CM makes aerial surveys of flood-affected areas

_Sidhharth Singh_ (Uttar Pradesh government)

Lucknow (PNS): The Uttar Pradesh government on Sunday carried out aerial surveys of flood-affected areas by using drones to assess the extent of damage. The state government said that the survey was carried out in response to the severe floods that have affected several districts in the state, resulting in the loss of life and property. The survey covered areas in Lucknow, Kanpur, Allahabad, and Varanasi, among other places.

Lucknow (PNS): “Using a multi-level approach, we have been carrying out ground surveys and aerial assessments to assess the damage to infrastructure and the extent of affected areas. The aerial surveys will help us in more accurately estimating the damages and in planning relief and rehabilitation measures,” said a government official.

Aerial surveys: The aerial surveys were carried out by using drones, which are highly effective in capturing detailed images of large areas with high precision. The images captured by the drones will be analyzed to determine the extent of damage to roads, bridges, and other infrastructure. The survey data will also be used to identify areas that require urgent attention and prioritization for relief efforts.

Relief and rehabilitation: The survey data will be used to guide the distribution of relief supplies and to prioritize rehabilitation efforts. The state government is preparing to distribute food, shelter, and other basic necessities to the affected populations. The aerial surveys will also help in identifying areas that require immediate action to prevent further damage.

Flood-affected areas: The aerial surveys were conducted in areas such as Lucknow, Kanpur, Allahabad, and Varanasi, which have been severely affected by the floods. The surveys will also be carried out in other affected areas to assess the extent of damage.

Conclusion: The aerial surveys carried out by Uttar Pradesh government will help in more accurately assessing the damages caused by the floods and in planning effective relief and rehabilitation measures. The state government is working closely with other agencies to ensure that relief efforts are carried out efficiently and effectively.
Covid resources to be used in cases of dengue, malaria

Most of the fever cases in UP include dengue, scrub typhus, leptospirosis.

SHAKTHI KREDDISH
LUCKNOW

Most of the viral fever cases admitted in Vrindavan and those of dengue, leptospirosis, scrub typhus, and malaria, according to DG, Medical and Health, Dr Yadvind Trivedi.

The dengue cases have been covered in all other districts of UP except for Mathura and Allahabad where numbers are high.

The department will monitor the situation of dengue in Faizabad, Sitapur, and Allahabad in April this month. The officials will then forward these reports to the health centres after which monitoring of the cases and treatment of the patient will also be continued.

The officials will also monitor the febrile cases in all the areas of UP for quick treatment.

The health centres of Vrindavan, Allahabad, and Mathura will be monitored for collection of samples and treatment of the patients.

All the arrangements made for Covid will be initiated for dengue control and a hotline number 150320 will be made available for free registration forms for both Covid and dengue.

The DMO directed the CMO to ensure availability of an ambulance round the clock to deal with any emergency situations. The 'Multi-Doctor' set up should function and will have to conduct five check-ups daily, he said.

The DMO also directed the district magistrate of Mathura to carry out investigation in cases of dengue in Mathura in April this month. Mathura has witnessed 84 dengue cases in April and 8 in March. Mathura saw 57 cases of dengue in August and 2 in March.

Dharmendra Pradhan has been appointed as the chief of the task force for dengue and malaria.

The district magistrates of Mathura, Faizabad, Sitapur, and Allahabad will carry out fogging in areas where dengue cases are reported.

The health centres of Mathura, Faizabad, Sitapur, and Allahabad will ensure the execution of the campaign for fogging in all areas.

Leptospirosis is caused through contact with contaminated water or food containing leptospirosis. The patients who are suffering from the disease take antibiotics for it, " he said.

The DG also said that they have also instructed the medical colleges in the area to treat the patients immediately. The DG also added that there are high fever cases due to which children become dehydrated as they fail to take proper food.

14 days will be used to undergo a negative Covid test before arrival. Passengers flying from the UK to India will have to undergo two doses (single dose for Johnson & Johnson) of a Covid vaccine approved by WHO before travel. The test will be exempt from the 14-day quarantine requirement.

In addition to WHO-approved vaccines, the UK Government and Indian authorities have also agreed that the Indian-made Covaxin and Covishield vaccines will be accepted for travel. This means those who have received both doses of the vaccine in India can travel to the UK without having to undergo quarantine. Those who have received one dose of a WHO-approved vaccine and one dose of an Indian-made vaccine will also be allowed to travel.

Some additional requirements include presenting a negative PCR test result from the last 72 hours before departure and completing a predeparture health declaration form. Those who fail to meet these requirements will be denied entry and returned to their point of origin.

For more information, please visit the UK Government’s official travel advice page at https://www.gov.uk/travel-advice/coronavirus-for-pay-travelers.
Rise in sale of antimalarials and medicines

The traders of the Prayagraj Municipal Corporation have started demanding the proper licenses and permit for the sale of drugs, cough syrup, and other medicines. It is reported that the sales of these medicines have seen a rise by 30 per cent in the city with a sudden increase in the price of high-risk antimalarials and medicines. The traders demanded the administration to appoint them as dealers in the city so that they could continue to sell these medicines without any hassle.

Taliban postpone Afghan Govt formation

The Taliban have postponed the formation of a new Afghan government for a second time after weeks of intense negotiations that have failed to produce a consensus. The Taliban had previously set a deadline of August 30 for the formation of the government, but that deadline has now been extended.

The Taliban's decision to postpone the formation of the government comes after weeks of talks between the Taliban and the Afghan government's delegation led by Abdullah Abdullah, the head of the Afghan High Council for National Reconciliation. The talks have been bogged down over the issue of the role of key officials, including the president and the prime minister.

The Taliban have also announced that they will not allow women to participate in the government, a move that has sparked international condemnation.

Taliban statement

"We have made a decision to postpone the formation of the government until further notice," the Taliban statement read. "This decision was made after careful consideration and consultation with our leadership.

"We believe that the new government must be representative of all Afghans and must reflect the will of the Afghan people. We will continue our efforts to reach a consensus on the government's formation, and we will keep the international community updated on our progress.

"We call on the Afghan government to conciliatory and fully cooperating with the Taliban to achieve a peaceful and inclusive government that meets the needs of all Afghans.

"The Taliban are committed to building a better future for Afghanistan, and we will continue to work tirelessly to create a just and inclusive society for all Afghans.

"We thank the Afghan people for their patience and understanding as we work towards a better future for our country."

The world has yet to recover from the new variants of Delta, which is keeping the Governments and citizens across the globe on their toes and looking for ways to avoid the next wave. But now, there is talk of COVID-22. The new strain might be a combination of the variants Delta, Beta and Gamma. SUPRIYA RAMESH speaks with experts to know in-depth about the new strains and whether the existing vaccines will be helpful.

VARIANT C.1.2

The first case of this new variant Covid-1.2 was discovered in South Africa and found at least one strain. While there is not much known about the C.1.2 variant currently. However, the directorate of the World Health Organization (WHO), Dr. Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus, has confirmed that the variant is spreading slowly and could reach a higher number of people in the next six months. The WHO has recently been discussing the spread of the South African strain, which was sequenced throughout the COVID-19 pandemic. The virus is growing rapidly in South Africa and could become a major concern. The current pandemic is now being driven by the South African strain, which is more transmissible and has a higher viral load.

He states that there are a few cases of the virus that have been reported in other countries as well. While the virus is still in its early stages, it is important to understand the evolution of this strain, in light of COVID-19 and other emerging variants. Dr. Nayar advises that it’s important to be cautious and take all necessary precautions to avoid the spread of the virus.

The country’s top virologist, Dr. Sandeep Nayar, Senior Director and HOD, Centre for Chest and Respiratory Disease, BLK Max Super Speciality Hospital, says, “We need to remain cautious and take all necessary precautions to avoid the spread of the virus.”

Nayar says that we can’t predict what the consequences of the new variant will be. But it’s important to be cautious and take all necessary precautions to avoid the spread of the virus.

■ TREATMENT

As of now, the treatment of COVID-19 is support care till the patient acquires the virus. If they have no symptoms, we can’t tell if they are infected or not. However, if we use the COVID-19 appropriate behaviour, if we wear masks, maintain social distance, we are safe. Although, it will be different in terms of its new wavelengths, severity rate, “Kumar tells you.

■ SYMPTOMS

Nayar says that we can’t predict what the consequences of the new variant will be. But it’s important to be cautious and take all necessary precautions to avoid the spread of the virus.

The country’s top virologist, Dr. Sandeep Nayar, Senior Director and HOD, Centre for Chest and Respiratory Disease, BLK Max Super Speciality Hospital, says, “We need to remain cautious and take all necessary precautions to avoid the spread of the virus.”

To protect ourselves from the emerging viruses, we have to update our vaccines also. We don’t know when it might hit us but we have to gauge its severity. The vaccines might not be effective against it.

To gauge its severity, the vaccines might not be effective against it.

As the time comes, as the viruses mutate, our vaccines will also have some observation in between. After we have covered both the doses, we will need to subject the vaccines to some observations in between. As we are going to evaluate the effectiveness of the vaccines, we will be making booster doses for sure.

While bilateral exigencies demand diplomatic attention, it is essential for India to support Afghanistan as its strategic & developmental partner, writes CHAYANKA SAXENA

The recent spate of events, which amongst other things, has witnessed an upsurge in diplomatic and military engagement between India and Afghanistan, is an expression of the new reality of the 21st century. Afghanistan, which is steeped in a complex history of conflict and displacement, has found itself at the center of geopolitical strategic interests. India, with its historical ties and military presence in the region, has been a key player in this dynamic environment. The recent developments, including the Taliban’s seizure of power, have triggered a series of diplomatic efforts to stabilize the situation.

However, India’s engagement in Afghanistan is not a new phenomenon. India has been involved in the Afghan region for several decades, primarily through development assistance and humanitarian aid. The latest round of diplomatic efforts is a continuation of this long-standing engagement.

The Indian government has consistently emphasized the importance of a stable and prosperous Afghanistan. India’s efforts are aimed at promoting development, ensuring security, and fostering regional cooperation. The recent developments in Afghanistan have provided an opportunity to re-examine these efforts and to strengthen India’s diplomatic and military presence in the region.

India’s approach in Afghanistan is multi-faceted. It includes diplomatic engagement, development assistance, and military cooperation. India’s strategic interests in Afghanistan are rooted in its desire to maintain regional stability and to ensure that instability in Afghanistan does not spill over into its own territory. India also sees Afghanistan as a gateway to Central Asia and a potential entry point for trade and investment.

The Indian government has emphasized the importance of a political solution to the Afghan conflict. India has been a vocal advocate of a peaceful transition, and it has been involved in various diplomatic efforts to support a political process. India has also been active in supporting humanitarian aid and development projects in Afghanistan.

India’s engagement in Afghanistan is part of a broader strategy to promote regional cooperation and stability. India’s approach is characterized by a commitment to supporting sustainable development and peace, and it is aimed at fostering a long-term solution to the Afghan conflict.

In conclusion, India’s engagement in Afghanistan is a reflection of its strategic interests and its desire to promote regional stability. India’s efforts are aimed at supporting a political transition, promoting development, and ensuring security in the region. India’s approach is characterized by a commitment to supporting sustainable development and peace, and it is aimed at fostering a long-term solution to the Afghan conflict.

The Indian perspective on Afghanistan

India's engagement in Afghanistan is driven by several strategic interests. India views Afghanistan as a gateway to Central Asia and a potential entry point for trade and investment. India also sees Afghanistan as a region of strategic importance, given its proximity to Pakistan and the Central Asian countries.

Regressive policies and an over-inflated real estate market have made residential rentals an unviable proposition for the affordable housing complex scheme in the first of four part series. Climate resilient development requires climate considerations to be mainstreamed into planning. Strategies must be integrated into building bye-laws & national construction codes to ensure large scale adoption, writes RUCHIE KOTHARI
Sincerely, 3 September 2021

dear Sir, Miss,

In his annual address to the nation on 9 September, Prime Minister Narendra Modi underscored his party’s efforts over the last five years to create a new India. He highlighted the country’s progress in areas like infrastructure, healthcare, education, and women empowerment.

I find it pertinent to highlight some of the key initiatives and achievements under the Modi Government.

1. Infrastructure Development: The government has embarked on a massive infrastructure development drive, with focus on roads, rails, and ports. The National Highways Authority of India (NHAI) has undertaken several projects to improve road connectivity across the country. Similarly, the Railway Board has been working on the development of the rail network.

2. Digital India: The government has made significant strides in the digitalization of the country. The National Portal of India has been established as a platform for all government information and services. The UPI (Unified Payments Interface) system has been widely adopted, providing a secure and convenient mode of payments.

3. Education: The government has launched several initiatives to improve education quality, especially in rural areas. The National Education Policy (NEP) 2020 aims to provide a comprehensive and inclusive education system.

4. Health: The government has taken several steps to improve healthcare facilities. The National Health Mission (NHM) covers various aspects of health, including vaccination, health and family welfare, and disease control.

5. Women Empowerment: The government has launched several schemes to empower women, such as the Pradhan Mantri Mari Ujjwala Yojana (PMUY) and the Pradhan Mantri Matru Vandana Yojana (PMMVY).

In conclusion, I commend the government’s efforts in various sectors to improve the lives of Indians. The achievements, coupled with the vision for the future, give hope for a brighter tomorrow.

Yours sincerely,
