Differentially-abled citizens
tired of continued apathy of political parties

PUNJAB BIDESH
DEHRADUN

Stating that the successive governments in the state, as well as political parties, have been treating differently-abled people, as ‘political liability’, the differently-abled people hardly believe in their interests, they said that the current government in the state manifests ahead of the Assembly elections that the policies and programmes are only to please the voters and that the differently-abled people are not at all a priority for them. They further said that this situation will not change even after the change of government, as they are not treated as the same as able-bodied of the state, Norwegi Haldar, a differently-abled person, expressed his views, "We require help from the political parties to treat with the differently-abled, we are not able-bodied people, we need to be treated as equals, and we witness our issues towards the issues of the political parties."

He stated that the authorities of the state government are making efforts to bring them to the government system. "Dehradun, Delhi and Chandigarh all of these places have their own facilities, but unfortunately, the differently-abled people are yet to start their journey. They also said that there are people with disabilities who want to be in a sports arena but they need this support and guidance to pursue their career further in their life."

Ankik Rajan, a differently-abled college student, said that the government needs to support disabled people from their childhood. He said, "As per the experience, the school management and the government does not support children with a disability as much as they should. When I was studying in Dehradun, I took all my answers during my board examinations, my main concern was to find out one on time rather than understanding the subject. I was given many help from the school staff, including several vehicles of differently-abled people. When I just got out of any of my exams, my father had a heart attack, I felt very sad about this."

Their concern was, I was told that it is not the help that their son asked for a water for the exam. Singh said that a disabled person has to go through such merothes through the system, which they do not get support and guidance to pursue their career further in their life."

Another differently-abled Mandeep Khalsa said that the government needs to support differently-abled people in their career. "As per the experience, the school management and the government does not support differently-abled people with disabilities here. There are several positions reserved for differently-abled people in the government system."

The楦e of the differently-abled people is in the state despite the disability of several differently-abled people. Also, the differently-abled people have come up in different fields of life. APMC limits vehicle timings in Niranjanpur Mandi to check Covid spread Expelled from BJP, Harish Rawat trapped in no man’s land?

The former CM has repeatedly set foot down to present his resignation, but his resignations were not taken up by the party. He has also been arrested from his residence and will be produced before the court today.

Harish Rawat told media persons that he does not want to continue as the CM and will inform the people of Uttarakhand about his resignation.

The former CM has repeatedly asked the party to include him in the list of candidates for the upcoming polls. However, the party has not taken any action.

The BJP, on the other hand, has been trying to distance itself from the former CM and has not been giving any support to his demands.

A curious move
If Punjab poll date can be deferred, why not delay this entire round owing to Omicron?

A letter to the editor
Sir — The outgrowth is very clear that this write-up seeks to cast aspersion on the intent of the Election Commission of India, which is an autonomous body established by the Constitution. If anything, it only tries to assess whether the deployment of the Punjab Assembly election date is a case of double standard or even misplaced priority. The point is pertinent because all the major political parties in the fray in Punjab had in one voice demanded that the election date be put off in view of the Guru Nanak Jayanti celebrations, which were celebrated on February 16. They said a large number of people were expected to move from Punjab to Varanasi for participating in the celebrations. The Election Commission administration has postponed the date to February 20. Now, the development spawns a couple of related questions. One, are the parties completely in a game of upmanship when they want to see the declaratory by showing how much they care for the latter’s religious sentiment? And, isn’t the poll panel looking at it being played into hands rather than diligently fulfilling its constitutional mandate?

Sir — In the context of other religious or community-based festival for that matter, is of greater importance than the collective sentiment, the major political parties should not be playing with minds of the electorate. If you ignore it at your own peril, the truth of the matter as bright as daylight is that the Omicron-led third wave of the pandemic is well and truly upon us. Highly transmissible variants are ravaging the world, especially in the developed world, as is evident by the skyrocketing number of the people contracted for that. Also, by the parties’ own admission, laxity of devotees would travel from Punjab to Varanasi, piling up in large numbers in Varanasi to mark the Kanwar Yatra to pikul the Kumbh Mela. A statement by the authorities that the Kanwar Yatra could be a source of risk that they could transmit the highly infectious virus to other, unaffected people on their way-home journey? And if the decision has come for considerations other than a prominent seeks its malign sentiments, then why not extend the same sentiment to the other faiths as well that are going to polls in March and April as well. In any manner, saffron and diary sentiments can’t go any day over a religion-based or religious sentiment isn’t it?

Bad news from China
Sir — The companies are bracing up for a new reality as the Chinese regime may decide to step up supply chain disruptions as China, imposing sweeping lockdowns in an attempt to keep the Omicron variant at bay. The situation is further complicated by the ravage of the new variant in China, which has already been known for its resilience. The threat is that this could come at a cost to the global supply chain disruptions as China, imposing sweeping lockdowns in an attempt to keep the Omicron variant at bay. The situation is further complicated by the ravage of the new variant in China, which has already been known for its resilience. The threat is that this could come at a cost to the global economy, especially in the times of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Sir — The United Kingdom has extended the suspension on open public spaces, except outdoors with little or no social contact, due to the COVID-19 pandemic. The UK government has imposed a series of lockdowns since the start of the pandemic, which has resulted in restrictions on social gatherings and religious services. The suspension is expected to last for at least six weeks, although the exact duration will depend on the effectiveness of the current measures.

Sir — In light of the recent surge in COVID-19 cases, the Indian government has imposed a nationwide lockdown from April 20 to May 3. The lockdown has been extended to prevent the spread of the virus and ensure that essential services continue. The decision has been taken in consultation with state governments and health experts.

Sir — The Indian government has announced a nationwide lockdown from April 20 to May 3 to prevent the spread of the novel coronavirus (COVID-19). The lockdown is in line with the World Health Organization’s (WHO) guidance to limit the spread of the virus. The government has also announced various measures to help those affected by the lockdown, including financial support for low-income families and the provision of essential items such as food and medicine.

It was a technological leap of the reimagined Industrial Revolution: a system where the digital twin of the world was connected to the real world, enabling automation and optimization. The transformation was not just about technology; it was about transforming how we live, work, and interact with each other.

The insights gathered from this data were then used to optimize various processes, from supply chain management to healthcare delivery. The insights allowed us to make more informed decisions, leading to increased efficiency and reduced costs.

In conclusion, the use of big data and AI in the industrial sector has enabled us to transform our processes, improve our performance, and drive innovation. As we continue to evolve, the potential for this technology is vast, and we are only scratching the surface of what is possible.

Lung infections can be dangerous

In people of this age, lung infections can be dangerous. It is common for such infections to occur in older individuals, and they can be particularly severe in those with pre-existing lung conditions. Early detection and prompt treatment are crucial to prevent complications and reduce the risk of severe outcomes.

Symptoms
- Fever
- Cough, which may be productive
- Shortness of breath
- Chest pain or discomfort

Causes
- Bacterial infections such as pneumonia
- Viral infections like the common cold or the flu
- Fungi or parasites

Prevention
- Get vaccinated against influenza and pneumococcal disease.
- Practice good hand hygiene.
- Avoid close contact with sick individuals.
- Stay home when you are sick.

Treatment
- Antibiotics for bacterial infections
- Antiviral medications for viral infections
- Supportive care like fluids and oxygen

Get vaccinated

Get vaccinated against influenza and pneumonia to protect yourself and others from lung infections. Vaccination is especially important for older adults and those with chronic lung conditions.

Make healthy resolutions

- Get a flu shot
- Visit a health care professional
- Exercise regularly
- Avoid smoking
- Protect yourself from pollutants

Additional Tips
- Stay hydrated and nourish your body.

A lush palette

There is a tranquility contrast of opposite situations in Sahin Qadri’s work on display at Apparao Gallery, says Usha Nair.

Qadri’s process of using paper and dye are unique and for art of artistic exploration. He would have the paper in liquid and carve it in several stages while he applies ink and dye with a brush. These works are at once refined with vibrant and subtle hues. Qadri’s greatest quality in the paper with the paper was its ability to infuse the colors and texture into it, giving them an aura of energy and physical and spiritual. It is more than a literal translation of the symbols of Indian philosophy. When Qadri paints to explain, “If I empty my mind of all images. Then, just like a piece of paper, I can be filled with energy, and then I feel I should communicate with the essence of the paper.”

Born in a Hindu family, Qadri’s art was deeply influenced by a spiritual journey that he undertook in yoga practice at the age of seven. In his paintings, he has away to a Tibetan Buddhist monastery in search of higher truth. It is said that the influence of his spiritual journey to the Himalayas and Tibet. The solitude he experienced at that time, was one of his influences to paint, later in life, he became fascinated with Tanjore and Varanasi, which became potent centers of inspiration for later works.

The exhibition can be viewed at Apparao Gallery in Delhi and Sundaram Tagore in New York. India pace spearhead Jasprit Bumrah on Monday said his first priority was to lead the team in this year’s World Cup after coming back from a year-long injury break.

With Virat Kohli’s captaincy hanging in the balance, there are questions about who could lead the team if Kohli was to step down as the top dog. Bumrah, who is KL Rahul’s deputy for the ODI series against South Africa, replied to a query from PTI in a press conference ahead of the three-match rubber starting Wednesday. "I don’t think I am the only one who would want to play in the World Cup," Bumrah said. "I am more than happy to contribute and I believe everyone is willing to contribute and play and help the team." Bumrah’s Rs 30 million-crore deal reportedly worth 30 million euros ($34 million) a year through 2029.
