More trouble for congress
Anand Sharma’s resignation puts Congress in a precarious position in Himachal ahead of polls

The resignation of veteran congress leader Anand Sharma from the Congress’ shadow committee of Himachal Pradesh is a big blow to the Congress in the state which is to go to the polls shortly. The resignation also gives credence to the theory that there is no G-23, a group of dissident congress leaders, who was insubordinate and with the party the way the party is being run by the Gandhs. Sharma’s resignation comes days after Ghusalma Azad resigned from the campaign committee in Jammu and Kashmir. Though it could be a coincidental and not a case of solidarity for a like-minded colleague, it can be for party deciding to set its house in order as the grand old days after GhulamNabi Azad resigned from the campaign committee in Jammu and Delhi-NCR is adding to its woes.

Delhi-NCR's woes continue to add to the already existing problems for the AAP in the national capital region, as party insiders say that there are not very favourably disposed towards the rural gentry—which was spearheading the agitation against the three farm laws a year ago, resulting in huge problems for the people of Delhi and the adjoining cities. Unbothered by the agitation which had a very high emotional quotient. Sentimentalism, which is the bane of politics, took over as people not only took to the streets but also brought their entire lives to a standstill. The rioting which had started in villages and towns was now spreading to bigger cities and towns. The government was unprepared for the violence, which had started off as a protest against the three farm laws.

Although the final product differs from the original film, it is a form of imitation, a reflection of the world around us. Dance is not just a physical expression; it is an embodiment of emotions, and it can reveal different aspects of one's character in various ways. They are the means by which one should be pursued throughout life.

Amruta Chaturvedi, Arya finds that final preparation is a must in difficulties. Also talking to him about the director's approach, he reasons that one should aim to have a sound foundation before attempting to perform. Further, adding about the top three behaviors that people often display as an anxious person, he says, “They are a combination of high risk appetite with a little bit of vulnerability and also impulsive behavior.”

This is a part of our nature, and one should have a strong impact on the lives of others. In short, it is a high-risk person, working at the top of your game, and working as hard as possible. Further, Amruta continues, “Anybody involved in performing arts, they are the most supportive people in the world.”

She adds, “I think the most important thing is to know how to use your voice and how to use your body to express whatever you want.”

The ability to make an impact is something that is most important in preparation. It is by knowing what you want and how you want to do it that you are able to communicate your message. It is in this way that you can achieve your goal.

When asked about the importance of creating a believable character for the role, Amruta says, “It is very important to create a believable character. The audience should be able to relate to the character. It is important to create a character that they can connect with.”
