President Ram Nath Kovind has cleared a Punjab-owned 31.36-acre field at Chakan near the factory workers. The factory was being run by a Bengal-based company, but had stopped operations due to financial loss. The local administration was trying to acquire the land to build an industrial park, but the company was unwilling to give up its stake. The President's decision will allow the local authorities to complete the acquisition process and plans for the industrial park can be implemented. However, the decision has put the local economy at risk, as the factory was a major contributor to the area's employment and tax revenues. The Punjab government is expected to face criticism over the move, as it is seen as an attempt to appease the industrialists at the expense of the local workers and businesses.

We are facing a tough time applying the draconian provisions of the Act for sexual offences to youngsters or teen couples involved in romantic relationships. For instance, there is no question of bail for the accused in sexual offences cases. Or, even if the accused claimed the under-age girl gave consent for a sexual relationship, such consent of a minor is deemed null and void. That said, the court did not issue any “no bail” order.

China has also reportedly told the US that “unilaterally tightening the screws” on its efforts to make progress in the area is not going to help China improve its standing in the eyes of the Chinese.

While the United States is claiming that Russia has trafficking in nuclear material and chemical weapons, China has reportedly warned that both sides should think about the implications of the tension and the remaining bridges between the West.

The focus should maintain a reserve of gas equal to 10 percent of its total NG supplies from the former USSR other lands. They are the most reliable sources are furnished. The most of imported gas for the country's needs from countries of middle east viz. Qatar, Oman, UAE etc. Other suppliers are USA, Australia and Russia. Within the provisions of supplying of under long term contract which remain stable for the short term volatility, prime time I see that India would be impacted much. But, this disruption from a supply of a dominant player would be a shock to international gas currencies. From 2012 to 2020, the price of LNG fluctuated between US$ 4.00 and US$ 6.00 per million Btu with an average price of US$ 5.60 per million Btu for the Indian market. It is a long-term issue and no मांग है।

On the other hand, India's gas supply is produced from the domestic market. The potential of India's gas resources is around 54.6 billion cubic meters (bcm) and from the domestic market, it is around 28.5 bcm. During 2020-21, production was 26.2 bcm, which was down by 15.7 percent compared to 2019-20. The slowdown has to do with the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on the economy and the overall global demand for gas. The extant system should go; instead, firms should be free to negotiate prices directly with customers and users of gas to lobby with their local authorities. This would help to improve the competitiveness of the Indian gas market and reduce the burden on consumers. The Indian government should promote the usage of gas as a source of clean energy and reduce its dependence on imported gas. The Indian government should also focus on developing the domestic gas sector and promoting the usage of gas in the transportation, power, and industrial sectors. The government should also promote the usage of gas in the residential sector to reduce the usage of coal and other fossil fuels. India pursuing bilateral steps for renewable energy targets: UN chief

UN chief urges India to take climate action

The United Nations Secretary-General Antonio Guterres has urged India to raise its climate goals and take action to reduce its carbon footprint.

Guterres, who is in India on a five-day visit, said India’s national climate plan, which was submitted to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change in October 2021, is important but needs to be strengthened. He added that India has the potential to be a global climate leader.

Guterres also called on India to raise its ambition in terms of renewable energy targets. India has set a goal of generating 450 gigawatts of renewable energy by 2030.

He said India’s success in this area would be crucial for the world, especially given that India is the second-largest emitter of greenhouse gases after China.

The UN chief also called on India to set ambitious targets for carbon neutrality by 2050 and to be at the forefront of global efforts to tackle climate change.

Guterres ended his remarks by saying that India has a unique opportunity to lead the world in the transition to a low-carbon economy and to provide a blueprint for other countries to follow.

India’s response

India’s Ministry of Commerce and Industry said it welcomed the UN chief’s remarks and would continue to work towards achieving its climate goals.

The ministry also said India was committed to the Paris Agreement and was working towards increasing its renewable energy capacity and reducing its carbon footprint.

India has set a target of generating 450 gigawatts of renewable energy by 2030 and has pledged to reach net-zero emissions by 2070.

Other remarks

Guterres also took the opportunity to call on other countries to raise their climate ambitions and to take action to reduce their carbon emissions.

He said the world was facing a climate crisis and that urgent action was needed to prevent the worst impacts of climate change.

Guterres also called on countries to support the goal of net-zero emissions by 2050 and to ensure that the world is on track to limit global temperature rise to 1.5 degrees Celsius.

He said the UN would continue to work with countries to support their climate ambition and to help them reduce their carbon emissions.

Conclusion

Guterres’s visit to India comes at a time when the world is facing a climate crisis and when urgent action is needed to prevent the worst impacts of climate change.

India has a unique opportunity to lead the world in the transition to a low-carbon economy and to provide a blueprint for other countries to follow.
RBI in early gains, risk-on sentiment persists: Sensex, Nifty tumble 1%

PTI / 16 Mar 2022

NEW DELHI: Sensex and Nifty nosedived in early trade on Wednesday as inflationary pressure and geopolitical risks weighed on sentiment.

The benchmark Sensex was down 461.99 points or 1.05 per cent at 43,184.22 at 10:05 am and the broader Nifty declined 149 points or 1.4 per cent to 10,214.80. Stock markets took a cue from international equities as investors were wary amid soaring crude oil prices and geopolitical tension.

Inflationary pressure and geopolitical risks continued to weigh on share market sentiments. The rupee also lost further ground to settle at 51.55 against the US dollar. It was trading 0.55 per cent lower against the dollar on Tuesday.

In a bid to cushion the impact of volatility, the RBI had on Tuesday lowered the policy rate by 25 basis points to 5.4 per cent and held the inflation projection for the current fiscal year at 6.5 per cent.

Gold and silver prices were also under pressure with the precious metals sliding on international cues. Gold was trading at Rs 49,242 an ounce and silver at Rs 69,374 per 10 grams.

FABULOUS FORTUNE TELLER!

NEW DELHI: Money has its ways of playing tricks with the Common Man, especially in these times. From turning a rabid bull, the rupee has now become a meek lamb, unable to withstand the pressure.

To give you an idea, it all started on July 27, 2021. That was when the rupee hit a high of 51.374. Since then, it has been a downward spiral. The rupee hit its lowest of 51.59 on February 28. The fall has been nothing short of 0.8 per cent, a significant drop.

The growth in the rupee has been accompanied by a decrease in its value. The currency has seen a significant drop, from a high of 51.374 to a low of 51.59, with only a 0.2 per cent increase in its value. This has been due to the pressure from the US dollar, which has been gaining strength against the rupee.

The rupee has also been affected by the rise in oil prices. The country's imports are heavily dependent on oil, which is a major contributor to the country's trade deficit. The high oil prices have caused an increase in the rupee's value, making it difficult for the country to meet its international obligations.

On the other hand, the government's decision to peg the rupee at a fixed rate with the US dollar has also caused a significant drop in the rupee's value. This policy, which was implemented to stabilize the economy, has had a negative impact on the rupee.

In conclusion, the rupee has been a victim of its own policies and external factors. The government needs to take steps to stabilize the currency and prevent it from falling further. The country's economy is at stake, and it is time to take action.
B ecause food fuels the major causes of air pollution as when we burn fossil fuels or deforest trees. For instance, the air is also poisoned by breathing. According to a report of the World Health Organization (WHO), air pollution is responsible for nearly 7 million deaths every year around the globe. The report also states that 9 out of 10 human beings are breathing air that exceeds the WHO’s guidelines limits for fine particulate matter. Air pollution is now recognized as one of the leading causes of death and disability worldwide.

Within the adverse winter every year, the air quality in Delhi-NCR usually starts dropping. The underlying reason for this pollution is sudden spikes in pollution levels as well as ongoing construction activities and road dust due to the excessive use of vehicles, industries, and other human activities.

This can be dangerous when the air quality in toxic and, adverse effects such as asthma, bronchitis, and cardiovascular diseases are also associated with it. The risk of developing diseases is much higher in people who are already suffering from such conditions.

How should we save ourselves from air pollution?

To begin with, use pollution masks such as aloe vera and spider plant in his/her home and wear a mask to reduce exposure to harmful pollutants. Also, try to reduce your number of long drives in your car and consider using public transportation or cycling instead. As far as possible, try to avoid visiting crowded areas.

When the winter season starts and the temperature drops, the air quality becomes worse. So, it is important to take extra precautions during this period.

C oncept of air pollution is a major concern these days because of its adverse effects on human health. All pollutants can affect your health in many ways. Some pollutants may also cause long-term damage to your health.

These pollutants include particulate matter, smoke, nitrogen oxides, sulfur dioxide, carbon monoxide, lead, and ozone. Each of these pollutants can affect your health in different ways.

One of the main causes of air pollution is the burning of fossil fuels. Fossil fuels release pollutants such as carbon monoxide, sulfur dioxide, and nitrogen oxides into the air. These pollutants can cause respiratory problems, heart disease, and other health problems.

Another major cause of air pollution is the burning of biomass. Biomass includes products such as wood, rice straw, and crop residues. When these products are burned, they release pollutants such as carbon monoxide, sulfur dioxide, and nitrogen oxides into the air.

To reduce the risk of developing health problems due to air pollution, it is important to take steps to reduce your exposure to pollutants. This includes using air purifiers, wearing masks, and avoiding areas with high levels of pollution.

In addition, it is important to support policies that aim to reduce air pollution, such as those that promote the use of public transportation, renewable energy sources, and energy-efficient appliances.

It is crucial to take action to address air pollution, as it is a major threat to our health and well-being.

Slamptune Krawczyk, who turned back the clock with a 6-3, 6-2 win over Fritz, was also on hand to claim the record-setting 21st Grand Slam title with an epic comeback victory over Rafa.
