It appears that India is a half-sovereign State; the concept was innovated by a German jurist on international law in the 18th century.

The grassroot killings at Chhattisgarh and Assam can be seen as an outcome of the Indian independence of half-sovereignty that has resulted in the President of India losing upon the US Declaration of Independence. The first document to emancipate servitude was the Constitution of Great Britain 1791 stated: Inter alia, the sovereignty is unchangeable, and incomprehensible to the people of the country. The concept was first thought of by Jean-Jacques Rousseau in the late 18th century. It is the foundation of our current constitutional system.

Beijing is a half-sovereign State; the concept was innovated by a German jurist on international law in the 18th century. The core of this concept is that the sovereignty of the country is divided into two parts: the federal government and the states or provinces. The federal government has the power to make laws for the entire country, while the states or provinces have the power to make laws for their own territories.

When farmers get dozens of options to sell, plain common sense says that they are bound to get a good deal in every respect, including a good price. They don't have to wait a bit and watch what happens to another dictator who launched a war on his neutrality. Neutrality and non-partisanship in his rulings and decisions are critically essential for the strengthening of the edifice of our parliamentary democracy. It’s a matter of grave worry that the Speaker has been delaying his decision on a point of order raised by the DECC officers (POs) conference at Jaipur in 2011 recommending amendment to the Rules of Procedure and Conduct of Business in the Lok Sabha to make it mandatory. On a number of occasions, the Speaker has been dilating on the subject, while a resolution of the governments of 17 States – viz. Madhya Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh, Jharkhand, West Bengal, and Gujarat — has been pending in his office. It is only due to the prodding of the Lok Sabha Secretariat that the Speaker has taken a decision at last to send the CSR bill for consideration in the House for discussion.

India continues to see a recovery in the country's economic activities despite the third wave of the coronavirus pandemic, a survey by Thomson Reuters Foundation said on Monday.

The survey, which involved 69 economists, suggested that the government's refocusing on housing loans' interest rates, subsidies and the construction boom (SOI) on construction materials will help the economy to move forward. The survey respondents also suggested that the government should give tax relief to housing developers and also offer a tax holiday to them to boost housing activities.

5 emerging healthy food trends

There has been a significant rise in global interest regarding how it affects the environment. Plant-based diets and veganism have grown from a food trend to a globally recognized movement. Many people choose plant-based meals, the food industry is gradually introducing new products and options in the segments of meat alternatives, and ready-to-cook meals. Plant-based food is not only good for the environment but also for our health.

Ready to cook meals: With many workplaces reverting back to in-person settings, employees are preparing and purchasing more meals, leading to an increase in the demand for pre-packaged meals. These meals are relatively healthy, are easy to prepare at home, and are cost-effective. They are also convenient, as they can be cooked in a 20-30-minute period.

Plant-based snacks: High-protein snacks are becoming more popular with millennials as a healthy alternative to fast food. These snacks are often made with ingredients like nuts, seeds, and legumes, which are rich in protein and fiber.

Vibrant cultural dishes: With the globalization of food, people are becoming more open to trying new and diverse cuisines. This has led to a surge in the popularity of dishes from different cultures, such as Korean BBQ, Japanese ramen, and Moroccan tagine.

Pro-feature of new, locally sourced ingredients: Consumers are increasingly looking for locally sourced and sustainably produced ingredients. This trend is driven by concerns about the environment and animal welfare.

HUSTLE CULTURE GETTING OUT OF OUR LIVES

Shantanu Maheshwari’s passion for music, sports, and academics furthered the hustle culture! While scrolling through social media and having a barrage of comments, he believed that the hustle culture is the collective urge to walk and find its feet. To give it my best shot, I used to be the type of person who would work on my laptop all day, but when it comes to our generation, we are living in a digital world and working remote is the new normal.

At the same time, there are downsides to this culture. The insecurities are crisp and clear on social media and have these expectations and pressures that it is doing to us. I realised that it is not a waste of time if I am not making any progress. We should rather live the life we want to live.

We need to separate ourselves from hustle culture.
