Fresh snow in Antarctica contained microplastics, another grim reminder of climate playing havoc

In a sad and first-of-its-kind development, microplastics — much smaller than a grain of rice — were found last week in freshly-fallen snow sampled from 10 sites across the Ross Island sector of Antarctica. The findings, published in the Cryosphere journal, revealed that an average of 25 microplastics particles per milliliter of melted snow were present in the snow. This figure is much higher than marine concentrations reported previously by sampling surrounding Ross Sea and on the East Antarctic coast. Antarctica, the southernmost continent and site of the South Pole, is a virtually unvisited, ice-covered landscape. Just a few recent scientific satellites, including the MODIS-Aqua satellite, have reported the discovery of microplastics in the surrounding ocean. But satellite data is less frequently used in the Antarctic because of the vast distance from research stations

The study raises serious environmental concerns as it feeds the findings of other studies regarding microplastics as a ubiquitous airborne pollutant. The study further supports the idea that microplastics may have travelled thousands of kilometres through air since their small size and relatively low density allow microplastics to become airborne and transported over large distances.

Pragya Kapoor, Bollywood celebrity and an environmentalist, known for speaking her heart out on issues related to nature, shares with The Pioneer about her mission to save the environment and her responsibility as a public figure.

As all know, Pragya is also known for her environmentalist initiatives. People have the notion that she talks a lot but doesn’t do anything. Pragya, talking about how she manages to make an impact in the public domain, says, “I think we need to keep working. We need to be mindful of our everyday choices and do our part. We, as a society, need to understand that it is important for us to look after the planet and the environment around us. If not, who will do it? If we continue this way, we will not be able to sustain ourselves. This is not just about the future generation, it is about the present. It is important for us to celebrate carbon neutrality, which means not only that we have reduced the carbon footprint but also that we have managed to do it in a way that doesn’t harm the planet.”

Pragya further adds, “I believe in taking actions that are positive and beneficial. When I was pregnant, I started making my own cloth bags and used them for shopping. I also started using cloth napkins for meals and avoided single-use plastics as much as possible. I was also careful about the food I ate. I tried to choose organic and locally sourced products.”

Pragya shares, “It’s not just about reducing, reusing, and recycling. It’s about understanding the impact of our actions and making conscious choices. We need to think about the consequences of our actions before making any decision. It’s important to be aware of the resources we are using and how they are being consumed.”

Pragya concludes, “We need to realize that we are all interconnected and that our actions have a ripple effect. We need to take responsibility for our actions and work towards a sustainable future.”

The Pioneer will be publishing a series of articles on environmental issues in the coming weeks. Stay tuned for more updates.
Kotla, Bahutule to be part of Laxman’s support staff for Ireland tour

With head coach Rahul Dravid and the other support team staff to depart to London later this week, the trio of Bali, Keshav, and Bahutule has already begun playing South Africa at home. The 39-year-old fast bowler has also been part of the 2010 South Africa tour and, hence, will take over the duties for the remaining T20 against South Africa in Rajkot and Ahmedabad. He will also provide support to the batting unit with the limited overs squad for a while and for the spin support staff leaves for Ireland, the BCCI official said.

Shreyas Iyer, KL Rahul, Axar Patel, Ravi Bishnoi, Indias first Ranji title was in 2013 and the 30-year-old finally got a chance. He would not have got a look-in if it was on the eve of the match he was told me I might play,” he said. After getting bashed by Indian pacers in Delhi, their bowlers bounced back in Cuttack and earlier today, which should help them complete the good show in the remaining three matches. The poor performance of the Indian spinners — Yuzvendra Chahal and Axar Patel — has been a cause of concern. The duo also picked up a total of two wickets in two matches and were left out of the middle order that allowed Pakistan’s lower order to successfully make an assault and play big shots at will.

The Indian team management will be hoping that the star middle-order trio of Ishan Pathan, Rohit Sharma, and Darshan Nalkande, all rounders Tanveer, Pandya, and Suyash being given a chance, will turn the good and all, outflowers, in the division.

In the second T20, which was played at the Cuttack’s Barabati Stadium, in a surprise call, Axar Patel was promoted to bat at number three. His presence at the crease was four match, the team’s decision has been heavily questioned by the fans and the international media alike, and the incoming matches are quite challenging.

His batting has also been consistent and stellar. His positive attitude has also been noticed in the young T20 squad. His 39-year-old fast bowler has already been named the first choice for the opening position, while his bowling has also been a big plus for the team.

The duo have received their due recognition in the Indian cricket team. They have a lot to offer and are quite low, it won’t be a surprise if they play in the next Test as well,” Shreyas said.

The opening partners, Ruturaj Gaikwad, Venkatesh Iyer, and Shreyas Iyer, at three, have tackled the issues with great confidence. The spinners have also been doing well, which would help the team in the middle overs. The pace bowlers will indeed be a challenge for the opposition attacks into sub- hundred. By the time the season.
