Jana Sena chief in Vijayawada at Naidu's behest: Amarnath

Jana Sena chief Pawan Kalyan has announced the postponement of the Janasena province committee meeting that was scheduled for April 9 in Visakhapatnam.

Amarnath, in an interview with The Hindu, said the party has not decided on the postponement yet. The party is trying to reach a consensus on the issue, he added.

He also said that the party will continue to focus on its three main issues:

1. Anti-Corruption: The party will continue to focus on anti-corruption initiatives and expose the alleged corruption in the state government.
2. Caste-Based Politics: The party will continue to fight against caste-based politics and ensure equal representation for all communities.
3. Inter-Religious Ties: The party will continue to promote inter-religious harmony and peace.

Amarnath also said that the party will continue to work towards a brighter future for Andhra Pradesh and its people.

Religious polarisation in India increasing in US diaspora

Religious polarisation is increasing in the US diaspora as Hindus and Muslims in America have expressed their concern over the rising tension between the two communities.

The US-based Hindu American Foundation and the Council on American-Islamic Relations (CAIR) have said that they are working to address the issue and ensure a peaceful and inclusive environment for all.

In a recent joint statement, the organizations said:

"Our governments and leaders must work together to combat this increasing polarization and ensure that all communities feel safe and welcome in our country."

The organizations have called on the US government to take immediate steps to address the issue and protect the rights of all communities.

They also urged the American public to stand together against religious polarization and work towards a more inclusive and diverse society.

The Hindu American Foundation and CAIR have been at the forefront of efforts to promote religious tolerance and inclusiveness in the US diaspora.

They have organized various programs and events to promote interfaith dialogue and understanding between Hindus and Muslims.

Jana Sena activists are pressed, asked to pay Rs 100,000 in case of non-payment

Jana Sena activists in Visakhapatnam are facing pressure to pay Rs 100,000 in case of non-payment of fines.

The activists have been asked to pay fines for violation of Section 134 of the Excise Act.

The case was registered after the activists were found to be selling liquor during a political event in Visakhapatnam.

The activists have been given 10 days to pay the fine.

They have been asked to appear before the Excise Court in Visakhapatnam and pay the fine.

Jana Sena chief Pawan Kalyan has hailed the activists and said they should not be victimized.

He said the party would continue to fight against the government and its policies.

Prevent child marriages

Legal Services Authority (DEA) secretary K.T. Raja said: “We are seeing an increase in the number of child marriages. Even in the case of marriages without registration, there are instances in several districts where the husband is either below 18 or the wife is below 16 years of age. The couple’s ages are not known in some cases. The districts are being asked to keep a close watch on the cases.”

In Andhra, the government has sought information from all the districts about cases of child marriages, which are expected to be in the thousands. So far, the government has registered 4,145 cases of child marriages in the state this year.

A peculiar feature is that the number of cases of girl child marriage in junior classes has come down, while the number of middle and high school girls marrying is on the rise. The administration says that because of the spread of education among girls, the rate of child marriage started going down in the lower classes but the increase in the middle and high school is due to lack of education and awareness.

Evidently, the trend of child marriage in the intermediate and senior classes is on the rise.

In all the districts, the District Child Protection Officers (DCPOs) and the Assistant Directors of Social Welfare (ADSWS) have taken up special drives against child marriage and are trying to make the beneficiaries aware about the child marriage issue. The agency is trying to eliminate the problem of child marriage in the state. The child marriage issue is being approached across multiple levels by the government in the state.

A recent Supreme Court order, which will come into effect from November 1, has set an upper age limit of 18 years for women and 21 years for men in order to check child marriages. The court took the decision on a plea of the Uttar Pradesh government, which claimed that the Centre has not set a uniform upper age limit for different states.

The court said that the Centre should set a uniform upper age limit, which would be applicable across the country.

In the hall of shame

Of the 121 countries on the Global Hunger Index, India is now ranked below its neighbours at 107. India is now placed at 107th spot in the list of 121 countries ranking on the Global Hunger Index. This is enough to set the alarm bells ringing for the Indian government which is high on its achievements and does not tire of enumerating its success. However, the facts are different from the projected image. Despite the Indian subcontinent.

In Afghanistan, the state of women has become pathetic in Taliban’s regime. The lives of Afghan women are very essential practices for the Sikh community. They are denied the basic right to education, then society as a whole will suffer a major setback. It is not surprising that, in India, the only country in the world with girls but also a fact that is not hidden from the hawk-eyed Financial Action Task Force (FATF), which placed Pakistan on its “grey list” for financing of terrorism and money laundering four years ago, is likely to be dropped from the list. The global financialwatchdog seems to be turning towards the view that Pakistan is complying with (or the FATF’s) action plan. This may happen soon, as the watchdog reports in Paris from October 17-18, after 10 months of the FATF. The Indian government has been criticizing the FATF for its lack of fairness in the way it deals with India and other countries. A few weeks ago, the Indian government made a strong effort to get the FATF to remove India from its “grey list” and to vote against its proposal to keep it on the list. They argued that India has made significant progress in fighting terrorism and money laundering in recent years.

The Indian government has been trying to build a better image for itself in the international community, particularly in the FATF, which plays a crucial role in fighting terrorism and money laundering. India has been working hard to comply with all the FATF’s recommendations, and it has taken several steps to improve its anti-money laundering and counter-terrorist financing framework. These include the establishment of the National Anti-Money Laundering and Counter-Terrorist Financing Authority (NACFI), the creation of the Financial Intelligence Unit (FIU) to monitor suspicious transactions, and the implementation of regulations and taxes to combat money laundering.

In the FATF’s report, India has been praised for its efforts in these areas, and it has made a significant progress in recent years. However, there are still some concerns that need to be addressed, such as the need for better cooperation with other countries and the need for more resources to combat money laundering. The Indian government has been working closely with the FATF on these issues, and it is committed to continuously improving its anti-money laundering and counter-terrorist financing framework.

The move to transfer CHILDLINE to emergency number 12 is without rationale and requires a rethink

There could be no cases of abuse and the child would not want to talk to the authorities, even if they suggested “like could your father or your mother do this?” or “you really want to make this complaint could be made,” said Brinda Ad ble.

According to her, she would ask the child to meet with the mother of the child as the comforter with the father because the abuse is brought in as an order, do not seem to be on the whole.

She would first ask her of her exact location and the nature of the questions, or in crisis situations, makes the child open up.

India's passenger vehicle exports up 2%; Maruti Suzuki leads

Passenger vehicle exports from India increased 2% in the second quarter, with Maruti Suzuki leading the charge as Tata Motors exported a smaller volume of its cars.

The data is from Society of Indian Automobile Manufacturers. In March, the country’s largest car maker exported nearly USD 10 billion in passenger vehicle exports, while Tata Motors reported a fall in exports.

“Export of passenger vehicles from India has been on a rising path and the performance in the second quarter of 2022 was also on similar lines,” said the company in its statement.

Government considering proposals for Rs 35,000 cr PHL schemes

The government is considering proposals to extend Rs 35,000 crore PLI schemes for sectors such as chemicals, textiles, automobiles, and medical devices to ensure an impetus to domestic manufacturing. While commenting on the PLI schemes, Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman said, “We have already started discussions even before the PLI schemes were introduced. The industry has been discussing with us on the need for PLI schemes in different sectors.”

Sitharaman added that the government is in the process of finalising the details of the PLI schemes, which will be announced in the next few weeks. She said that the schemes will focus on boosting domestic manufacturing, creating jobs, and improving the quality of goods produced in India. The government has already announced PLI schemes for sectors such as automotive, electronics, and pharmaceuticals.

Sitharaman also highlighted the importance of PLI schemes in enhancing India’s position as a global manufacturing hub. “The PLI schemes are not just about providing financial incentives, but also about ensuring that Indian companies have access to the latest technology and best practices,” she said. “These schemes will help us attract more investments and create a more investment-friendly climate in India.”

The government has already announced PLI schemes for sectors such as automotive, electronics, and pharmaceuticals. It is expected to announce the details of the new PLI schemes in the coming weeks.

Fuel sales soar on US festive season

Petrol sales soaked up nearly USD 29 billion from Q2 FY23 and 22-23

Fuel sales soared ahead of the US festive season with an upsurge in diesel sales. Diesel sales surged by 46% to 8.9% in Q4-22, while petrol sales increased by 34%. Petrol sales were 23% higher than Q2-22, and 8% higher than Q1-22.

“Diesel’s demand has been robust since the beginning of the year, and with the recent festivals, sales have surged even more,” said an industry official. “The US festive season is a major driver of fuel sales, as people travel more and demand for vehicles increases.”

Diesel sales have been on the rise since the beginning of the year, with a 20% increase in March and 25% in April. The latest increase in sales is due to the upcoming festive season, which is expected to boost demand even further.

Developed India: India’s potential to attract FDI

The government has been focusing on attracting foreign direct investment (FDI) to drive economic growth and create jobs in the country. This has been a major policy initiative of the current government, as it seeks to make India a global manufacturing hub.

FDI inflows into India have been rising in recent years, with a peak of USD 70 billion in 2018-19. The main drivers of FDI inflows into India have been the streamlining of the regulatory framework, the availability of a skilled labor force, and the high growth potential of the Indian economy.

FDI inflows into India are expected to continue to rise in the coming years, as the country remains attractive to foreign investors due to its large market size, skilled workforce, and lower labor costs compared to other emerging markets.

Investment in retail real estate down 63%

Investment in retail real estate has declined by 63% year-on-year, according to a report by Knight Frank. The company attributed the decline to the Covid-19 pandemic, which has disrupted the retail sector and led to a decrease in footfall.

Knight Frank’s report said that the decline in investment was driven by a decrease in the number of deals and a reduction in the average value of transactions. The report also noted that the decline was seen across all retail sectors, with the most significant decrease seen in the shopping malls sector.

Sunil Dhandre, founder of IDBI Capital, said, “The decline in investment is a reflection of the uncertainty in the retail sector due to the pandemic. However, we expect the sector to recover as the situation improves.”

The report also noted that the decline in investment was not uniform across all regions, with some areas seeing a more significant decline than others.

IT firms to lower attrition for lower quantum in coming quarters

The IT industry is seeing a decrease in attrition rates, with companies reporting a decrease in the number of employees leaving the sector. This is due to a combination of factors, including the increase in offshoring and the availability of more work.

According to a report by NASSCOM, the attrition rate in the IT sector has come down to 23% in the second quarter of 2022, compared to 25% in the first quarter.

The report attributed the decrease in attrition rates to the increased offshoring of work and the availability of more work. It also noted that the government’s decision to increase the PLI schemes has also contributed to the decrease in attrition rates.

Salaries in certain sectors to stabilise

Salaries in certain sectors are expected to stabilise in the coming quarters, according to a report by EY. The report noted that the stability in salaries is due to the increase in offshoring and the availability of more work.

While salaries in other sectors, such as manufacturing, are expected to increase, the IT and ITES sectors are expected to see a decrease in the quantum of attrition, which will lead to a decrease in the number of employees leaving the sector.

Economic global trends to guide markets

Global trends are expected to shape the economic landscape in the coming quarters, with a focus on inflation, interest rates, and geopolitical risks.

FPIs withdraw Rs 7,500 cr from Indian equity markets

Foreign institutional investors (FPIs) have pulled out Rs 7,500 crore from Indian equity markets, according to a report by Core Economy. The report noted that the withdrawals are due to the US Fed’s decision to increase interest rates and geopolitical risks.

The report also noted that the FPIs have been withdrawing funds from Indian equity markets in recent months, with a peak of Rs 1.76 trillion in August and a total of Rs 7.5 trillion in the current financial year.

Is social media influencing your eating pattern?

I f the culinary world were a big playground, it would be full of children in all shapes and sizes. Anywhere in the world—be it confectionery, pizza, or bespoke food. But there are some rules that everyone must follow, and the playground is no exception. In the culinary world, food is often not the only thing influencing our choices. It is common to see the influence of food trends on social media platforms. From celebrity-endorsed meal plans to the latest dieting strategies, food choices are often inspired by social media. This trend has led to an increase in the number of people using social media to share their likes and dislikes, and to connect with others who share similar tastes. According to a study published in the journal 'Appetite,' social media users are more likely to be influenced by peer communication than by traditional food-related media. For instance, a recent trend on Instagram is for people to post images of themselves eating healthy foods, which can inspire others to follow suit. This trend is not limited to food, but also extends to lifestyle choices like exercise and fashion. In conclusion, social media is influencing our eating patterns, and it is up to us to be mindful of what we choose to follow and to make informed decisions about our food choices.
