The clash was sparked by a Chinese military vehicle that reportedly intruded into an area claimed by India as its own in Arunachal Pradesh, a region along the disputed border with China. According to the Indian army, it was leading to a "serious situation" and "a number of Chinese soldiers" were killed. SC to resume hearing of Delhi Genscos vs. discoms' case today

The matter is now pending before the Supreme Court, which had reserved its order on the last hearing.

A Congress leader in MP wants PM Modi killed, though he added that he meant political defeat

Not a day passes when political debate doesn’t degenerate a bit. The first day of the week was no exception with reports pouring in about a Congress leader and former minister in Madhya Pradesh calling for Prime Minister Narendra Modi’s assassination. Addressing villagers, Raja Patana accused Modi of plotting to abolish elections and dividing the country into three categories of people that could not get along.

There is no evidence to suggest that the ablation of elections is on the anvil. What was more objectionable was his remark that the Constitution can only be sounded by killing Modi. According to a report, Patana “did add that by saying I meant political death of Modi.”

What he actually said and can be debated, but the point to be emphasised is that the situation could become even worse if more people write-off the democratic process. The natural corollary is that their advertisers are not asking for more advertising.

Hindustan Janata Party leaders have no particulars in calling anyone they don’t like as ‘anti-national’. All honours attacks have become routine.

de the motto of the G20 summit is “One Family One Future”. It’s rather poetic.

It’s a statement that means that an emerging economy must adapt to cope with the effects of climate change. It’s not in the form of making all governments to adapt to climate change trends.

Towards a global society that aims to be more inclusive and equal opportunities is a step forward. It is an area where we should be able to create an environment of growth.

The G20 summit will be a big success if all nations keep their geo-political differences aside and strive to work for the common good.

Every year thousands of migrants try to reach Europe, risking their lives in the process. The Mediterranean is one of the most dangerous routes, with hundreds of lives lost each year. The European Union is one of the main destinations for migrants, with many seeking refuge from conflict and persecution.

Migrants often face a range of challenges on their journey, including dangerous conditions at sea, lack of access to medical care, and risking their lives to reach Europe. The UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) has highlighted the need for international cooperation to address the global migrant crisis.

In conclusion, the migrant crisis is a complex issue that requires a coordinated response from the international community. The European Union, in particular, needs to do more to address the root causes of migration and provide safe and legal pathways for refugees. It is essential that we work together to ensure that every migrant’s journey is safe and dignified.
