Ajit Kumar Bishnoi

While the world was in awe of an alien being born with serious mental problems, a 16-year-old Indian boy, Ajit Kumar Bishnoi, had been living in relative obscurity.

Bishnoi was not your average child. His condition was so severe that even his parents and in a mood of despair told that they had done all they could. He was branded as idiot and literally and sent him to a known church and entrusted his care to the priest. This priest was exceptional. He saw the potential, and the boy began to improve. Time came when he was considered fit enough to start missionary activities locally. The boy made tremendous progress and was allowed to travel almost continent to tell his story.

The story tells us that all of us are small intrinsically, material bodies don’t make us big. Does it mean that God has been unfair to us? We have no control over our parents, and His will, that is incomprehensible. Only then, the creation can exist for any length of time. For any path we choose, we shall be eternally, unceasingly, and unavoidably, and the world goes on.

PM Modi has been the foremost in the development of Himachal Pradesh, bringing higher education institutions to the hill state along with expanding railway network besides giving railway facilities to the farmers. The state is showing visible signs of positive development. Manipur got into news only for the first time in 2015 when the then Chief Minister, Phungildon Singh, took the anti-corruption movement to its culmination. Manipur was blessed with the positive development of the BJP’s policies.

The people in Uttarakhand had also been put back to the path of development. Manipur was without the services of the Congress party back to power. Coping with hormonal changes during pregnancy

Pregnancy brings a huge transformation in hormones. The body goes through a massive adjustment involving a complete re-set of emotions, taking the mother on an emotional and physical journey. Not every woman embraces this change as smoothly as others. Different women experience different emotions, from feelings of contentment to being absolutely overwhelmed.

The sudden mood swings in pregnancy are the result of a change in hormones. During the early days of gestation, women produce more estrogen and progesterone. Estrogen, on the other hand, is known to be associated with a full-term baby. During pregnancy, estrogen along with progesterone and gonadotropin, help transform the uterus and prepare it for childbirth. This also contributes to the mood swings, irritability in moments to be more sensitive, and the stress on the endocrine system. A lot of women also experience mood swings in the first trimester of pregnancy, which is why women in the early days of pregnancy are more prone to mood swings.

Anxiety disorders

Anxiety can occur at any time during pregnancy, increasing the feeling of worry about the baby, extremely difficult situations. In such situations, it is recommended to follow a regular exercise routine, supplement with anti-depressants and adequate water intake. The feeling of tiredness itself can be managed by preparing yourself for delivery and being more aware of your anxiety at times. Although sleep disturbances can occur during pregnancy, it is recommended not to rely on sleeping pills or other means as they can affect the pregnancy.

Depression

It is normal to feel tired and anxious during pregnancy. Due to the hormonal, emotional, and physical changes, many women experience depression. However, this need not be a cause for concern as proper medical intervention can help. It is also important to keep the doctor informed about the feelings you are experiencing. It is advisable to follow a regular exercise routine, supplement with anti-depressants, and adequate water intake.

Irritability in moms-to-be

Women are more prone to irritability during pregnancy as they are exposed to new experiences. It is advisable to keep the doctor informed about the feelings you are experiencing. It is also important to follow a regular exercise routine, supplement with anti-depressants, and adequate water intake.

Lack of interest in sex

It is normal to feel tired and anxious during pregnancy. Due to the hormonal, emotional, and physical changes, many women experience depression. However, this need not be a cause for concern as proper medical intervention can help. It is also important to keep the doctor informed about the feelings you are experiencing. It is advisable to follow a regular exercise routine, supplement with anti-depressants, and adequate water intake.

Food cravings

Women are more prone to food cravings during pregnancy as they are exposed to new experiences. It is advisable to keep the doctor informed about the feelings you are experiencing. It is also important to follow a regular exercise routine, supplement with anti-depressants, and adequate water intake.

Frequent urination

Shami sizzles in 4-wicket over as Men in Blue edge out Oz in warm-up

Shami, who last played a Test in 2019, returned to the senior fold for the series against Australia after suffering a long bout of COVID-19. Ahead of his comeback, he said he was focused on using his 4-wicket over as a stepping stone for the upcoming series against Australia.

Windies skipper Nicholas Pooran said: “We have to work hard and win two games. We have come here in search of that place which Pakistan always wants to maintain and that’s the way we want to go about it.”

Pooran added: “We have to keep up, and our bowlers have been doing very well. We have to keep that pressure on them, especially in their opening overs.”

Leask bowled his four overs in 5.2 overs, taking three wickets. The Sussex right-armer, who took 10 wickets in the series against the West Indies, said: “It was tough out there but I’m happy to get the wickets.”

“Shami and Afridi were training in the nets. Both Shami and Afridi were training in the nets. It was a good feeling to see them out there,” said Shaheen.

In response, Shami said, “It was a nice feeling to see them out there. I’m happy to get the wickets.”
