The Indian government has decided to withdraw the hike in fertilizer prices and will continue to focus on ensuring a steady supply of agricultural inputs, Prime Minister Narendra Modi has said.

The government on Thursday decided to withdraw the hike in fertilizer prices, which was announced by the finance minister last week, to ensure a steady supply of agricultural inputs and to support the farmers and the rural economy.

The decision was taken after a meeting of the high-level committee on agricultural input prices, headed by the finance minister, which discussed the implications of the hike in fertilizer prices.

The meeting was attended by officials from the finance ministry, agriculture ministry, and other relevant departments.

The committee noted that while the hike in fertilizer prices was a temporary measure to ensure a steady supply of inputs, it had adverse effects on the rural economy and the farmers.

The committee recommended that the hike in fertilizer prices should be withdrawn and that the government should continue to focus on ensuring a steady supply of agricultural inputs.

The committee also recommended that the government should explore other options to ensure a steady supply of agricultural inputs, such as increasing the public distribution system (PDS) coverage and increasing the allocation of fertilizers to the PDS.

The committee further recommended that the government should explore the possibility of providing direct benefit transfers (DBTs) to farmers, which would help them to receive the benefits of the hike in fertilizer prices.

The committee added that the government should also work towards reducing the dependence of farmers on fertilizers and other agricultural inputs, which would help them to become more resilient to shocks and to improve their productivity and income.

The committee concluded that the government should take all necessary steps to ensure a steady supply of agricultural inputs and to support the farmers and the rural economy.

The government has already taken steps to ensure a steady supply of agricultural inputs, such as increasing the public distribution system (PDS) coverage and increasing the allocation of fertilizers to the PDS.

The government has also announced plans to provide direct benefit transfers (DBTs) to farmers, which would help them to receive the benefits of the hike in fertilizer prices.

The government has also announced plans to reduce the dependence of farmers on fertilizers and other agricultural inputs, which would help them to become more resilient to shocks and to improve their productivity and income.

The government has also announced plans to provide financial assistance to farmers, which would help them to recover from the shocks caused by the hike in fertilizer prices.

The powerful leader has opened new vistas by desisting the BJP and favouring the SP

The game of politics is transforming a powerful backward class leader into the probable game-changer of Uttar Pradesh. Swami Vivekananda Maurya, the young and old alike, is trying hard to make his mark. On his 157th birth anniversary, the day on which he passed away, the writer reflects on the way to counter the erosion in moral, ethical and humanistic values is to refocus learning process on character formation & value inculcation.

A JOLT TO THE BJP IN UTTAR PRADEH — PRASHANT MAURYA

Maurya and Dara Singh Chauhan from the Jwalapur constituency in Baghpat district have joined the SP. Maurya is giving his alliance a national tone by teaming up with Sharad Pawar’s NCP and Mayawati’s BSP. This decision is only with Maurya, who can for the first time, since 2014, directly gain at the BJP’s expense. That is why, perhaps, Maurya and a couple of BJP MLAs who also wish to quit the party, under Akhilesh’s counsel were given the option of online nominated seats for the upcoming assembly elections. However, they have decided to support Maurya’s movement for the cause of backward classes, farmers, unemployed youth and small and medium traders.

Kazakhstan: A quartet among thieves

Strangely, there is no reason for Russia's presence there

The questions about recent events in the region have been asked of Russia, China, and Iran, barely a year after the previous round of the 2021-2022 winter Olympics in Beijing. The question is one that needs to be asked, as it is critical to the understanding of the region's geopolitical landscape. Kazakhstan is a quintessential example of a country that is caught between the two superpowers, China and Russia, and is a key player in the ongoing power struggle in Central Asia.

The country's location and geopolitical importance make it a strategic region for both China and Russia. China's Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) project has significantly boosted its economic and political influence in Central Asia, with the region being an important transit route for its energy resources. Russia, on the other hand, has a long-standing presence in the region through its military bases and strategic partnerships, particularly with Kazakhstan.

The situation in Kazakhstan is, therefore, a critical one that needs to be closely monitored. The political stability of the country is of utmost importance, as it is a key player in the region's energy and trade dynamics. The recent developments in the country, including the protests and the government's response, have raised concerns about the potential for instability and conflict.

The presence of foreign forces in the region, particularly from China and Russia, is a matter of concern for the international community. The pressures on the government to accommodate these forces, while maintaining the country's sovereignty and national identity, have made it a challenging task.

The recent events in Kazakhstan have highlighted the importance of a robust, independent, and transparent media to provide accurate information and hold those in power accountable. The role of media in shaping public opinion and ensuring democracy is crucial in such situations.

The situation in Kazakhstan is a reminder of the importance of diplomacy and dialogue in resolving conflicts and promoting stability in the region. The international community, including the United Nations, should take a lead in facilitating dialogue and negotiations to address the underlying issues and ensure peace and stability in the region.

In conclusion, the situation in Kazakhstan is a complex one that requires a nuanced and comprehensive approach to address the underlying issues. The role of the international community, including media and civil society, is crucial in ensuring that the voices of the people are heard and that the rights of all are respected.

The World Bank has retained India’s economic growth forecast at 8.3% for 2021-22.

The World Bank’s latest East Asia and Pacific Economic Update suggests India’s economy is projected to grow at 8.9% in fiscal year 2021-22 (ending March 2022), up from 9.3% in fiscal year 2020-21 (ending March 2021). The report notes that India’s GDP has upgraded for 2021-22 and 2022-23 and the recovery in South Asia’s economies is projected to become broad-based.

According to the report, by the mid-2021 second wave of COVID in South Asia’s economies activity has recovered.

India’s economy is entering a pro-growth phase, with a positive Wall Street, resilience to the benchmarks.

The report says that the damages caused by the second wave in India have deeply pruned the fiscal deficit, and institutions are under stress to meet the fiscal targets.

The World Bank has recommended that India’s policy focus be on sustainable recovery, and the government should focus on investment, improving procurement and supply chains, and reducing red tape.

India’s economic damage caused by the second wave was significantly stunted compared to the first wave, and its recovery is expected to be faster. The report says that India’s economic activity has recovered.

The youth is the most dynamic segment of the society and their role is very important in the development of the country. On the one hand, people need to be educated, health while providing them with the best possible healthcare facilities. On the other hand, businesses need to be regulated and protected. It is important to balance these two aspects to ensure a healthy and prosperous society.

In recent times, the country has seen a rise in corruption, which has affected the economy and the quality of life for the common man. The government has been working tirelessly to fight corruption and promote transparency. However, there is still a long way to go.

Talking about the current scenario, the next generation needs to be educated on the importance of fighting corruption. They need to be made aware of the negative impact of corruption on the economy and the society. By doing so, we can ensure that the next generation grows up to be honest and transparent individuals.

On a similar note, the government has also been taking steps to promote transparency in the public sector. The Right to Information Act has been a significant step in this direction. The government has also been promoting anti-corruption campaigns to raise awareness about the issue.

A few initiatives that the government has taken include:

1. The Lokpal and Lokayukta Act, 2013
4. The Right to Information Act, 2005

These initiatives have helped in creating awareness about the issue of corruption and have also helped in bringing the corrupt to justice. However, there is still a long way to go.

Oscars will have a host again, says ABC

The 2022 edition of the Academy Awards will have a host after a gap of three years, broad- casts ABC Entertainment President Craig Erwich said. Hulu Originals & ABC Entertainment President Morgan Fink said the news that the Oscars 2022 ceremony will be led by a formal host during the Television Critics Association winter press tour on Tuesday. “You heard it here first, I can confirm that this year’s Oscars will have a host,” Erwich said, adding that it is to be announced soon.

The Academy Awards went hostless in 2019 after actor Kevin Hart, who was set to emcee the ceremony, was embroiled in a controversy over his past homophobic tweets. For the subsequent editions, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences (AMPAS) decided to continue the practise of organ- ising the Oscars without an official host.

Jimmy Kimmel last served as the host of the Academy Awards, having emceed the ceremony in 2017 and 2018. Other hosts over the past decade included Chris Rock (2016), Neil Patrick Harris (2015), Ellen DeGeneres (2014), Seth MacFarlane (2013), Billy Crystal (2012) and James Franco/Anne Hathaway (2011). Also on Tuesday, the AMPAS announced that veteran Glenn Weiss will direct the Oscars for a seventh consecutive year.

The 2022 Oscars will be held on March 27, 2022.

BUMRAH TAKES FIVE AS INDIA CLAIM SLIGHT EDGE

India’s Test triumph Down Under last year is one of greatest: Gavaskar

PTI for CAPE TOWN

India have seven more to win in the two-match Test series between the two sides. Before the bowlers take centerstage, the batmen will have to work in unison to take India over the line. Rohit Sharma and Virat Kohli have been the standout performers for India in this series. Rohit has scored 151 in the two innings so far against South Africa while Kohli has scored 141.

The series has been a complete display of the all-rounder’s skills by India’s pacers. Jasprit Bumrah has taken five wickets in the first Test against South Africa. He was the pick of the bowlers as India went on to win the Test by 37 runs.

Ravichandran Ashwin had helped secure India’s four-wicket victory in the second Test as well. He took four wickets in the match to help India win the series 2-1.

India’s win in Australia early last year despite being one of the most experienced teams in the world was a tribute to the determination shown by the team. The team was led by Kohli, who made his debut in Test cricket against South Africa on 26th December 2009.

It was a day when Kohli’s captaincy was tested to the limit. The team had to bat through a difficult period on Day 3, facing a strong bowling attack from the Proteas. Kohli’s captaincy was crucial as he guided his team to victory.
