Area near Ukraine N-plant hit again despite US pleas

AP BURLINGTON

Russian shelling across the city of Enerhodar, which houses Ukraine’s largest nuclear power plant, continued Wednesday, with US officials warning that any escalation could lead to a full-scale confrontation. The US State Department has called on Russia to immediately stop the shelling.

The Russian military on Tuesday claimed that they had stopped their shelling of the Enerhodar nuclear power plant, citing a “significant” reduction in the number of shelling incidents. However, the United States and other Western nations have said there is no indication that Russia has ended its attacks on the facility.

The US government has warned that any escalation could lead to a full-scale military confrontation, with the possibility of a complete nuclear strike. The US has also said it would consider the use of military force to protect the nuclear reactor.

On Ukraine’s front line, a fight to save premature babies

AP DONETSK

Easing down the corridors of eastern Ukraine’s largest children’s hospital, Dr. Tetiana Myroshnychenko carefully walked past the incubators where premature babies were sleeping. The baby incubators are a critical part of the hospital’s work, and Dr. Myroshnychenko is determined to keep them running.

The war in Ukraine has already taken a toll on medical facilities, with hospitals and clinics struggling to meet the needs of the population. The children’s hospital in Donetsk, which has been heavily shelled in recent weeks, is a front-line target.

“I have to regard such votes as very serious,” said Galina Inyutina, 42, a mother who has become a volunteer nurse at the hospital. “There will be the guerrilla vote. It's important to me but for all Ukrainians, it's important to go and vote and not to be afraid of anything.”

Latvia to topple Soviet-era monument a week after Estonia

AP RIGA

Latvia will take down a Soviet-era monument on Tuesday evening, reportedly at the behest of Latvia’s military, after three days of protests against the move. The military’s action follows a decision by Latvia’s parliament to remove a statue commemorating the Soviet army.

The Latvian government has faced protests and criticism for its decision to remove the statue, which many view as an attempt to rewrite history.

Time stopped: Ukrainians long to go home as war drags on

AP MOSCOW

Russian troops are preparing an attack on Ukraine’s eastern regions, according to Western intelligence. The threat comes as tensions in the region remain high after Russia’s invasion of Ukraine in February.

The Western intelligence assessment suggests that Russian troops are poised to launch an offensive in the Donbas, a region in eastern Ukraine that is home to a large concentration of Russian-speaking communities.

Ukrainian authorities have warned that a Russian attack is imminent and have urged residents to prepare for the worst.
