human resources such as agement in hardina and state governments (if not local) the permanent tag of India facing worst Covid wave in the world could have been avoided.

Finally, the truth no matter however harsh or shaming if told honestly and with compassion, always benefits the corator. The government has been avoiding queries on vacination supply and distribution. All domain experts have been suggesting vaccination being the only long-term solution for protecting a large chunk of population and avoiding mass graves. The government had nearly eight months to be prepared for the current onslaught and has been blessed with one of the largest vaccine manufacturing sites in the world, along with a home grown vaccine. It therefore cuts a very sorry figure when despite all the wealth and a team to push India to the next lever of growth, only about 10 per cent of the population has been vaccinated while a sizeable chunk of India, even inmost impacted districts of Delhi and Mumbai, are battling if or aigh in the arm. The current vaccine distribution policy of the government is opaque and needs clarity along with an almost daily update on the pipeline for next few months. Estimates suggest nearly one per cent of the India population would be willing to pay for vaccines. Government must priorities COVID3 management by securing nearly 1.5 billion vaccines for India in the next few months.

While the demands for resources may have less-ened with the falling number of cases this month, the incidents which the volunteers share haunt them and give a detailed insight into the insides of a relief group formed due to the necessity that emerged out of the cur-rent pandemic.

THE BEGINNING
For Abu Sufiyan, founder of Purani Dilli Walo Ki Baatein, it began when some symptoms started to show among a few of his team members in early April, who were then asked to quarantine and work from home. He got himself tested for COVID-19. Even though the reports were negative, the symptoms were evident. Medical experts alerted him to stay at home since they felt it could be the new mutant spreading in India, which wasn't being detected by the RTPCR tests though the symptoms turn out to be more severe. He shared, "I started searching for resources for my team as a few of their family members had severe symptoms. And soon, social media and our group was flooded with requests from people in the capital who were looking for COVID resources desperately. There were SOS calls for hospital beds, plasma, Remdesivir, oxygen support, concentrators, cylinders and refillers, ven-tilator beds, other life-saving medi-cines like the Tookizumah and end-tilation to the control of the control of the couldn't cook. The demands for ICU home setup followed soon after when people realised how hospitals were now too crowded, understaffed and unequipped. We started prepar-ing lists of verified contacts for the respective needs and put them out as a consolidated information." How did you get involved?

As soon as I read the script and the character description of Peng, I just fell in love with him, so I decided to audition for the tor Jill Culton pitch Peng to you?

Just that he's a fun-loving, energetic kid. He is always intended to be the younger character and almost comic relief, but with more depth than that. He is also the optimistic one of the group. He's always playing, and when other people are about to give up, he really wants to continue the journey. He has a ton of fun on this adventure with Everest. Peng is the only one, along with Everest, who seems to be taking this journey more like a vacation. When the others are considering the next step, he's over ther having a thumb war with Everest.

Actor ALBERT TSAI says that it is human nature to be drawn to what hasn't been confirmed or discovered yet. By TEAM VIVA

What did you want to bring to the role?

I did try to really infuse some of my personality into Peng. A lot of his body language and movements were sort of inspired by what I did in the recording booth because they had a camera on us when we were recording the audio, just to see what we would do. Being a TV actor, I did the movements along with the lines, which was natural for me and that they imported onto Peng.

Did Peng change at all as the film evolved?

He stayed more consistent through the various stages of production. I feel like he was always going to be the younger member of the group, the comedic heart. I think there were slight personality changes...

I don't know if he was quite the basketball aficionado that he became.

creatures that we're so obsessed with?

I think it's just part of our obsession with mythical creatures. We love the unknown, and what we haven't confirmed or discovered yet. Also, what's real-yeacting is, we bring a different version of the Yet1 into the film, as opposed to sticking to the normal depiction, which is movement who is meant and scary. We bring a cuter, more innocent version. He's got these powers, which aren't normally part of the Yet1 mythology, so it's really fun, jill [Culton] said she wanted to base Everest off of her experience with her dogs, which is why he sort of has dog-like qualities. But he also has his own emotions and he's quite intelligent.

OWas it fascinating to see the film come to life step by step?

of challenge was that as an actor?

It was definitely very different than what I am used to A lot of times in the recording sessions, we would do a certain line several times, changing the nuance, and then wed move on to the next one. It had a sequential approach, and we could play around with it a lot more lill was so collaborative, along with the whole team, and nothing had been set in stone yet, so we were able to ad lib a bit and improve here and there. The few recording sessions we did do together as a cast were a lot of fun, too, because that was more like traditional acting.

"You're a big fan of animated film. Any favorites?
