India, after dilly-dallying for years on adopting crypto currencies, has taken a gingerly step in that direction, going by the 'encrypted' Union Budget 2022-2023 that provides for the introduction of a new blockchain-powered digital rupee by the Reserve Bank of India starting 2022-23 and the taxing of any income from transfer of digital assets at a flat rate of 30 per cent.

Experts see the crypto-related provisions in the Budget as in line with the Centre's plans to have a fiat digital currency, while disallowing the use of private virtual coins as legal tender. The digital currency to be issued and regulated by RBI is a form of fiat currency that can be transacted using wallets backed by blockchain. This digital currency is different from decentralised virtual currencies and crypto assets, which are not issued by the state and lack the 'legal tender' status.

The proposal to tax any income from transfer of digital assets at 30 per cent rate will impact gains from crypto currency and non-fungible tokens, which have seen a boom even in India in recent times. For, no deductions and exemptions are allowed. Besides, loss from the transfer of such assets cannot be set off against any other income.

relation to transfer of virtual digital asset at the rate of 1 per cent of such consideration above a monetary threshold.

Gifting of virtual digital asset is also proposed to be taxed in the hands of the recipient.

The Centre's plans to introduce a Bill on crypto currencies that seeks to prohibit "all private crypto currencies in India" with "certain exceptions". So, experts view the crypto aspects of the Budget as a definite sign that India has just unveiled its crypto tax regime. The Union government, however, has taken a conservative stand on taxation of crypto assets by announcing a flat rate of 30% on income from such assets.

That the Budget has not tossed out crypto currencies is obvious from the fact that there was no negative impact on prices of most of the popular crypto tokens, including Bitcoin, ETH, WRX, SOL, ADA, DOGE, MATIC listed on will launch its digital currency in the year starting April 1, Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman said in her budget speech on Tuesday. The nation also plans to tax the income from the transfer of virtual assets at 30%, she said, effectively removing uncertainties about the legal status of such transactions. Cash-dependent India joins countries including China in pushing forward with digital versions of their currencies as they look to harness new technologies to make transactions more efficient. At the same time, the steep tax rate on crypto could dissuade trades that have been soaring in India despite the central bank's warnings about the risks of money laundering, terrorist financing and price volatility. "Imposing the tax rate makes crypto trading official now and any concern of a ban is off the table," said

Darshan Bathija, co-founder and chief executive officer of Vauld, a crypto exchange platform based in Singapore.

Digital rupee from RBI coming

PNS NEW DELHI

In a big boost to the economy, digital rupee - using blockchain and other technologies - will be introduced by the central bank in 2022-23, Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman said today as she presented her fourth budget. The name will be announced soon, she has said.

"The introduction of central bank digital currency will give a big boost to the digital economy. Digital currency will also be a more cheaper and efficient currency management system," Ms Sitharaman said today.

Income tax slabs unchanged

ncome tax rates have been kept unchanged in Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman's Budget 2022.

Budget 2022 was announced amidst high expectations from all sides. The Budget focuses on trust-based governance, stanftaxatio sions and reduction of overlapping compliances under various laws. Let us look at the key Budget 2022 tax proposals which impact individual taxpayers.

Introduction of taxation scheme for virtual digital assets:

Transactions in virtual digital currencies and assets have seen an upswing in recent years and this was a step to provide a mechanism for taxing income from such transactions. Any income from the transfer of virtual digital assets is proposed reduced litigation, a new concept of Updated Return has been updated return to voluntarily disclose income which was either under reported or not reported at all in any tax return. The undated return can be filled within two years from the end of relevant assessment year subject to certain conditions. An additional tax of 25% or 50% of the tax and interest due on the additional income being reported would be payable on such income.

Only the cost of acquisition of such asset while calculating the taxable income. Further, any loss arising from transfer of such assets would not be allowed to be set off against any other source of income.

With a view toward having a ture details of such transactions, TDS at the rate of 1% on such transfers has also been proposed. Also, any gift of such assets will be taxed in the hands of recipient. This provides certainty to a large section of individual taxpayers who have invested in digital currency, though a lower rate of tax would have been welcome.

Capping of rate of surcharge on long term capital gains:

As per the existing provisions, long-term capital gains on listed equity shares, equity oriented mutual fund units, etc. are liable to maximum surcharge of 15%, while the other long term capital gains are subject to a graded surcharge which may go up to 37%.

Winners and losers in the budget Finance minister Nirmala Sitharaman Tuesday presented a budget that calls for a bigger spend to fire up growth in Asia's third-largest economy, as it stages a world-beating recov-

PNS NEW DELHI

The government's receipts from disinvestment proceeds in the next financial year beginning April have been pegged at Rs 65,000 crore, lower than the current year's estimated mobilisation of Rs 78,000 crore.

With budgeted disinvestment targets rarely being met, Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman's fourth Budget drastically reduced the receipts to an achievable Rs 78,000 crore in the current fiscal, from Rs 1.75 lakh crore budgeted earlier.

In her 2022-23 Budget, Sitharaman said towards implementation of the new Public Sector Enterprise policy, the strategic transfer of ownership of Air India has been completed. The strategic partner for NINL (Neelanchal Īspat Nigam Ltd) has also been selected.

Budget disappointing, AP's Capex share just 4%: YSRCP

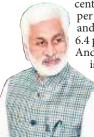

VIJAYAWADA

Terming the Union budget for the year 2022-23 disappointing, YSRCP has said that the party had expected a booster dose.

Speaking to the media on Tuesday, YSRC Parliamentary Party leader V Vijavasai Reddy said the allocation of Rs 1 lakh crore for capital expenditure seems huge but when it comes to the State share as per the set formula Andhra Pradesh gets just 4.047 per cent which works out to just Rs 4,000 crore.

In the case of FRBM, while the set norm is not more than 3 per cent of the GSDP for States, there is no parity with respect to the Centre on the borrowings. The State is still bearing the brunt of the previous government's mistakes,

Reeling out figures, he said while the fiscal deficit of the Union budget was 9.3 per cent for 2020-21, 6.9 per cent for 2021-22 and is estimated at 6.4 per cent this year. Andhra Pradesh registered a deficit of 5.48 per cent and 3.94 per cent during the past two years and strictures on FRBM.

He said the proposed budget for 2022-23 is nearly 40 lakh crore, with an increase of Rs 4.5 lakh crore more than that of the last fiscal and stated that the country's growth rate for 2021-22 is at 9.2 per cent, much better than any other country, especially while fighting Covid. Further, he appreciated the increase in capital expenditure by 35 per cent more than the previous allocations, where Rs 7.5 lakh crore has been allocated in the current budget which is 20 per cent of the budgetary allocations. Speaking on the interlinking of rivers Krishna-Godavari, Krishna-Penna, and Penna-Cauvery, he said that the State government had already interlinked Godavari-Krishna rivers with its own funds and thus appealed to compensate the State.

The YSR Congress party, when it was in the Opposition, had given assurances that it would, if voted to power, implement PRC recommendations. After attaining power, upon assessing the state's fiscal health, the ruling party conceded that it had given assurances to employees in a different situation without realizing the precarious financial situation. The state government

then came forward with amendments that ultimately whittled down financial benefits that would go to the government staff upon full implementation of the PRC recommendations. Unable to stomach this, the government staff launched a stir against the 'ill treatment' given to them. The employees unions, apart from issuing notice of an indefinite strike to the government, are unitedly preparing the stage for a long-drawn agitation.

The government therefore moved forward with a strategy to divert the attention of people from the long-pending main issue concerning implementation of PRC recommendations with the 'desired' level of fitment. While the state gov-

The reorganization of districts, regardless of the basis, would tantamount to opening the Pandora's Box as new demands are bound to emerge for more districts in the names of prominent figures.

The principal opposition party is accusing that the reorganization of districts has been taken up without consistency and that it does not reflect the real sentiments and feelings of people in various places. Some say emotional bonding of people with their respective native districts has been neglected. For example, Dwaraka Tirumala (Chinna Tirupati) of West Godavari district has been attached to the new district of Rajamahendravaram. In the whole exercise, the

Sir Arthur Cotton settled in England after retiring in India in the last quarter of the 19th Century and named his home 'Godavari'. Can't the present government of Andhra Pradesh reciprocate it by giving his name to the new district of Rajamahendravaram?

Following the integration of the erstwhile Hyderabad State (Princely State of Nizams) with the Indian Union in 1948, eight districts remained with the Hyderabad region, out of the previous 16 districts, that included five of Marathispeaking districts and three Kannada-speaking districts, which were merged with Bombay & Mysore states as per the linguistic policy in vogue. Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath on Tuesday welcomed the Union Budget 2022-23 as "progressive" and "holistic", even as president of main opposition Samajwadi Party Akhilesh Yadav said it will cut into the pockets of the general public.

Budget is betrayal of salaried, middle classes: Rahul Gandhi

PNS NEW DELHI

Labelling Budget 2022-23 a Nothing Budget with no provisions for farmers, youth or the poor, the Congress on Tuesday also accused the government of betraying the salaried and middle classes by not announcing any relief measures for them.

Several Congress leaders, including former president Rahul Gandhi, hit out at Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman for presenting a "Lollypop budget". The opposition party alleged that the government's "anti-farmer and anti-poor" face is exposed as it has cut fertiliser subsidy and also reduced food subsidy and MGNREGA funds.

PNS AHMEDABAD

Gujarat Chief Minister Bhupendra Patel on Tuesday called the Union budget as "pro-people", while opposition Congress said it lacked big announcements and was silent on past promises such as increasing farmers' income.

In a statement here, chief minister Patel said the "pro-people" budget will fulfill Prime Minister Narendra Modi's vision of "Atmanirbhar Bharat."

"Despite providing vaccines against coronavirus free to people and strengthening the healthcare infrastructure, the budget did not propose any hike in taxes," the chief minister said.

It reflected the Union government's resolve to uplift the economy as well as various sections of society such as farmers, traders, women, the youth, rural folks and Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes communities, Patel added.

"This budget provides a blueprint and roadmap for the next 25 years. It focuses mainly on the PM Gati Shakti scheme, allinclusive growth, increase in productivity and new investment. Gujarat is already leading in the Gati Shakti project and we resolve to remain ahead of others in the future too," said the

The CM also welcomed finance minister Nirmala Sitharaman's announcement of establishing an international university and international arbitration centre at GIFT City in Gujarat.

Budget is forward-looking and growth-oriented: Bommai

BENGALURU: Karnataka Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Tuesday described the Union Budget as forward looking, growth oriented and progressive and said it has covered all sections and sectors. This is the budget amid COVID pandemic. This is the forward looking budget as far as the growth of the economy is concerned and through this budget investments in infrastructure will increase and it will boost the further growth of the economy," Bommai said. Speaking to reporters here, he said, it will also help in creation of jobs and will help all classes of people."The budget has taken care of all sectors..... Common man, the working class and the business class will benefit from this budget," he said. Noting that the budget has taken care of all sectors including urban and rural, the Chief Minister said, MSME sector has also been taken care of as the guarantee cover for them under ECLGS (Emergency Credit Line Guarantee Scheme) has been expanded by Rs 50,000 Crore to total cover of Rs 5 lakh Crore. "Revival of MSMEs is important for the economy," he said, adding that the budget has also given thrust to railways, highways, healthcare, also reforms in the education sector among others.

Budget disappointing, nothing in it for common people: Kejriwal

NEW DELHI: Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal on Tuesday dubbed the Union Budget 2022-23 as "disappointing" and said it has nothing for the common people. In a tweet in Hindi, the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) national convenor noted that people had "high expectations" from the Union Budget during the corona period but there is nothing in it either for the common people or to reduce price rise. "People had high expectations from the Budget during the corona period. The Budget has disappointed the people. There is nothing in the Budget for the general public. Nothing to reduce price rise," Kejriwal said. AAP Rajya Sabha MP Sanjay Singh slammed the Union Budget presented by Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman in Parliament, pointing out that it gave tax exemption to the industrialists but provide no tax relief to the people. It did not also guarantee minimum support price (MSP) for the farmers' produce, he said. Singh reacted sharply on the finance minister's announcement that about 400 new generation trains will be developed and manufactured over the next three years, saying the Narendra Modi government has done 'Dhandhe Bharat' in the name of 'Vande Bharat' with this proposal. "No relief to the general public suffering from Corona. Tax exemption to industrialists, not to the public. No MSP guarantee to farmers.

Budget weakening states instead of empowering them financially

THIRUVANANTHAPURAM: Expressing disappointment over the Union Budget, the LDF government in Kerala on Tuesday alleged it lacked vision or preparation to face the challenges posed by COVID-19 and instead of empowering the states financially, the budget was weakening them in the backdrop of the pandemic. In a hard-hitting statement, Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan alleged that the budget, presented by Union Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman, would lead to rising inflation, widening of gap between the haves and have-nots, squeezing up of states financially, appeasing the interests of big corporates and hurting the interests of the country and its people in general. The basic perception that the economic crisis created by COVID can be resolved only by financially empowering the states could be seen nowhere in the budget, he said, "It is a matter of concern that the allocation for the areas like agriculture, food subsidy, rural employment and COVID management have been decreased compared to the last year's budget." Viiavan said, adding that it does not seem to have considered the demands of the states including the extension of the GST compensation for another five years. The union budget also gave enough hints that the globalisation policies, that have caused misery to common people, would be further strengthened and taken forward, he said.

Directionless, says Chhattisgarh CM; BJP leader Raman Singh

RAIPUR: Chhattisgarh Chief Minister Bhupesh Baghel said the Union Budget presented in Parliament on Tuesday for fiscal 2022-23 was directionless and had no provision or relief for farmers. Speaking to reporters here, he said everybody believed there would be some measures for farmers and labourers but the budget is silent on them and also on promises of doubling farmers' income by 2022. Baghel said the budget did not have any provision for completing items mentioned in the previous budgets, and cited the example of the Centre's plan to build 100 smart cities, a project that is still incomplete. "Overall it is a directionless budget that has nothing for youth, unemployed, women and farmers," Baghel, who tweeted his views with the hashtag 'Lollipop Bugdet', said. However, former chief minister and BJP national vice president Raman Singh said the budget fulfilled the aspirations of every section of the society, adding that "farmers, youth, women, entrepreneurs, employment, rural development, education and health have been taken care of".

Budgets in an election year are populist but there's no tax relief for the middle class

■ n her fourth Budget. Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman announced that Indian growth has been remarkable and comparable to the world's best economies. Indeed, it has been a difficult time for the country. The disparities grew, with the rich growing richer and the poor becoming poorer. The worst ever economic situation pushed millions into abject poverty. The Minister said this Budget seeks to lay the foundation of the economy for the next 25 years — 'Amrit Kaal' — India at 100. She claimed that her Budget will benefit youth, women, farmers, SCs, STs, the sections badly hit in recent years. Moreover, the Government's announcements like doubling the farmers' income and generating jobs must be fulfilled by the Budget. It also must ensure that we move towards the Prime Minister's cherished goal of making the Indian economy a $5 trillion economy. She had the daunting task of balancing the country's growth with the prospects of her party in the five State elections that commence in less than 10 days. Generally, Budgets in an election year are populist by political compulsions and this Budget was no different. It was high on rhetoric and addressed people's concerns in a rather kneejerk fashion than with a comprehensive plan to tackle the rising mass poverty, galloping inflation and unemployment. For instance, the Finance Minister talked about seven engines of growth clubbed under PM Gati Shakti - Roads, Railways, Airports, Ports, Mass transport, Waterways and Logistics infra. To appease farmers, she announced ₹2.37 lakh crore worth of MSP direct payments to wheat and paddy farmers but no concrete steps towards doubling their income.

She talked about Inclusive development, productivity enhancement, energy transition and climate action as four pillars of development but failed to suggest the action she would take to achieve these goals. The Budget has the noble aim of achieving Inclusive Development, Productivity Enhancement, Sunrise Opportunities, Energy Transition, Climate Action and Financing of investments. But the framework to achieve it is conspicuous by its absence. The country is in dire need of private investments and to boost that, big private investment in infra would be guided by Gati Shakti. The National Highway network will be expanded by 25,000 km in 2022-23. To boost small businesses, ECLGS cover has been expanded by ₹50,000 crore to ₹ 5 lakh crore and the ECLGS extended till March 2023 to create 60 lakh jobs in the next five years. However, there is no tax relief for the middle class. ₹48,000 crore have been allotted for PM Awas Yojana, ₹60,000 crore for providing access to tap water to 3.8 crore households. To support small businesses, a Rs6,000-crore programme to rate MSMEs would be rolled out over the next five years. The Government is also planning to roll out Digital Rupee by the RBI using the blockchain technology. Whether all these measures successfully take place and help boost the economy, we need to wait for yet another financial year to find out.

Deliver equality

A public sector bank recently floated a rule that's discriminatory to pregnant employees

he State Bank of India introduced a provocative and discriminatory rule a few days ago that a woman candidate over three months pregnant is "temporarily unfit" for employment. The rule came with a relief that such candidates could join the bank within four months after delivery. The bank perhaps did not want to employ women who were sure to go on maternity leave a short while after joining. The bank did not say if the attempt was to save on maternity benefits costs. Political parties and women's organisations flayed the rule. It was discriminatory, prejudicial and treated pregnancy as a kind of disability. It forced a woman to choose between having a child or working in the bank and interfered with the women candidates' reproductive rights and the right to employment. The SBI backtracked on its order. However, it did not revoke the circular but kept it "in abeyance". The SBI was trying to push an amendment it had originally introduced in 2009 but had to withdraw it following public outcry. The Union Government must use this opportunity to see that the human resources policies of the public sector institutions, including banks, are not discriminatory. The recent fiasco cannot be repeated.

The Indian Maternity Benefit Act, 1961, and the Code on Social Security, 2020, protect a woman's rights related to pregnancy and privacy. The SBI incident must encourage all employers to strike all discriminatory employment rules concerning women. In fact, in this time and age, no law can mandate a woman candidate to disclose her pregnancy status. Jobs that demand intense physical or stressful work can have exceptions that cannot kick in so long as the pregnant employee can successfully discharge her duties. The exceptions prove that the candidate's pregnancy status is of no consideration when deciding to give her the job. The employer cannot also revoke her appointment if the candidate's pregnancy is discovered after she gets the job. Unfortunately, some employers overtly or covertly refuse to employ pregnant women to save on maternity benefit costs. Some have prejudices against pregnant workers and refuse to hire them. Yet others cleverly tell pregnant candidates to try their luck after having the baby. The laws must have severe punitive clauses to stop illegal rejection of jobs of women candidates on account of their pregnancy.

What's civic versus cultural nationalism?

A former Vice-President told an international forum that cultural nationalism was taking over civic nationalism. Now, how true is that?

ndia is being taken over by a "new and imaginary practice of cultural nationalism" as against the "well-established principle of civic nationalism, which seeks to present electoral majority in the guise of a religious majority, and monopolise political power". Thus spoke former Vice-President Hamid Ansari while addressing a conference on protecting the Constitution. The fact that the former Vice-President chose to make these comments while speaking at an international forum, the Indian American Muslim Council, sharing space with foreign elements, some of whom are known to be hostile to our country and its interests, is also not lost on many Indians.

However, the thrust of Ansari's speech must now bear closer scrutiny. His allegation is that a civic life laid down by the Constitution is sufficient in a pluralistic country. This is far from a welcome assertion. The culture and the history of one community might be distasteful to another. Those not proud of the post-Independence history of theirs because they have stayed back in a Dar-ul-Harb (place of conflict) instead of migrating to their new homeland now prefer their origin to be the Constitution of 1950. This is a conflict between culture and civic existence. In the views of a significant segment, the culture of the rest of the country is something that harks back to jahalia or darkness. The former Vice-President's outburst must also, therefore, provoke another very serious question, one which the country has so far chosen to put off, but with rather unhealthy outcomes for its body politic. What is so permanent about a country's civic life? The Constitution can be amended; it can be replaced by another document. Our own Constitution has been amended more than 100 times already since 1950, whereas the history of Indian culture would go back to at least the Vedic Age What probably the former Vice-President referred to was this conflict when he talked of the phenomenon of cultural nationalism seizing power from those who established the principle of civic takeover of legendary Greece.

Those citizens who are desirous of civic nationalism would have to abandon their imaginary preferences and identify with the pristine culture of the country. This, ie, the Partition of the nation, was effected in 1947 as Messrs Jinnah, Mohd Iqbal and Sir Sayyid Ahmad Khan believed in and wanted it at any cost. It was a settlement made for all time to come, as it appears now. An undoing of that Partition means a 60/40 population ratio between the 'cultural nationalists' and the potential 'civic nation' advo-

Three prominent personalities had envisioned this clash of nationalism; namely MA Jinnah, BR Ambedkar and Dr Rajendra Prasad, our first President. All of them proposed what the League of Nations, the predecessor of the United Nations, had done with respect to Greece and Turkey in 1923. Going back into history, the Turks had conquered Anatolia and its neighbourhood in the decades preceding 1453. This was the Islamic

THE FACT THAT THE FORMER VEEP WAS SHARING SPACE WITH FOREIGN ELEMENTS, SOME OF WHOM ARE KNOWN TO BE HOSTILE TO OUR COUNTRY AND ITS INTERESTS, IS ALSO NOT LOST ON MANY INDIANS

Istanbul was Constantinople until then; the headquarters of the Eastern Christian Church are still situated in this historic city. Through the centuries, there used to be clashes between the Turks and the Greeks; in fact, they were rather like what we nowadays call communal riots.

The League of Nations, after the end of World War I - when the Turks were amenable to listening after their defeat and collapse of the centuries-old Ottoman Empire proposed an exchange of Greeks who were to migrate to their original country while all the Turks were to immigrate to Turkey. A detailed procedure of what was to be done, who would do what and by when was documented. The exchange was conducted smoothly and methodically; there has not been a single riot

Returning to what former Vice-President Ansari has chosen to articulate, many questions spring to the minds of many concerned countrymen. Why did a former Vice-President choose an international forum to make remarks against one's own country, whose second-highest office he held for, say, 10 years? Is there even an iota of merit in Ansari's claim that India is being "torn apart by a new cultural nationalism?" It is also very difficult to ignore the record in public life of the country's former Vice-President. Also, the fact that Ansari chose the platform of the Indian American Muslim Council (IAMC), a sectarian lobbying group with a long history of anti-India activities, certainly is a poor advocacy for any civic nationalism. Cultural nationalism is nothing but the nation waking up to its fundamental ethos.

The historical track record of this supposed civic nationalism in promoting tolerance, togetherness, peace and any sense of national security can at best be called a disappointing one. The substance of the former Vice-President's remarks, if one were to ignore his diatribe, is also lacking in any specific content as to the exact nature of the threat he has talked about. The country, despite no dearth of serious challenges Independence, has steadfastly stood by democracy and the very freedom that allowed Hamid Ansari to become the country's Vice-President. (The writer is a wellknown columnist, an author and a former member of the

Sir — This refers to 'Postcards from our future to India's future' (January 31). This competition involving more than 10 million schoolchildren under CBSE, State Boards, Kendriya and Navodaya Vidyalayas was largely ignored by the mainstream media. The initiative conceived by our PM and organised by the Departments of Posts and School Education is first-of-its-kind in the history of independent India. Thanks for giving coverage to this event where the schoolchildren wrote their postcards directly to the PM. India's aspirational youth need to be groomed for tomorrow's India. Though our NEP 2021 makes all the right noises, it needs effective dovetailing with our education system which is woefully inadequate to prepare tomorrow's leaders in nation building. India's large pool of talent can bring about school-centric, cost-effective innovations to transform education. We have the wherewithal. Now we appear to have a political will, too. Given these two, a prosperous, equitable and India of our dreams in 2047 is not a far cry

Sir - One is really shocked to go through the comments and observations made by Justice GR Swaminathan while ordering a CBI probe into the death by apparent suicide of a girl in Thanjavur district. He has based his order on his observation that the police, Government and even the Education Department have already formed an opinion that the death is not due to any coercion by the school warden for the girl to convert to Christianity and this thinking would set the course of inquiry and the final decision if the case was handled by the CB-CID. # GANDHI IS REMEMBERED, BUT GANDHI-ISM?

The recent farmers' protest was based on his principles

ahatma Gandhi is certainly revered even today, in India and abroad. Described as "half-naked fakir" by former British Prime Minister Winston Churchill, the frail-looking, bespectacled, dhoti-clad Gandhi succeeded in uniting Indians against the colonial powers to achieve India's freedom. His strategy rested on people joining him in a non-violent struggle for independence from colonialism. The crux of his movement drew strength from people and subsequently forced the British government to acknowledge its power marked by India gaining freedom. With a law degree from London (1891) and roughly two decades' experience in South Africa (1893-1914) as a lawyer and civil rights' activist when he donned western attire, he returned to India in 1915. As he joined politics and familiarized himself with Indian issues back home, he opted for the Indian dress, the then popular dhoti. He began using the loin cloth from 1921 to identify himself with poor Indians. Of course, apart from being a key part of his communication strategy, this was opted for probably to bridge any communication gap between him and poor Indians. Undeniably, Gandhi did not only identify himself with the majority but also reached out to them -as one of them- and won their support. The seeds of people's power he sowed then find resonance even today. For instance, the recent farmers' protest is a classic example of people's participation in a non-violent agitation compelled the authorities to take note of their grievances. The three anti-farm laws, against which farmers protested, may be viewed as representing the obvious apathy, lack of concern and perhaps ignorance of the powers that be about issues concerning farmers. If state elections in Punjab were not around the corner, the Indian government may not have withdrawn anti-farm bills.

Farmers from Punjab were most strongly represented in their protest. There is an apprehension that after elections the central government may impose similar bills again. Not surprisingly, farmers have asserted that their fight is not over yet. The chain binding people to protest together and/or support a leader may be viewed as symbolic of genuine democracy. Gandhi moved with his walking stick with the masses walking with him. The farmers' protest would not have probably gained attention and hit national as well as international headlines if it had not lasted for a long period with thousands participating in it. Gandhi is still remembered but hardly any importance seems to be given to Gandhism. Exercise of power appears more strongly guided by what the "moneyed" minority desires, even at the cost of economic crisis for the majority. Besides, leaders appear more concerned about their "success" being marked by their own images spread around extensively on boards, posters, photographs, even their masks donned by others and so forth. For how long will the masses allow themselves to be guided by their leaders who continue to nurture their egos, serve personal interest, and their quest for their own prosperity outweighs their concern for the people? Yes, money can be and is used to purchase necessary political support. But when money strikes through inflation, etc., the aggrieved may be expected to give greater importance primarily to those united with them in their grievances. Here is where masked leadership bears little relevance against people's voice. And when democracy echoes through people's protests and movements, chances of it leading to an impactful conclusion exist. Sadly, even elected leaders tend to notice these grievances only when they sense the need of electoral support of the aggrieved. It is time democratically elected leaders threw away their masks, stepped out of their ivory towers, moved beyond their own shadows and gave a little more importance to Gandhism.

Roadblocks to 'Ram Rajya' in Uttar Pradesh

ARUN SINHA

The lower castes want security, dignity and upward mobility and are not going to give up these concerns for the sake of Hindu unity

f all the states going to polls next month Uttar Pradesh is where the BJP's stakes are highest. The party has been using the state as a laboratory for testing a 'Hindu model' of Government-a model that, in the words of Prime Minister Narendra Modi, combines virasat (heritage) with vikas (development). Yogi Adityanath was seen by the party as the best person to execute the model, so he was made the Chief Minister. And, in the party's estimation, he has done exceptionally well. In all his speeches he proudly points to the Ram temple (virasat) with one hand and to the expressways and international airports (vikas) with another.

The stakes of the RSS (Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh) are even greater in UP. The RSS is the driver of the Hindutva ideology. The BJP is only its vehicle. The 'Hindu model' of Government combining virasat with vikas is the RSS idea. Those who follow the speeches of RSS leaders know that the Sangh, after winning the battle for the Ram temple, has now set itself a target for establishing a 'Ram Rajya' in the next twenty-five years. 'Ram Rajya' is but another name for 'Hindu Rashtra'. In recent years the RSS seems to have discovered that the concept of 'Ram Rajya' is more saleable to the masses than 'Hindu Rashtra' and also safer from criticism by pluralists.

When Prime Minister Modi talks of virasat and vikas they might seen like two ideas to ordinary people. But to the RSS they are not separate. They flow from the single idea of Rambhakti or complete devotion to Ram. The ruler has to be a devotee of Ram (virasat) and bring prosperity (vikas) to all his people as Ram did to his subjects as the king of Ayodhya. Thus can the ruler establish a 'Ram Rajya'. That is the 'Hindu model' of government the BJP has been trying to construct in UP.

Modi and Yogi have been at pains to prove that the 'Hindu model' of development is far better at social inclusion than the 'social justice' model of government of the Samajwadi Party. The 'Hindu model', they say, has brought benefits to all castes and communities, unlike the Samajwadi Party Government that provided benefits only to a few castes. Social equality and social harmony have been truly established under their rule, they claim. To support their claim, they pointed to the massive support of the non-Yadav backward classes and dalits their party had amassed in the recent years. If you were to believe Modi and Yogi, UP was well on its way to becoming a 'Ram Rajya', with a Rambhakt ruler ruling as honestly, justly and non-discriminatingly as Ram and the people of all classes having absolute trust in his justice and fairness as the subjects of Ram had in Ram's.

Ground reports spoke of the lower classes in several villages had turned dysfunctional.

Yogi claimed he had made women's life secure, but in the villages girls from poorer classes going out to work in the fields or tend the cattle still faced serious and killed. In 2020, there were uted equitably. The Yogi 9,864 cases of assaults on women with intent to outrage their modesty in the state, according to the National Crime Records Bureau. The total number of crimes against women in the State were 59,445 in 2018, 59853 in 2019 and 49,385 in 2020, the highest among all states.

In every case of injustice against the lower classes the perpetrators of the injustice happened to be from the better-off classes. The pradhans (panchayat heads) who demanded 20 per cent cut from the financial assistance under the PM Awaas Yojana, the men who molested and raped girls in villages and the policemen who acted on the side of the perpetrators were all from because they could not afford to the better-off classes. The poorpay the bribe the local officials er classes of UP had always seen themselves as 'chhote log' (small people) oppressed and exploited by 'bade log' (big people). That did not change under the Yogi rule. That is why there is disappointment among the lower classes with the BJP.

What has added to their disappointment is the opposition of the BJP to a socio-economic caste census. The poorer communities among the backward classes have come to the conclusion that unless a caste census is done the benefits of public sector jobs and college admissions would never be distrib-

SUKANTA MAJUMDAR

Government has even refused to implement the recommendation of its own Social Justice Committee for the division of 27 per cent reservations for OBCs into three categories of backward class (7 per cent), more backward class (11 per cent) and most backward class (9 per cent).

The discontent among the lower castes has busted the selfillusion of the BJP that it can bind all castes securely with the Hindutva glue. The lower castes want security, dignity and upward mobility and are not going to give up those concerns for the sake of Hindu unity. Hindu unity to them has proven to be a chimera which only perpetuates deep social and economic divisions.

Today Hindutva lies buried in the ruins of the social coalition the BJP built. The big lesson for the party is: It has to address the fundamental issues of social inequality, social injustice, economic oppression and administrative discrimination and corruption the 'chhote log' face in their life before it can hope to bind all castes with the Hindu glue. But as the 'bade log' make the core constituency of the BJP it could be the last thing the party might ever be tempted to do. And that is sure to leave the party in a state of perpetual dilemma. We will see how it resolves the dilemma in the coming years.

That it was not exactly so became clear soon after the elections were announced, when a number of MLAs of the BJP whose political careers depended on the support of non-Yadav backward classes resigned from the party. The indication from their resignations was that their constituencies were dissatisfied with the BJP's performance. And reports from grassroots corroborated that perception. There was a large gap between the government's propaganda of what it had given to the lower classes and the realities of the life they being denied financial assistance under the Pradhan Mantri Awaas Yojana to build pucca houses demanded. # Testing time for Priyanka's political future

The party had favoured her over brother Rahul and appreciated her people-management skills, language proficiency and repartee

very leader takes advantage of a crucial moment to settle down. The current UP Assembly elections will be a decisive momentfor the political future of Priyanka Gandhi Vadra. Once considered a trump card, she now faces a massive challenge in the present elections. The party has not been in power in UP since 1989, and the organization is almost extinct. So, it will be a Himalayan task for the 49-year-old Priyanka Gandhi, who formally entered the rough and tumble of politics in January 2019. The party has not announced her as the chief ministerial candidate. But if Congress wins by a miracle, who else but Priyanka? She admitted last week that she is the face of the Congress, asking a reporter whether any other face is visible.

(The writer is a senior journalist. The views expressed are personal.)

The party believed her entry could be a game-changer. Congress President Sonia Gandhi often said Priyanka, a mother of two children, would take the political plunge when she was ready. In January 2019 she became the General Secretary in charge of Eastern UP. A leader should have three qualities: charisma, crowdpulling, ability to convert the masses into votes. It is only the third, converting the crowds into votes, Priyanka is yet to achieve.

However, she is no greenhorn in politics. For close to two decades she played politics with backroom decisions. Her role was confined to Uttar Pradesh. Priyanka's involvement in UP goes back to her father, Raiiv Gandhi; She was helping him in his campaign trail in Amethi and her mother's constituency Rae Bareili. She also took care of her brother's Amethi he lost in 2019. There are many pluses and minuses for Priyanka's political career. A Gandhi family member is an added advantage. She has taken charge of the party when the congress support base is lowest in UP and the country.

The party had favored her better than her brother Rahul

Gandhi and appreciated her people skills, language proficiency, and repartees.

With no base, the party has been floundering since 1989. The upper castes have moved to the BJP, the backward classes to SP, and the Dalits to BSP. Minority voters are split among SP, BSP, and Congress. Before Priyanka, the biggest challenge is to recover the party's social base or create a new one. The party had a bare 7 per cent vote share in 2017. Above all, the BJP her poll slogan. has the upper hand with a divided opposition. The party's alliance experiments with the BSP in 1996 and the Samajwadi Party in the 2017 Assembly elections failed miserably. Congress has adopted the 'eklachalo' strategy in 2022 UP assembly elections and thus isolated while other parties like TMC and NCP have aligned with the SP. Any anti-incumbency against the BJP seems to be going to the SP-RLD combine. While the other parties depend on caste and religious cards, Priyanka has chosen the gender card and brought out a special women's manifesto promising to restore their selfesteem and self-reliance, employment and more opportunities to enter politics.

"LadkiHoon, Lad Sakti Hoon" is Priyanka has made some politically correct moves to improve the Congress profile, like consoling the family of the Hathras rape victim, arranging transport for the migrants from Uttar Pradesh, etc. Yet, Congress remains out of reckoning due to lack of organization, absence of second-rung leaders, factionalism, and indiscipline.

Her minuses are also many. Some complain she is inaccessible and arrogant. She has not been able to strengthen the party in the past two years. It is indeed a gamble that the party has decided against alliances. Priyanka's revamp of the party organization has upset many seniors and old-timers who feel side-lined. Under her watch, senior leaders like RPN Singh and Jitin Prasada and four go a long way declared candidates left recently. Many think that she should have checked the erosion when the party is weak

Interestingly, Priyanka is expanding her role beyond Uttar Pradesh, going to Punjab and Goa and perhaps acquiring a national profile. The mess in Punjab resulted in the exit of chief minister Captain Amarinder Singh and the appointment of Navjot Singh Sidhu as the new PCC chief due to her influence. The UP polls will decide what works, Priyanka's chemistry or the poll arithmetic. Her success would depend on her appeal to women and youth. It is nobody's case that Priyanka could bring back the Congress rule in the state, but even if she could ensure an improvement for the party, it will

Animation task force will help progressive policies

PNS NEW DELHI

Setting up a task force for the animation, visual effects, gaming, and comic (AVGC) sector with participation from the industry will help establish uniform, progressive policies that will promote growth and investments in the sector, according to industry experts.

The government on Tuesday announced the setting up of a task force to recommend steps for the promotion of the animation, visual effects, gaming, and comic (AVGC) sector.

potential to employ youth, Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman said in her Budget speech.

"An AVGC promotion task force with all stakeholders will be set up to recommend ways to realise this and build domestic capacity for serving our markets and the global demand," she said.

Commenting on announcement, Jehil Thakkar partner and media and entertainment sector leader -- will help India achieve its potential of 20 lakh jobs in the sector."These are critical skills for the growth of the metaverse and India is poised to take advantage of this ecosystem," he said.

Mobile Premier League (MPL) co-founder and CEO Sai Srinivas said the announcment highlights the need to build capacity to serve domestic and global markets and is a strong indicator of the impetus that the government is willing "It is also heartening to see the government's commitment to work with the industry, allowing for a balanced approach that accommodates the needs of all stakeholders and strengthens the ecosystem holistically. A progressive tax regime, predictable regulatory framework and supportive funding policies will allow the industry to compete on the world stage " he said.

Echoing similar views, Nazara Technologies CEO

Manish Agarwal said India presently commands around 10 per cent of the global AVGC market and has the potential to reach 20-25 per cent by 2027.

This task force will facilitate employment for the youth, build domestic capacity to serve the Indian markets and also meet global demand," he said. He added that replacing the Special Economic Zone (SEZ) Act with new legislation that would enable states to become partners in becoming development hubs is a crucial and well-timed move.

such partnership with states on SEZs would help strengthen the supply base of animation and production studios and encourage the development of the existing animation and gaming capacity, Agarwal noted.Pioneer Legal Partner Shoubhik Dasgupta said the recommendations of all stakeholders will hopefully pave the way for better laws on gaming in the country, provide the much-needed clarity and thereafter, invite investments.

The government's receipts from disinvestment proceeds in the next financial year beginning April have been pegged at Rs 65,000 crore, lower than the current year's estimated mobilisation of Rs 78,000 crore.

Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Tuesday gave a one-time window to taxpayers to correct any discrepancy or omissions in their ITRs within two years of filing, subject to payment of taxes. # Rihanna is expecting first baby with A$AP Rocky ihanna has babies on the brain! The Diamonds singer and fashion mogul, 33, is pregnant, expecting her first baby with rapper A$AP Rocky. The couple was photographed out in New York City over the weekend, where Rihanna debuted her baby bump while wearing a long pink jacket. Her oversized outerwear was unbuttoned at the bottom to reveal her growing bump adorned in a gold cross with colorful jewels.

In one of the sweet photos, which were snapped in Harlem, where A$AP Rocky grew up, the rapper kisses the soon-to-be mom on her forehead as they enjoy a snowy walk outdoors.

Back in May, A$AP Rocky told GQ about his romance with Rihanna, calling her the "love of my life". When asked what it felt like to be in a relationship, he said, "So much better. So much better when you got 'the One'. She amounts to probably, like, a million of the other ones. I think when you know, you know. She's the One."

In regards to fatherhood, A$AP Rocky, 33, said starting a family is "in my destiny, absolutely." As he put it at the time, "I think I'd be an incredible, remarkably overall amazing dad. I would have a very fly child. Very."

A source confirmed to PEOPLE in November 2020 that Rihanna and A$AP Rocky were dating after years of friendship. The couple had sparked romance rumors since Rihanna split from her boyfriend of three years, billionaire Hassan Jameel, in January 2020. That July, she featured A$AP Rocky in her Fenty Skin campaign, and the duo did several interviews together to promote the collab.

Rihanna previously opened up about family planning, telling British Vogue in March 2020 that she was "realizing life is really short" and found a new no-nonsense approach to living.

"You don't have a lot of time to tolerate s----, you know? You put so much on your plate. When you're overwhelmed, you need to start cutting things out. And I'm overwhelmed too much," she said at the time. "What's happening now is that I'm going back to black and white. My gray area is shutting down. I know I will want to live differently," she added, saying that within the next 10 years she sees herself having "three or four" children, whether she has a partner or not. I feel like society makes me want to feel like, 'Oh, you got it wrong ...' They diminish you as a mother if there's not a dad in your kids' lives," said Rihanna. "But the only thing that matters is happiness; that's the only healthy relationship between a parent and a child. That's the only thing that can raise a child truly, is love."

Jack of all snacks!

K RAMYA SREE

ne thing most of us want to include on our plates, especially mothers for their chil-dren, is healthy food in everyday meals. Because of the easy availability of junk foods in the market, it becomes difficult for parents to alter their children's unhealthy eating habits. We bring to you the story of two accomplished moms — Radhieka Pandeya, a fitness baker, and Simer Dhall, a business school graduate, who start-ed a premium snack brand called Snack-A-Doodle during the lockdown for kids and adults. What caught our attention about this brand is that all their products are gluten-free, with no eggs, no processed sugar, and no preservatives. From cookies to bites to crunchies, they have healthier versions of whatever snack you need. They also offer DIY kits for kids to enjoy and explore their food. Isn't it exciting?

Taking us through their journey, Simer shares with us,
"Snack-A-Doodle is the brainchild of two accomplished moms. Radhika Pandeya is a force to reckon with in the health food industry. She started a fitness bakery to serve her own sweet tooth with grain-free, gluten-free, and sugar-free desserts that didn't pack on the pounds. Eight years in, she is a favourite among many — serving beautiful, healthy, and guilt-free experiences to celebrities and health-conscious folks alike. Radhieka's expertise in healthy baking, her business understanding thanks to an MBA at ISB, and her instincts as a mom to two boys, are the driving force behind Snack-A-Doodle? On the other hand, Simer Dhall is the in-house expert on all things motherhood. She has a strong network of moms and has spent the last two years understanding how to fill the gap between healthy and delicious snacks that mothers are always looking for for their little ones.

Of all the things nice, DIY kits for kids are something thought-provoking. When asked what made them come up with these DIY kids, they share, "Baking is a great way to teach motor skills and practical math. We often bake with our sons, and thought it was something we wanted to share with our customers. The DIY Bake with Dood Kid is healthy like the rest of our range and can bake up to 12 cookies!"

We are living in an era where each day a new entrepreneur rises. In this cut-throat competition, these ladies are successfully running a food business all by themselves. Well, it is because their brand, unlike everything else on the mar-ket, can truly stand the test of healthy, wholesome ingredients! Simer says, "For snacking today, we compete with everything from popcorn to regular chocolate cookies on the market. And like we always tell our clients, it's not about binary choices Kids will continue to enjoy all kinds of snacks as long as you begin to introduce healthy snackin early. The benefits of introducing kids to non-processed sugar or alternative flours early will be long-term for them. We stand apart from the competition because our co-founder Radhieka is a recognised healthy baking expert in the country, and her expertise has helped us crack recipes that are truly and transparently on the key growth drivers of any given stock to explain the concepts of Intrinsic Valuation with real-world examples and computations.

22 chapters where every chapter is aphoristically framed with

What was the inspiration behind the book?

Primarily, most investors are investing based on price and momentum without understanding any concept of value. The subject is not as difficult as people think it is. It is a simple subject that people need to understand while making investments. I wanted to bring this concept forward in a very straightforward and lucid manner, particularly, since the number of investors across the world are increasing.

Your book is a fast-track programme for learning business valuation. Give us a brief as to how it will benefit this era of entrepreneurs.

will benefit this era of entrepreneurs.

In today's start-up world, entrepreneurship is all about Capital, Capital, and Capital. It is difficult to build and survive without significant capital. Be it an old economy company or a new age start-up, an entrepreneur needs to understand the value of what he/she is building.

The quintessence of successful investment is to understand if the market is ignoring anything and how the market is valuing, thus, making it essential to understand the worth of a company before investing. At the end of the day, you may be more valuable than you think. So many entrepreneurs today end up diluting so much equity even after having a successful venture. Thus, it is very important to determine how much capital is required during the journey of a company and what will the existing founders/shareholders left with at the end of each stage of the company.

For existing companies, there are many decisions and value-creating strategies that need to be taken such as divestitures, mergers and acquisitions, going public share repurchases, business model changes, and so on, for maximising value where valuation is the key decision-maker.

Fortunately, the current generation is trying to be more informed thout healths inventing the parts of the text the leafer.

Fortunately, the current generation is trying to be more informed about healthy investing. However, due to the lack of prior knowledge, there's not much to start with.

What will you suggest to an aspiring investor to begin with? Should they read books or just track the market mindfully, or both?

Both, actually! Every investor needs to do a lot of reading. Even celebrated investors like Warren Buffet today spend most of their time reading and learning. Reading is a must, and they have to read books, news, companies and annual reports simultaneously and give equal importance to all. They need to track the market too, to analyse what signals the market is giving, or if the market is behaving irrationally.

When does the stock market become harmful, if at all?

The stock market in the long term is not going to be harmful and will continue to grow. It becomes harmful when people start building expecta-tions more than what the company can achieve.

Forming of bubbles in a sector, for instance, valuation of companies without meaningful earnings built on narratives, which when it does meet expectations, which can lead to stock prices crashing. We have seen what happened during the dot com bubble and you may see it in some new-age companies in this era. When markets start pricing stocks for high growth rates, value growth duration and improvement in margins that are not achievable or not sustainable, it may all lead to a bust. In bull markets, the stock markets start valuing stories. When stories fall short, the markets will punish them.

Why, in your opinion, do schools not talk about real-life stuff like mental health, taxes, or invest-

Very few business schools cover business/investment valuation in depth. There needs to be a significant time and depth required to teach and promote the understanding of the subject. It is very briefly touched upon and not explained in greater depth. Similarly, teaching taxes requires a lot of time and schools can't cover them all in their course. And, so, specific courses and books play an integral part in enhancing knowledge in these subjects for people who really want to understand them.

Now up against a formidable Australian side, India will take confidence from the fact that they made the semifinals with wins on the trot despite the challenges posed the virus.

This is the fourth time in a row that India will be appearing in the last-four stage of the competition.

India have a strong batting presence with the likes of Harnoor Singh, Angkrish Raghuvanshi and Raj Bawa, who broke Shikhar Dhawan's record for the highest individual score by an Indian batter at the U-19 World Cup with his 162 not out against Uganda, shouldering the responsibility, besides skipper Dhull and Rasheed.

In fact, it was Dhull who set the tone for the team with his soild 82 against South Africa in their tournament opener.
