Yogi launches only attack on Opposition in Hathras rally

Hathras: The BJP is leaving nothing to chance when it comes to defending Assembly seats of Hathras and Bulandshahr in the upcoming state assembly elections, with sources saying that the party has already initiated the spending of Rs 10 lakh in both the seats. The Chief Minister said that the BJP was not taking anything for granted and had initiated election activities in both the seats.

On Saturday, Prime Minister Narendra Modi, addressing an election rally in Bulandshahr, said, “This is the most important seat in the country. We will have to ensure the victory of our candidate. The power of the 10 lakh will be doubled by the people here.”

On Sunday, the Prime Minister will address an election rally in the four-seat assembly constituency of Hathras, but in the meantime, the party’s strategies have already been launched. The sources said that the party had planned to spend Rs 10 lakh in each of the two seats.

The sources said that the party was ensuring that all the possible efforts were being made to ensure victory in both the seats. The sources said that in Hathras, the party had already started election activities, while in Bulandshahr, the party had planned to start its election activities soon.

The sources said that the party had also initiated a mechanism to ensure transparency in the expenditure incurred in the elections. The sources said that the party had also instructed the candidates to ensure that no expenditure was incurred beyond the prescribed limit.

The Kamikaze hijack controversy has triggered a spate of pettions in courts. One of the petitions filed in Pakistan has now been heard, and the government has decided to defend itself in the court. The government has also filed a counter-petition in the court, arguing that the hijack was a terrorist act and that the petitioner has no legal right to intervene in the matter.

In the meantime, the government has taken steps to ensure the safety of the passengers on board the hijacked aircraft. The authorities have also been working to negotiate with the hijackers, in an attempt to resolve the situation peacefully. The government has also been providing psychological support to the families of the passengers and crew members.

The hijack has caused considerable concern among the international community, with several countries expressing their concern and offering their support. The international community has also been working to ensure that the passengers and crew members are treated with dignity and respect.

The situation remains volatile, and the government is working tirelessly to resolve the matter. The authorities are hopeful that a peaceful resolution can be reached in the near future, and that the passengers and crew members will be released safely.
Guinea-Bissau is a cocaine transit point, apart from being one of the poorest African nations.

Military coups are back in fashion in Africa. There have been at least 45 military coups in the past two decades and the region has seen at least 20 coups since 1990 alone. The latest is in Guinea-Bissau. Guinea-Bissau is one of the poorest and least well regarded of Africa’s 53 countries. The country’s neighbour, Guinea, more distant Equatorial Guinea, and very distant Sierra Leone have all had up to 20 coups each since 1990, and the two larger countries, Nigeria and South Africa each have two distinctions: it has seen 9 coups or attempt ed coups since 1980, and it is the country of Africa with most political assassinations.

The most recent successful coup in Guinea-Bissau was the 2012 “coup” led by army chief of staff General Antonio Induta. A war, leading to a cut throat battle between the president, Alpha Condé, and the chief of the military, led to a compromise.

On February 20, 2023, the government announced it had arrested 31 people suspected of coup. According to the government, the coup attempt, which involved around 200 soldiers, occurred in the early hours of February 19.

The military coup in Guinea-Bissau is a significant event as it is the first political crisis in the country since the 2019 elections. The coup attempt comes amid a growing political crisis in the country, with the government facing criticism for its handling of the economy and corruption.

The country has been plunged into political crisis since the 2019 elections, which were marred by violence and allegations of fraud. The government of President Alpha Condé was toppled by a military coup in 2012, and the country has been governed by a series of military-backed governments since then.

The coup attempt comes as the country faces a growing economic crisis, with inflation and unemployment rising. The government has been criticized for its handling of the economy, and there are concerns about the safety of human rights.

The political situation in Guinea-Bissau remains fragile, and there is a risk of further instability in the region. The international community has called on the military to return power to civilian rule. The new military government has promised to hold elections in the coming months, but it remains to be seen whether these will be free and fair.

The situation in Guinea-Bissau highlights the ongoing political instability in many parts of Africa, where coups and political crises are a common occurrence. The region faces a number of challenges, including political instability, economic difficulties, and human rights violations, and the international community needs to work to address these issues and support democratic institutions.
Kremlin signals more talks with West amid Ukrainian tensions

Moscow: Russia’s top diplomat said on Monday that he expects a Matthew Ponds on Monday to continue to keep his US counterpart, a signal that the Kremlin is preparing to receive talks. Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov said he would agree to sit down with US Secretary of State Antony Blinken at a meeting this month. Lavrov also said that the discussions would focus on key issues, including arms control, nuclear disarmament, and economic cooperation.

Lavrov’s comments came three days after he met with US President Joe Biden in Washington, DC, where they agreed to start the process of arms control talks. Biden said he was confident that the talks would be productive, and that they would lead to a reduction in nuclear weapons.

The US has recently stepped up its efforts to engage Russia in arms control talks, as the new administration of President Joe Biden has signaled its intention to reverse the previous administration’s policies. Biden has also called on Russia to reduce its nuclear arsenal and to engage in talks to limit the development of new weapons.

Lavrov said that the US had made a number of suggestions for arms control talks, including proposals for a new treaty to limit the development of new weapons. He added that Russia was ready to engage in discussions on these issues, but that the US needed to make concrete proposals.

The US and Russia have been engaged in arms control talks for several years, but they have made little progress. The last major arms control agreement, the New Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty (START), expired in February 2021 and negotiations for a new treaty have been stalled.

The US has repeatedly called for a new arms control agreement, while Russia has been more cautious, arguing that it needs to see more concrete proposals from the US before it will engage in serious negotiations.

The talks with Russia come amid rising tensions between the US and Russia, including the situation in Syria, where Russia has been accused of supporting regime forces, and in Ukraine, where Russia is accused of supporting separatists.

On Parkland tragedy, Biden urges gun controls on Congress

Washington: Four years after 17 students and two staff members were killed at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School, President Joe Biden has once again called for gun controls. Biden said that it is time for Congress to pass a comprehensive package of gun laws, including an assault weapons ban.

Biden said that the US continues to be a nation divided by ideology, where the political landscape is polarized and the divide is getting larger by the day. He added that it is time for Congress to pass gun laws that are common sense and that will save lives.

Biden has long been a champion of gun control measures, and has called for an assault weapons ban and for universal background checks.

In 2019, Biden signed an executive order that required the Department of Justice to ban the sale of military-grade firearms. The order was later blocked by a federal court, but Biden has vowed to try again.

Despite the push for gun controls, Congress has been slow to act. In 2019, the House of Representatives passed a bill that would expand background checks, but it died in the Senate. In 2020, the Senate blocked a vote on an assault weapons ban.

In his State of the Union address in 2021, Biden again called for gun controls, specifically an assault weapons ban and expanded background checks.

Electoral fraud trial of Myanmar’s Jung

Thibodaux, Louisiana: Ousted Myanmar junta leader Aung San Suu Kyi has been found guilty of electoral fraud. Suu Kyi and her allies have been accused of attempting to rig the 2020 election, which was won by the National League for Democracy party.

Suu Kyi was found guilty on charges of failing to disclose foreign ownership of a hotel and of failure to report foreign ownership of a plot of land. She was also found guilty of electoral fraud.

Suu Kyi was also found guilty of interference in the administration of the election and of misuse of public office.

Suu Kyi had been in custody since late 2020, when she was arrested by the military after the election. The military had claimed that Suu Kyi and her allies had attempted to rig the election.

The trial has been a source of controversy, with Suu Kyi’s supporters arguing that the military was seeking to suppress her and her party. The trial has also been criticized for being unfair and for being conducted in secret.

The verdict was met with widespread condemnation, with Suu Kyi’s supporters calling for her release and for the military to accept the election results.

The verdict is the latest in a series of trials against Suu Kyi and her allies. She has also been found guilty of corruption and of failing to disclose foreign ownership of a plot of land.

Suu Kyi and her allies have vowed to appeal the verdict, and have called for international support.

As Iran talks stall, Israel PM makes snap trip to Bahrain

Jerusalem: Israeli Prime Minister Naftali Bennett made a surprise trip to Bahrain on Monday, the first time an Israeli prime minister has visited the Gulf state.

Bennett’s visit comes as talks between Israel and Iran over its nuclear program face a new impasse. The talks had been aimed at reaching a deal that would limit Iran’s nuclear program and ensure that it cannot develop a nuclear weapon.

However, the talks have stumbled over differences on the terms of the deal. Israel has demanded that Iran make extensive concessions, while Iran has been unwilling to make any significant concessions.

Bennett’s visit is likely to be seen as a sign that Israel is prepared to engage with Iran, despite the lack of progress in talks.

The visit is also seen as a sign that the US is willing to engage with Israel and Iran, despite the impasse in talks.

Israel and Iran have been宿敌 for decades, and the US and Israel have been at odds over how to deal with Iran’s nuclear program. The US has been pushing for a deal that would limit Iran’s nuclear program, while Israel has been pushing for a deal that would ensure that Iran cannot develop a nuclear weapon.

Eye strain and convergence insufficiency in children

Children particularly take less precautions as compared to adults, therefore they experience convergence inefficiency more commonly than adults do, says DR SUMIT SINGH

In today’s digital age, using digital devices has become a common practice. During the pandemic, because people could not socialise in person, more people turned to electronic devices and had to maintain physical distancing. Mobile phones, televisions, computers, and the like are now a part of our daily routine.

The condition usually starts in childhood and can even affect adults. Some of the factors that lead to convergence insufficiency are occupational risk factors such as prolonged screen time, reading books, or focusing on a computer or reading a book.

The eyes must focus on near objects in the same way as the two eyes focus on near objects when focusing on nearby objects. The eyes move together along the same line to focus on a nearby object. The eyes must focus on near objects in the same way as the two eyes focus on nearby objects.

It is important to note that children who suffer from convergence insufficiency may have problems in reading, writing, or focusing on a computer or reading a book.
