Regional parties, including RJD, the Congress, and the Trinamool Congress, criticized Rahul Gandhi for his recent comment on the "lack of ideology" in his party. The Congress chief had earlier criticized the BJP for its lack of ideology and had said that the party was只会信奉利益和权力.

However, this statement has sparked a controversy among regional party leaders, who have accused Rahul Gandhi of being too ideological and not focusing on practical solutions.

The RJD leader, Rabri Devi, said, "Rahul is not only speaking about ideology but also about practical solutions. He is trying to find a balance between the two.

Abhijit Banerjee, a professor at the Indian Institute of Management, has conducted a study which found that Omocrin in vaccinated produces better immunity than booster dose.

The study was conducted on a group of volunteers who were vaccinated with Omocrin. The volunteers were then given a booster dose of Omocrin. The study found that the immunity produced by Omocrin in vaccinated was significantly higher than the immunity produced by a booster dose.

The researchers have argued that these findings suggest that Omocrin in vaccinated produces better immunity than booster dose.

India’s model

The number of the so-called ‘neutral’ countries across the globe is shrinking.

Russia attacked Ukraine and the world is tory-tiny since then. Grounded political theories of how nations conduct and secure themselves are going for a toss. As the tension continues, the threat may grow despite the reformed international system of now, individuals or groups, behave with one another. The conflict draws world’s attention to India and its stand on non-aggression. For weeks, the West pressured India to cease its stand by offering both sides and veiled threats. India did not yield from its stand. It abstained from voting on the United Nations resolution condemning Russia. All the way, it defended India’s sovereignty and its right to territorial integrity. It sent, and continues to send, medical and other aid to Ukraine. Reants were writing to understand how India backs its longstanding friendship with Russia while simultaneously associated with US. By the time the US is expected under the Chinese ruble and AIIB or for an invite as a G-7 Summit. It is said that India has shifted from its fossilization stance of non-alignment of the present multi-alignment model. The latest country to change its national status is Afghanistan, according to Swedish government report. In decades, they now want to join NATO because Russia makes them insecure. Therefore, the US and NATO gains a long border with Russia and a memory past with the former union.

To that extent, the former union invasion may be seen as a valid reason for Finland to jump to neutrality. With Finland and Sweden ready to join NATO, the number of Europe’s neutrals shrink. Other countries are also reviewing their neutral status. Switzerland, Europe’s most famous neutral, wonders how it can call itself neutral when it has backed European Union sanctions on Russia. Sweden, Denmark, and Norway are potentially neutral with US policies in the coming years. Ireland has backed sanctions on Russia but it militarily neutral and small and Greece and Cyprus are scaling their neutrality. Europe first saw the link between politics and economics and that led to its awareness that military alliances like NATO can achieve collective security. Not all neutrals appreciated this development and the European Community as they would weaken their neutral status. Ireland joined, arguing that the neutrality of the EU would be weakened and the situation in the EU and EEC being the two were inimical and that it was worth paying the political price of joining NATO to enclose the EEC’s economic benefits. However, the then Soviet Union threat never influenced their decision to join the European Community.

When the West still rules the Russian concern, the other states are again the army of their occupation and the pressures of maintaining Western models in the form of undying pontificry’s will. Will joining NATO resolve Finland’s non-security problems? Time will tell.

US deaths from Covid hit 1 mn

BY RAPPORTER

The US death toll from COVID-19 hit 1 million on Monday, a once-unthinkable milestone that speaks to the scale of the devastation wrought by the disease during the early days of the pandemic.

The milestone comes as millions of Americans are fully vaccinated, and near-real-time data from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention shows that the pace has slowed since a harrowing winter surge fueled by the omicron variant.

The US has reported 12,800,474 confirmed cases of COVID-19 and 1,000,030 deaths, according to a tally maintained by Johns Hopkins University.

The milestone was reached 537 days after the first known US case was reported on January 21, 2020, in a person who had recently returned from Wuhan, China.

The US leads the world in the number of confirmed cases and deaths due to COVID-19, followed by Brazil and India.

The US recorded its first COVID-19 case early in 2020, just as the pandemic was spreading globally. The country reported its first death on February 29, 2020.

The 1 million death toll is a tragic reminder of the impact the virus has had on the US and the world, and a call to continue efforts to mitigate its spread.

The US has struggled to control the virus throughout its history, with devastating outbreaks in the 1918 flu pandemic and the 1957 and 2009 flu pandemics.

The country's public health infrastructure has come under fire during the pandemic, with some experts calling for increased investment in public health systems to better prepare for future outbreaks.

The 1 million death toll is a stark reminder of the need for continued vigilance and the importance of following public health guidance, including masking, social distancing, and getting vaccinated when it is available.
Ukraine Karol in Japan, says her country will rebuild

Stina Ting Karol said on Monday that she and her fellow Ukrainians in Japan are determined to defend their land and culture from Russian forces that have invaded Ukraine. "My words are strong and music, " Karol said in Tokyo during her visit to the country.

In Ukraine & Internationally, scenario darkens for Russia

Russian forces are now concentrating on the Donetsk region in the east of Ukraine, where they are facing a serious blow to their military might. At least six children were killed in the shelling of an area in the Donetsk region, according to the region's governor.

Renault approves sale of its Russian assets

Lawyer charged with lying to FBI in Russia probe faces trial

A federal trial began on Monday in Washington against former Clinton campaign attorney who is charged with lying to the FBI. The trial is being held in connection with an investigation into potential ties between Russia and the 2016 presidential campaign of Hillary Clinton, who was then a Democratic presidential candidate.

Ukraine says Russia strikes at Donetsk sites

Russian forces said on Monday that they had launched air and artillery strikes around the Donetsk region in eastern Ukraine, where they are facing pressure from Ukrainian forces.

Meanwhile, US officials have seized two Russian ships in the Black Sea, which the US says were trying to violate Ukraine's territorial waters. The ships were believed to be carrying weapons and military equipment.

Meanwhile, Russian influence in Ukraine is growing as the country faces increasing pressure from Western sanctions and isolation.

The Biden administration has said it is mulling a range of options to respond to the situation, including economic sanctions and possible military aid to Ukraine.

The Russian military has repeatedly denied any involvement in the conflict, but evidence has emerged to suggest that the country has been providing financial support to separatists in eastern Ukraine.
