Three decades later, the journey of Sangeeta continues. Ever since she left home, her husband worked hard and she, too, worked hard to support the family. She wanted to help her children get an education. Her parents were against it, because they believed education was a path to bad things. But Sangeeta was determined to give her children a better future. She knew that education was the key to breaking the cycle of poverty and to give her children a better chance in life.

Sangeeta’s husband would then pick her up from the market and drive her home. She would then spend the next few hours helping her husband with household chores. She would then sit down and study for her next exam.

Sangeeta’s hard work paid off. She passed all her exams and eventually graduated with a degree in economics.

She started working as a teacher and was soon able to support her family on her own. Her children were happy to see that their mother had overcome all the obstacles and was now able to provide for them.

It was a long and difficult journey, but Sangeeta’s determination and hard work paid off. She was able to break the cycle of poverty and give her children a better future.

The House Jan 6 committee concluded its investigations, discovered that at least 1,000 domestic violent extremism movements existed in the US, and a number of the countries of the committee were asked to prevent criminal charges against former President Donald Trump. In another document, the committee described a “concerted effort” by Trump to overturn the 2020 election and said it could be charged with “criminal contempt of Congress”.

The investigation included evidence that Trump’s campaign had tried to pressure state officials in key battleground states to change the votes cast in their state, and that Trump himself had agreed to attend a series of rallies in the days leading up to the election in order to boost his chances of winning.

The committee also found that Trump had met with former Rudy Giuliani, a lawyer for Trump, and other aides in the days leading up to the election, and that Trump had continued to claim that the election was “rigged” and that he was the “winner” even after being certified as the winner by state election officials and the US Supreme Court.

The committee also accused Trump of obstructing justice by trying to pressure Attorney General William Barr to investigate baseless claims of election fraud, and of trying to prevent federal prosecutors from pursuing investigations into his associates.

The committee recommended that Trump’s conduct be referred to Congress for consideration of impeachment, and that any future investigation be conducted by an independent counsel.

The committee’s report is expected to be released in the coming weeks, and the findings could be used as a basis for proceeding with impeachment proceedings against Trump or other members of his administration.

Sugar production has increased by 45-50 lakh tonnes during October 1 to December 15, 2022 period of this marketing year, while mills have already contracted for 45-50 lakh tonnes of sugarcane to meet the export commitments.

Sugar marketing year runs from October to September.

The production of sugar so far this season is 39.7 million tonnes, about 5-6 lakh tonnes lower than the corresponding period of the previous year.

Sugar output is expected to reach about 65-50 lakh tonnes of contract for taxes of sugar for export commitments to the global market, according to a recent report of the Sugarcane and Sugar Mills Association (CNSMA).

Market reports suggest that cane production is all the more crucial as it is in pipeline to be made available for fresh exports by the end of the marketing year.

India exported a record 51.74 lakh tonnes of sugar in 2021-22 marketing year.

India will be a big export bet in the sugar market.
