In 1997, when Atal was in China, the situation was different. China, which was the outline of the book, had just signed the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty. Shocked by this test, many countries were pressuring India to sign CTBT, i.e., the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty. Many countries had said that if India did not sign the treaty, it would not keep the promise of non-proliferation. At that time, Atalji said, ‘our nuclear test was not to develop weapons, but to strengthen the bomb, and make it more powerful. We have said that we won’t test weapons, but we will do it once or twice to show the world that we have this weapon. If we don’t test it, we won’t get an equal status in the world.’ India was the only country that was not ready to sign the CTBT. India’s decision was not driven by the fear of the international community, but by the desire to maintain its sovereignty and strategic autonomy. Atalji’s decision was a bold move, and it had a significant impact on the world’s perception of India.

The ANC, once revered as the ideal model of an African liberation movement, is now a cesspool of corruption and state capture. The ANC, once a beacon of hope for the African continent, has turned into a corrupt and divisive force. Thabo Mbeki, the former president of South Africa, was known for his strong leadership and commitment to African liberation. However, under his leadership, the ANC has become increasingly corrupt and divided. The ANC has been accused of favoritism, nepotism, and embezzlement, which has eroded public trust and undermined the party’s legitimacy. Despite its past accomplishments, the ANC has failed to deliver on its promise of radical transformation and social justice. The parties of the left have always been the main opposition to the南非, and this has led to a divide between the two sides. The ANC, however, has been slow to respond to these challenges, and its leaders have been accused of being more interested in their own interests than in the interests of the people.

The ANC has been plagued by allegations of corruption and state capture, which have tainted its reputation and credibility. The party has been accused of involving itself in the private interests of its members, and this has led to a loss of trust among the public. The ANC has also been criticized for its lack of accountability and transparency, which has fueled public anger and resentment. The ANC’s failure to address these issues has led to a decline in its popularity and support, and this has put its survival at risk. The ANC’s future remains uncertain, and it is unclear whether it can regain the trust of the people and redeem its reputation.

Over and over, the ANC tells the story of South Africa.

top UN official in Afghanistan warned that the country is facing a severe humanitarian crisis, with millions of people in desperate need of aid, as he urged the international community to provide more assistance.

The UN's top humanitarian official in Afghanistan, Martin Griffiths, said in a press conference that the situation is "catastrophic" and that the UN is calling for an urgent increase in funding to help the country navigate the post-Taliban era.

Griffiths noted that the pandemic, the war, and the drought have all contributed to the current crisis, which he described as "the worst humanitarian emergency in the world right now.

"We are facing a humanitarian catastrophe," Griffiths said. "Millions of people are in desperate need of food, water, and shelter. We need to act now to prevent a tragedy.

The UN has launched a $3.3 billion appeal for Afghanistan, the largest ever for a single country, to cover the needs of over 26 million people. But so far, only about a quarter of the money has been pledged.

"The international community needs to step up and provide the funding that is so urgently needed," Griffiths said. "We cannot afford to wait any longer.

The situation in Afghanistan has worsened significantly since the Taliban took control of the country in August 2021. The UN has warned that the country is facing "catastrophic" levels of hunger, with millions of people at risk of famine.

Griffiths appealed to countries to provide more financial support to the UN Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA), which is providing assistance to millions of Afghans, including food, shelter, and education.

He also urged wealthy nations to provide more funding for the UN's humanitarian relief efforts in the country.

"We need to do more to support the UN's efforts on the ground," Griffiths said. "The world cannot afford to turn a blind eye to the suffering of millions of people in Afghanistan.

The UN's humanitarian chief called on all nations to "act with urgency and generosity" to help the Afghan people, and to "avoid the temptation of turning a blind eye to the suffering of millions of people who are in desperate need of our help.

"We need to act now to prevent a tragedy," Griffiths said. "The world cannot afford to wait any longer.

Kane on target as PL returns

England captain Harry Kane was the matchwinner on Saturday as he scored twice in Tottenham Hotspur’s 2-1 Premier League victory over Wolves.

The centre-forward grabbed his 15th goal of the season in the 74th minute, latching on to Heung-Min Son’s cross at the near post to make it 1-0.

It was Son’s 20th assist of the season, breaking the record for most assists in a single Premier League season. He had previously shared the record with Tottenham teammate Harry Kane in 2019-20.

Son had earlier equalised with 19 minutes left. His effort was a penalty kick which he converted after Ruben Neves had been brought down in the area by Matt Doherty.

Son, who has scored eight goals in his last four Premier League matches, has now scored twice in his last three league appearances.

Tottenham Hotspur’s victory meant they remain the world’s Premier League champions.
