The civil society in Pakistan seems to have lost its vigour and has been forced to shy away from pro-activism under the political-military control in order to sustain and consolidate democracy in true spirit... It will not be sufficient for civil society to break the silence by simply demonstrating on the streets but independently questioning the dominance of military and political power is essential to put pressure on such rallies to promote and consolidate democracy... It has to be a strategic initiative and a long-term commitment...
Covid-19 can cause severe damage to organs like the kidney, affect function even after the person recovers. This is serious and frightening. From severe Covid-19, complications will show signs of severe kidney damage. This includes those signs often manifest in high levels of blood or protein in the urine as well as abnormal blood work.
