China air crash sets mountain on fire, 132 feared dead

Beijing: A Chinese passenger plane with 132 people on board crashed in the southwestern Chinese city of Wuzhou. The government said the crash was caused by a mechanical failure, but a thorough investigation would follow. The Boeing 737 aircraft was on its way from Guangzhou to Lishui when it went down. The official Xinhua News Agency reported that 132 people were on board, including passengers and crew. The plane was seen burning fiercely with thick smoke, and rescue efforts were underway. The accident occurred during a period of high traffic, with the holiday season approaching.

Govt to mail scrapping MPs' quota of 10 students' admission in Central schools

The Government would consider whether to scrap the privilege of 10 students' admission in Central schools in an academic year, according to political sources. The students of MPs' children could get enrolments of seats in the schools organized in schools to avoid discontent in party and state.

The issue to end the privilege of 10 seats in the Central Council of members obtained from the Petrakar Singh Chandel, theenchills, the managing director of the central recruitment agency, was doing well to meet the demand, which was met with the candidates on Wednesday. Most of the education department officials said they had received complaints from the candidates that the government's decision to scrap the scheme was done after the candidates had already cleared the written examination.

"I would be very difficult to do away with the scheme," Chandel said.

While objecting to the government's move, the MP of Rajasthan's Loksabha, Pratap Jaiswal, said the government had no right to end the scheme without consulting the candidates who had already cleared the written examination.

"We will continue to support the candidates who have already cleared the written examination and will also take legal action against the government if it fails to consider their complaints," Jaiswal said.

The government had announced in the Lok Sabha on Wednesday that it has decided to scrap the privilege of 10 students' admission in Central schools in an academic year, which was given to the MPs of the Lok Sabha and the Rajya Sabha.

Govt allays fear of crude oil shortage

The government has allayed fears of a crude oil shortage in the coming days, saying that the country has ample reserves to meet its demand.

"We have imported large quantities of crude oil in recent months to ensure a steady supply in the domestic market," the government said in a statement.

It also said that the country's crude oil reserves are sufficient to meet its demand for several months.

The government has been under pressure to reduce its dependence on imports of crude oil, which is a major source of its foreign exchange earnings.

It has also been trying to increase domestic production of crude oil by encouraging private companies to explore for oil and gas fields in the country.

Central universities have to use CUET scores to admit students, says UGC

Under the domain-specific entrance examination (DSEE), candidates can choose a maximum of six universities and fill up seven forms to apply for admission to six universities. The information for each university is available on the university's website and the CUET website.

CUET is conducted by the National Testing Agency (NTA), which is a statutory body that conducts entrance exams for higher education in India. The agency conducts the CUET for more than 40,000 seats in various Central universities.

The examination is conducted in two stages, with the first stage being a multiple-choice question paper and the second stage being a language proficiency test. The language proficiency test is conducted in English and Hindi.

The scores of the CUET are used by Central universities in India to admit students in various undergraduate and postgraduate courses.

What the invasion of Ukraine foretells

THANH HUY LE

Beijing may or may not get closer to Moscow due to the impact of the invasion but India needs to be very careful along the border with China.

american Prime Minister Scott Morrison recently warned that the US has an “interest of autonomy” in the Indian Ocean. This was the result of Mr. Morrison’s meeting with China’s National Security Council. However, the Prime Minister also acknowledged that in the case of China’s military aggression, the US will provide support to the principle of the Chinese Communist Party.

Mr. Morrison, in his statement, pointed out that China and the US have a “common interest” in the Indian Ocean. He warned that China’s aggression in the South China Sea, which began in the 1950s and 1960s, is growing at an “unprecedented rate.” This is due to China’s rapid economic growth and military modernization.

Mr. Morrison also expressed concerns about China’s actions in the South China Sea, including its land reclamation efforts and the construction of artificial islands. He called on China to respect the rules of international law and to engage in transparent and peaceful negotiations.

He added that the US and its allies in the region must be prepared to defend themselves if necessary. He emphasized that the US and its allies must maintain strong military capabilities to maintain regional stability.

Mr. Morrison’s statement came amid growing tensions between the US and China over the South China Sea and other issues. The US and its allies have been increasing their military presence in the region as a deterrent to China.

Mr. Morrison’s comments are likely to be seen as a warning to China and a show of support for the principle of the Chinese Communist Party.

KREMILN MAY FEEL ANGRY IF CHINA CANNOT HELP IT TO THE EXTENT IT WANTS.

EQUALLY, CHINA MAY WORRY ABOUT MOVING CLOSER TO RUSSIA, FEARING THE POSSIBILITY OF THE LATTER INITIATING ANOTHER CONFLICT THAT MAY SEVERELY DAMAGE BEIJING’S INTERESTS.

As for Russia's invasion of Ukraine, President Vladimir Putin has repeatedly said that the conflict is a necessary response to the West’s attempts to isolate Russia. However, Mr. Putin may feel angry if China does not provide the support it needs.

China, as a member of the UN Security Council, has a veto power that can stop any resolution demanding that Russia withdraw its troops from Ukraine. China has previously used its veto power to protect Russia.

However, Mr. Putin may feel that China is not doing enough to support Russia. He may feel that China is not taking a more active role in the conflict and that China is not providing the support it needs.

Mr. Putin’s statements are likely to be seen as a warning to China and a show of support for Russia.

CONSERVE OUR WATER RESOURCES

Sir — We live in a water-stressed country. Water is vital for our survival. It is used for drinking, cooking, and industrial purposes. Without water, our economy will suffer. Hence, it is crucial to conserve our water resources.

To conserve water, one must use water wisely. We should install water-efficient appliances and use them properly. For example, we should use a water-efficient dishwasher instead of washing dishes by hand. We should also fix leaks in our faucets and toilets.

We should also be mindful of our water consumption. We should avoid wasting water by leaving the tap running while brushing teeth or washing dishes. We should also avoid washing clothes in a single load when it is possible to wash several loads at once.

Moreover, we should be aware of the water needs of our neighbors. We should be mindful of the water needs of the elderly and people with disabilities who may not be able to carry out their daily chores.

In conclusion, we should all be mindful of our water consumption and use water efficiently. We should also be mindful of the water needs of others.

The Indian Don Camillo of Jalalpur

H e was in the eye of a nationwide controversy when a nun hauled him to the police and courts with allegations of rape and molestation.

The incident occurred in Don Camillo’s village of Jalalpur in Kolar, Karnataka, in 2012. The nun, who was then 17, accused him of raping her and molesting her younger sister. The case gained national attention and sparked a debate about the role of Catholic priests in India.

Don Camillo is a character from the Italian writer Ivanoe Bonomi’s novels and short stories, featuring a priest who is known for his irreverent and outspoken views. The character has become a cultural icon in India, where he is often portrayed as a symbol of the struggle against superstition and religious dogma.

The nun who accused Don Camillo has become a symbol of the fight against sexual violence in India. Her actions drew national attention and highlighted the need for greater safeguards and protections for women and girls.

The case has also raised questions about the role of the Catholic Church in India, and the need for greater transparency and accountability in the handling of sexual abuse cases.

Despite the controversy, Don Camillo remains a beloved figure in India, and his character continues to inspire new generations of writers and artists.
Ukrainians reject Russian demand for surrender in Mariupol

India pursuing bilateral steps for energy savings: UN chief

By Peter Unger

Washington, Aug. 23 (IANS) - US Secretary of State Antony Blinken on Monday issued a joint statement with his Indian counterpart S Jaishankar saying that both nations had taken bilateral steps towards energy savings.

"We commend the joint steps taken by India and the US on energy savings," said Blinken in the statement which Jaishankar read out. "In this context, Jaishankar emphasised that India has embarked on a process to bring energy efficiency improvements in her banking sector and is working on a roadmap to achieve a 50% reduction in coal consumption in the power sector by 2030. Jaishankar also noted that India has launched the National Mission for Enhanced Energy Efficiency (NEMEE)." "A joint statement was issued by US Secretary of State Antony Blinken and Indian Foreign Minister S Jaishankar after a meeting here on Monday.

The statement said that both nations had taken "important bilateral steps towards energy savings".

The US State Department said the two leaders had "discussed ways to save energy and strengthen our cooperation in the energy sector to advance our shared commitment to the climate crisis and achieve our respective Nationally Determined Contributions (NDCs) under the Paris Agreement on climate change."

Jaishankar said both the nations would continue their cooperation for the "common cause of climate change".

Ahead of the joint statement, in a series of tweets, Jaishankar wrote: "We look forward to our meeting with US Secretary of State @ Antony Blinken. India and US today signed the Joint Statement on India-US Energy Cooperation built on the progress made at the 2011 Strategic & Commercial Dialogue.

India and the US have taken joint steps for energy savings. These energy savings efforts, together with our bilateral cooperation, are important in the context of the shared commitment of both nations to the Paris Climate Agreement and our respective Nationally Determined Contributions. We look forward to deeper cooperation in the years ahead."

Exposure to highly polluted air on a regular basis, or long term, can have a significant impact on the human respiratory system. Breathing in polluted air can lead to respiratory problems such as asthma, bronchitis, and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD). In addition, exposure to air pollution has been linked to a higher risk of developing cardiovascular disease, stroke, and even cancer.

Studies have suggested that air pollution is particularly harmful to children and elderly people. For example, children growing up in areas with high levels of air pollution are at a higher risk of developing asthma and other respiratory diseases. Elderly people, who may already have pre-existing health conditions, can be particularly vulnerable to the effects of air pollution.

In addition, exposure to air pollution can lead to long-term health effects. For example, research has shown that exposure to air pollution can increase the risk of developing respiratory and cardiovascular diseases later in life. Children exposed to high levels of air pollution in the womb or early childhood are at a higher risk of developing these conditions later in life.

Air pollution is a major public health concern around the world. It is estimated that around 7 million people die each year as a result of exposure to air pollution. In addition, air pollution is responsible for a significant portion of global burden of disease, including respiratory and cardiovascular diseases.

There are a number of strategies that can be used to reduce air pollution. These include reducing the use of fossil fuels, improving public transport, promoting energy efficiency, and encouraging the use of renewable energy sources. In addition, laws and regulations can be put in place to limit the amount of pollutants that can be emitted into the air.

In conclusion, air pollution is a significant public health concern, and efforts must be made to reduce air pollution in order to improve the health of individuals and populations. This can be achieved through a combination of individual and public policy strategies.

HIGH SCREEN TIME IS RISKY
As per the study, for every hour of digital screen time, the life expectancy reduces by up to 2 minutes. DR PULIP GUDA tells us more

In 2020, during the pandemic, there was an increase in the number of people using digital screens, leading to an increase in screen time. This increase in screen time has been linked to various health issues, such as increased risk of obesity, diabetes, and cardiovascular diseases. In addition, excessive screen time has been linked to poor sleep quality and mental health problems, such as depression and anxiety.

Studies have shown that prolonged screen time can lead to increased risk of obesity and diabetes. In addition, the blue light emitted by digital screens can disrupt sleep and lead to poor sleep quality.

Recent studies have shown that digital screen time is associated with an increased risk of mental health problems, such as depression and anxiety. In addition, excessive screen time has been linked to a decreased quality of life, as it can lead to reduced physical activity and social interactions.

In conclusion, excessive screen time is a significant public health concern, and efforts must be made to reduce it in order to improve the health of individuals and populations. This can be achieved through a combination of individual and public policy strategies.
