GSI KHNERS WORLD VIEW

The invasion of Ukraine by Russia has led to the destruction of logistics terminals at a military airfield near Odessa. This has been followed by the occupation of several border areas, including two railway yards, by the Russian army. The situation in Ukraine is tense and rapidly evolving, with reports of fighting and civilian casualties.

In addition to the military actions, the Russian government has been accused of attempted psychological warfare in the form of disinformation campaigns, cyber attacks, and the spread of propaganda through social media.

It is clear that the invasion of Ukraine is the result of a complex set of geopolitical factors, including historical tensions, economic interests, and ideological differences. The international community is divided in its response, with some countries supporting Ukraine and others supporting Russia.

The situation in Ukraine is a severe problem that requires a diplomatic solution, and it is hoped that the international community will work together to find a peaceful resolution.

Media in Russia

Media in Russia faces significant challenges due to government control and censorship. The Russian government has been accused of using its media monopoly to spread disinformation and suppress critical voices. The media landscape in Russia is dominated by state-owned media outlets, which are closely aligned with the government and often promote the official narrative.

International organizations and human rights groups have expressed concern about the state of media freedom in Russia, with reports of harassment, intimidation, and even violence against journalists who criticize the government. The situation is particularly concerning in the run-up to the 2022 FIFA World Cup, where media outlets have faced increased pressure from the authorities.

It is essential for the international community to remain vigilant and support the voices of those who seek to report the truth in Russia. The preservation of media freedom is crucial for a democratic society, and it is important that the Russian government respects the rights of its citizens to express themselves freely.

The Future of Media in Russia

The future of media in Russia is uncertain as the government continues to crackdown on critical voices. It is crucial for international organizations and civil society groups to continue to monitor the situation and support media outlets that are working to hold the government accountable.

It is important for journalists and media outlets to continue to report the truth, despite the challenges they face. The international community must remain committed to supporting media freedom in Russia and to calling out the government's actions to restrict freedom of speech and expression.
India has maintained its strategic autonomy on critical issues and increased its leverage vis-à-vis the essential powers.

First, a critique of India and might argue on the thickness of the cheap book that India and China have, but quite a few incidents of aggression and respect for sovereignty, India scores much higher than China. Also, India initiatives to convince the IMF to help out, but India will encourage others like France and other countries to come to our rescue. The situation is different from the Chinese strategies and further away from the IMF's approach. A multipronged approach, either by the BRICS or the Group of 20 (G20), will help deal with the issue of maintaining the Chinese strategies and further away from the IMF's approach. A multipronged approach, either by the BRICS or the Group of 20 (G20), will help deal with the issue of maintaining the Chinese strategies and further away from the IMF's approach.

Second, India's multipolar policy has a convergence of objectives, but it can be a key policy. The multilateral policy projects in India's soft-power agenda to handle contentious geopolitical issues, India emerging role and contiguous China and the US. India's multilateral policy creates a continued focus on furthering its role in regional and international forums. The distinction between internal and international affairs is that the trust deficit and the resultant crisis continue to be an ongoing and long-standing challenge to the larger objectives of Indian external securities.

From a geo-economic perspective, China's soft-power policy supports the nonprofit sovereignty. The case of India's soft-power policy has been especially important for the developing world. India's soft-power policy has a coercive, defensive, and non-coercive nature. The importance of soft-power policy has been evident in the Indian subcontinent, where China and India have been engaged in a number of conflicts. The distinction between internal and international affairs is that the trust deficit and the resultant crisis continue to be an ongoing and long-standing challenge to the larger objectives of Indian external securities.

In fact, there is an equal or more fear of China's intentions and respect for sovereignty, India scores much higher than China. Also, India initiatives to convince the IMF to help out, but India will encourage others like France and other countries to come to our rescue. Maruti Suzuki looks to ride SUV wave to drive past 50 pc market share

Maruti Suzuki (MS) will keep consolidating its existing product line-up, driven by growing popularity of the small SUV segment in the market, a top company official said on Friday.

The company, which has already announced the recall of the S-Cross, has no immediate plans to launch any new models in the near future. The recall is part of the company’s overall product development strategy to ensure its product offerings are more in line with market demand.

Harsha V. Gopal, Vice-President, Sales and Marketing, MS, said: “The current focus is on consolidating our existing product line-up to drive past 50% market share.”

The S-Cross recall, which was announced last week in multiple SUV products with focus on the S-Cross, is part of the company’s continuous efforts to ensure that its product offerings are more in line with market demand.

Gopal said: “We are committed to delivering quality products that are backed by robust customer feedback. This recall is a testament to our commitment to deliver best-in-class products to our customers.”

The S-Cross recall was announced to address concerns raised by consumers regarding the possible leakage of fuel in the vehicle. The recall is expected to be completed within a few weeks, and customers affected by the recall will be informed via the company’s official communication channels.

Gopal added: “We encourage our customers to bring the vehicles for inspection and rectification as soon as possible. This will ensure that the vehicles are safe for use and meet the highest standards of quality and performance.”

Gopal stressed that the recall is a proactive measure taken by the company to ensure the safety and well-being of its customers. He assured that the company will continue to monitor customer feedback and take necessary actions to address any concerns that may arise.

The S-Cross recall is the latest in a series of measures taken by the company to ensure the safety and reliability of its products. In recent months, the company has also announced recalls for the Vitara Brezza and the S-Presso.

The company has a strong track record of providing quality products and services to its customers. It has been consistently ranked among the top companies in India for customer satisfaction and quality. The company has a wide range of products catering to different customer segments, and it continues to innovate and introduce new products to meet the changing needs of customers.

Despite the challenges posed by the current market conditions, the company remains committed to delivering quality products and excellent customer service. It has a strong focus on research and development and commitment to innovation, which enables it to remain competitive in the highly competitive automotive market.

Gopal concluded: “We are confident that our commitment to quality and customer satisfaction will continue to drive our success in the years to come. We thank our customers for their support and trust.”

Aurobindo, Sun Pharma recall products in US market leading drug firm Aurobindo Pharma Ltd and Sun Pharmaceutical Industries Ltd are recalling different products in the United States amid concerns over contamination.

The US Food and Drug Administration (USFDA) said on Thursday that both the companies have voluntarily initiated the recall of the products.

Aurobindo Pharma is recalling a medication used to treat schizophrenia in adults and children aged 6 and older, while Sun Pharma is recalling an antibiotic for treating infections in patients who are allergic to penicillin.

USFDA said both companies have initiated the recall after receiving reports of potential contamination in the products.

Aurobindo’s product, “Aripiprazole Tablets USP 15 mg”, was recalled due to the potential presence of an impurity known as “2-Aminopurine” in the active pharmaceutical ingredient.

The recall is being conducted as a precautionary measure, and the company is working with its customers to ensure that any affected products are removed from the market.

Sun Pharma’s recall is for its product “Atorvastatin Calcium Tablets USP 40 mg”, which was recalled due to an issue with the packaging of the tablets.

The company has urged customers who have received the recalled products to return them to their pharmacist or disposal area.

Both companies have assured that there is no risk to public health from the recalled products, and the recalls are being conducted to ensure the safety of consumers.

In a statement, Aurobindo said: “We take all necessary steps to ensure that the safety and quality of our products are maintained. We appreciate the co-operation of our customers and patients in this regard.”

Similarly, Sun Pharma said: “We are committed to maintaining the highest standards of quality and safety in our products. We urge our customers to return the affected products as soon as possible.”

Both companies are in close contact with the USFDA to ensure that the recall is carried out in a timely and efficient manner.

In recent months, there have been several recalls of pharmaceutical products in the US, mainly due to issues with contamination or other quality concerns.

These recalls highlight the importance of stringent quality control measures in the pharmaceutical industry to ensure the safety and efficacy of the products.

The USFDA’s recalls database shows that in 2023 alone, the agency has recorded over 100 recalls of pharmaceutical products, which is a stark increase from the previous year.

While the recalls are carried out to ensure the safety of consumers, they can have a significant impact on the affected companies’ bottom lines, as they result in loss of revenue and reputational damage.

However, the industry has widely acknowledged the necessity of these recalls, as they are a crucial part of ensuring the safety of patients receiving medication.

In conclusion, the recalls by Aurobindo and Sun Pharma serve as a reminder of the importance of stringent quality control measures in the pharmaceutical industry. The industry must continue to prioritize safety and quality in its operations, and consumers must remain vigilant and informed about the recalls of their medications.

India’s oil import bill doubles to USD 19 bn in FY22

India’s crude oil import bill nearly doubled to USD 119 billion in the fiscal year that ended on March 31, as energy prices continued to rise for the second year in a row. The bill crossed USD 100 billion for the first time in FY21. The import bill of USD 66.4 billion in FY20 was the lowest in the past two decades.

Of the nearly USD 120 billion spent on crude oil imports in the year, USD 45 billion was spent on Russian crude, which came under sanctions after the invasion of Ukraine. The import bill from Saudi Arabia, India’s top crude supplier, was about USD 37 billion, down from USD 60 billion in FY21.

The carbon-neutral energy transition has led to a sharp rise in oil prices to all-time highs, driven by strong demand for energy and supply disruptions in the oil market. The Brent crude price, a benchmark for global oil, rose to over USD 120 per barrel in early June.

India, the world’s third-largest oil importer, imported 165 million tonnes of crude oil in FY22, up from 144 million tonnes in FY21. The country’s reliance on oil imports is about 85%.

“India’s energy transition is clearly evident in the import bill,” said a government official.

The government has been working to reduce its dependency on oil imports by boosting domestic production and increasing the use of alternative energy sources. The country has set a target of achieving net-zero emissions by 2070.

To achieve this goal, India has been investing in renewable energy and nuclear power. The country has also been working to increase the use of electric vehicles, which consume less energy than traditional vehicles.

Despite these efforts, the import bill has continued to rise due to strong demand and supply disruptions. The government has been working with oil producing countries to secure stable supplies.

“India is working with oil producers to ensure a stable supply of crude oil,” the official said.

The import bill is likely to rise further in the current fiscal year due to the ongoing war in Ukraine and the impact on energy supplies. The government has been working to secure additional supplies through diplomatic efforts.

In conclusion, India’s oil import bill has doubled in the past year, driven by strong demand and supply disruptions. The government has been working to reduce its dependency on oil imports, but the import bill is likely to continue to rise in the coming years due to the ongoing war in Ukraine and other factors.
