2,000 Indian students left in lurch in Canada as 3 colleges shut shop

Very few credentials of college before paying fees, caution Indian High Commission in Canada.

More than 2,000 Indian students have been left in the lurch after three colleges in Canada were closed without giving any prior notice, in what has been described as an "inexcusable act of betrayal.""There are only 200 Indian students left in all three colleges. They have been stranded in Canada. We are yet to hear any official statement from the Indian High Commission in Canada," an Indian student told The Daily Pioneer.

According to information obtained from the Indian students stranded at the three colleges in Montreal while 800 were just sitting online from classes in Punjab and other places," the students, who have formed a group of affected students to call for a major appeal for help, said. The students from the three institutions are stranded in the three colleges due to the closure of the college.

"The Indian High Commission has been approached several times by the students," the group said.

The students from the three institutions are stranded in the three colleges due to the closure of the college. The students have been asked to send their credentials to the Indian High Commission in Canada.

"Students from India planning higher studies in Canada are well-advised to check the credentials of the colleges and the standing of the institutions where they are seeking admission before making up their mind to get admission," the students said.

Still, students from the three institutions have been given a grace period of 15 days to make arrangements for their return to India. The students have also been advised to contact the Indian High Commission in Canada for any help.

"We have been given a grace period of 15 days to make arrangements for our return to India. We are still waiting for the Indian High Commission to provide us with any help," a student said.

In a statement, the Indian High Commission in Canada said that it is monitoring the situation and is in touch with the affected students.

"We have been in touch with the affected students and are monitoring the situation," the statement said.

U.S. President Joe Biden has been clear that he is committed to preventing what intelligence agencies are warning will be an attack on Ukraine by Russian President Vladimir Putin, and has repeatedly stated that Russia will face economic sanctions if it invades Ukraine. This is a historic moment in history; the Biden administration is working to ensure that our allies are prepared for any eventuality.

On Friday, the United States and its allies have decided to impose economic sanctions on Russia. These sanctions include a ban on new investment in the Russian financial sector, restrictions on the sale of American goods and services, and a prohibition on new investments in Russian energy. These measures are designed to deter Russia from initiating any military action against Ukraine.

Western Europe and the United States have also pledged to support Ukraine if it is invaded by Russia. The United States has already sent military aid to Ukraine, and other countries have announced they will provide military support if necessary.

The world is watching this situation closely, and there is a high probability of a conflict if Russia invades Ukraine. The United States and its allies are working to ensure that Ukraine is prepared for any eventuality and that Russia is held accountable for its actions.

The situation is evolving rapidly, and we will continue to monitor the situation closely. We encourage all parties to engage in diplomatic negotiations to resolve this crisis peacefully.

The United States and its allies are committed to defending Ukraine and preventing the use of force in the region. We will continue to support Ukraine and its people in the face of this crisis.
Jewellery sector to get export boost

Under India-UAE trade pact, says Comm secy

New Delhi: The domestic jewellery sector will get a boost with the India-UAE agreement, as exports to the Gulf nation will get easier from UAE. The agreement will also make it easier for Indian jewellers to import gold and other precious metals.

Dubais Ministry of Economy, Commerce and Investment has signed a comprehensive economic partnership agreement (CEPA) with India, which will come into force next week.

The agreement will help Indian jewellers to increase exports to the Gulf nation, which is a major market for Indian jewellery. The agreement will also reduce the cost of doing business and make it easier for Indian jewellers to import gold and other precious metals.

Commerce and Industry Minister Piyush Goyal said the agreement will give a fillip to the export-oriented sector with Dubai being an ideal destination for出口-oriented business.

taking a cue from the success story of Dubai’s economy, Goyal said that code-free, govt-facilitated business invites the global community to come.

NEVER OUT OF STYLE

Unlike rayon, nylon and polyester, which are man-made, silk has natural origins. This means that they are environment friendly, are more absorbent and thus, comfortable to wear in all seasons. PRASANNA SAHA shares ways to sustainably use silk fabrics.

LEARNING THROUGH IT

Read about a book, listen to a speech, view a lecture – everything, however you like it, can expand your knowledge. For instance, the book "Silk: A History" by Carol trouve-Hartman provides a comprehensive overview of the history and significance of silk. The author delves into the origins of silk production, the technological advancements, and the cultural and economic impact of silk. As you read, you can gain insights into the world of silk, from its ancient origins to modern applications.

RELEXING SHOLAY

Silk is a material that has been used for thousands of years and is still a popular choice today. It is known for its softness, smoothness, and natural luster, making it a preferred fabric for clothing and accessories. However, it is also known for being expensive and difficult to care for, which can deter some from using it. Nevertheless, with the right knowledge and techniques, anyone can learn how to maintain and care for their silk garments.

TEAMS UP FOR GOOD

The goal of the Silk Preservation and Preservation Collaboration (SPPC) is to combine the efforts of silk artisans and educators to promote the sustainable production and use of silk. By working together, the SPPC aims to educate the public about the importance of preserving and using silk, as well as to support the artisans who create these beautiful garments. This is done through various initiatives, including workshops, seminars, and exhibitions, which provide a platform for sharing knowledge and fostering a sense of community among silk artisans.

Thrice has the casting process evolved over the years?
Finishing ideas that fit and justice to roles have become a significant part of the filmmaking process and with acting being a profession that demands a lot of preparation and practice, the casting process has become a crucial part of the filmmaking process. Many casting directors and agents work wonders for an impressive experience with a tough task and constantly have to keep the right people on the team. That’s why it’s not possible to cast everyone for their fit into the characters written. Individual actors or the entire ensemble has to hold the context together for the balance. It has to be delightful and sakthi sharma casting director for the casting director's behalf and for the performances the actors have done. You get pleasing pleasant messages from the people they work with.

What is casting for a multi-star cast in the modern time?
The casting for a multi-star cast in the modern time requires great talent. The task is to strike the right set of actors for the right story at the right time and cost the easiest.

With casting being the key, how challenging and important the casting process has become in recent years? Casting process is as much for the producer who hires the cast and then we sit and discuss the process. That manages the story and their vision and it specifies they require in the character that way. After hearing the briefing we sit with our team and research the story, in the actor fit and performance. We also consult the introduction and details and the balance of their compatibility with the character. Then we process goes on all over India to find the right fit. We try to deal with the director's vision on casts.

Tell us something about Aarun season 2. It is going to be much more bigger and exciting than season 1. It was an interesting way of casting. Because I wanted to create an ensemble of good actors and cast newcomers as well.

I CAN’T STRESS ENOUGH ON HOW EVERY PART OF OUR COUNTRY IS GIFTED WITH GREAT ACTING TALENT. THE TASK IS TO LEAVE THE RIGHT SET OF ACTORS FOR THE RIGHT STORY AT THE RIGHT TIME AND COST THE EASIEST.

The team leaves on Sunday and will have a four-day break before the match against the West Indies here on Monday. Rohit Sharma was named as the new captain. As it has been this committee’s decision, it becomes a captain, then automatically, he will become the new Test skipper.
India is in the throes of state elections & the buzz is gathering momentum. With the high interest to consume news and views on this subject, it is very important to get the marketing and branding aspects right, writes JAYSHREE M SUNDAR.

Building a Powerful Political Brand is a Huge Challenge — One that Takes Years and Sometimes Gets Destroyed in One Fell Swoop. Here are Three Key Challenges to Contouring the Brand Values and Core Messages As This Does Not Belong to the Usual World of Fast-Moving Consumer Goods.

Engaging the Public Via Live Video
Don't forget 2004: For fast moving goods like soaps and shampoo it is very important to run simultaneou sly to remind the consumer of your brand. High ticket items or high value items require rational medium and therefore print media. Radio and Outdoor and below the line collateral are usually considered secondary or support media.

In the Political World: If you target the rural consumer who works in the field or own his black dye to work then your media are rural, wall paintings sticker posters and posters also the rural women who may work in the agrarian economy or her kitchen. Social Media Has Changed the Game: If you look at social media handles you will find the key political leaders have the highest following. If they are inspirational and enjoy massive popularity people want to know what they are saying and believing. In interesting to note that while the BJP has 1.76 million followers, Prime Minister Narendra Modi has 84 million followers on Twitter. Congress has 4 million followers on Twitter as compared to Rahul Gandhi’s 11.5 million followers. So, people can be bigger than their competitor in the public domain.

While Facebook and Twitter are the social media of choice for their generational profile, more and more politicians are moving to Instagram too. This would help them to cover millennials. What about Generation Z? In the recent US elections, it is said Tik Tok and Snapchat have made to political media. YouTube is the world’s second largest social media channel — it is currently being used for the UP elections.

Brand ambassadors
Regular brands sometimes use a celebrity or a spokesperson to endorse a product to give it impetus. In Political Brands, this is a must. Regular brands can get away with it. In a political scenario this is an absolute must. Because they embody ideologies that the consumer connects to. In the 2021 US elections, the Republicans were represented by the incumbent President Donald Trump. To fit his popularity they had to select the right candidate to endorse their campaign. And they needed to connect the campaign to the voters. The party seemed to be more successful. On the other hand, the BJP was the only political brand to become a household name. As I said in the beginning — when brands are up against the electoral process their core audience is the voter. They key them on issues, the economic condition, the leadership and in India it is important for the leader to control across age groups. Hopefully, the youth. States is in the throes of state elections and the buzz is up in full swing. This will lead up to the general elections in 2024. With the high interest to consume news and views on this subject, it is very important to get the marketing and branding aspects right.

TO BUILD A POLITICAL BRAND

Paradoxically, the urban consumer goes to the cinema to see the latest animated film and is all set to be entertained. It is the best of spectacles in many ways is the new entertainment. In terms of image projection. After all, electoral campaigns are a form of showmanship. And there are many challenges to contouring the brand values and core message in this does not belong to the usual world of Fast moving consumer goods (FMCG). Consumer durables, services and so on.

Let me enumerate the differences as I see it:

- As I said in the beginning — when brands are up against the electoral process their core audience is the voter. They key them on issues, the economic condition, the leadership and in India it is important for the leader to control across age groups. Hopefully, the youth.

-ijn the throes of state elections and the buzz is up in full swing. This will lead up to the general elections in 2024. With the high interest to consume news and views on this subject, it is very important to get the marketing and branding aspects right.

- The difference between rich, poor, urban, rural, men, women, old, young. Every carrier value. In regular brand marketing the 80:20 rule tends to kick in where you focus on heavy users who form 20% of them with examples so that the points, I make is very important to get the marketing and branding aspects right, writes JAYSHREE M SUNDAR.

Canada’s Freedom Convoy

Canada’s Freedom Convoy (CFC) began at the end of January in Ottawa, the capital city of Canada. The protest was a response to the Justin Trudeau government’s decision to invoke the Emergencies Act and subsequently the Rare Emergencies Act of 1888. The flag flown at the event was the “Freedom Convoy” flag, which prominently features the words “Freedom Convoy” in white text on a blue background.

Constitutionally, such protests are a manifestation of the democratic rights of free speech and assembly. However, they also pose a challenge to the government, as they have the potential to disrupt essential services and challenge the rule of law. The Trudeau government, through the invocation of the Emergencies Act, demonstrated an assertive response to the protest, which included deploying police forces, using tear gas, and invoking the law to quell the protest.

The protesters’ cause is multifaceted, encompassing a range of issues such as opposition to COVID-19 mandates, the wearing of masks, and vaccination. They see these measures as infringements on their personal liberties and freedom of choice.

The protest has garnered significant media attention and has sparked a global conversation about the balance between public health measures and individual freedoms. It has also raised questions about the role of social media in the spread of misinformation and the amplification of certain narratives.

The Trudeau government’s response, including the invoking of the Emergencies Act, has been widely criticized as an overreach, raising concerns about the erosion of democratic norms. The government’s actions have also been questioned in terms of proportionality and the use of force.

In conclusion, the Freedom Convoy represents a moment of significant political and social upheaval in Canada, and its implications extend beyond the immediate context of the COVID-19 pandemic. It serves as a reminder of the ongoing debates around the nature of democracy, the role of government in times of crisis, and the importance of balancing public health concerns with individual rights.
