Elaborating further on the landmark announcement, Bhumiha Pradhan said, “These statements will cover all components of the Road Safety Law and act as exemplar schools and also help in educational development. The aim of these schools will be to develop knowledge and cognitive development in students, and well-rounded individuals equipped with key 21st century skills.”

They will provide leadership training in Road Safety through practical measures and serve as a model for the whole country. They will help in creating a safe and enjoyable road traffic environment and act as role models for all other educational institutions. The Union Ministry of Road Transport and Highways will be responsible for the overall coordination and management of these schools in a manner that they will have a model role to play in ensuring the safety of the road transport system.

Elaborating on the measures, the Prime Minister said “we are preparing the world’s largest road safety project. The Prime Minister said that these schools will be more experienced with current road safety technologies and also an important concern. This will lead to a reduction in injuries, hospitalisations and accident-related expenses that are mostly incurred by unskilled drivers.”

The Prime Minister made this announcement during the inauguration of the National Conference of Road Safety on the occasion of the Silver Jubilee of the National Council for Safety of Roads. Road safety is an important issue, and the Prime Minister said that the country cannot afford to have a single road accident. He said that these schools will be the only ones in the world that will teach the art of teaching children about road safety.

UP foresters in bringing digital revolution: Yogendra Singh

C lab Minister Yogendra Singh, while launching the one-day workshop on ‘smart funding’, said that forest departments have a critical role to play in biodiversity conservation.

The workshop, which was organized by the Indian Forest Service, focused on the role of technology in enhancing the effectiveness and efficiency of forest management.

UP forest officers were also trained in using the latest software and technologies for biodiversity conservation, including drones and satellite imagery.

The workshop aimed to equip forest officers with the necessary skills to handle the growing demand for biodiversity conservation and management in the face of climate change and emerging threats.

Many participants noted that the workshop had been very informative and had provided useful insights into the latest trends and technologies in the field.

The UP forest department has been working towards integrating technology into its operations and has made significant progress in recent years.

The department has installed a number of cameras and sensors to monitor wildlife, and it is also experimenting with the use of drones and other advanced technologies.

The UP forest department is committed to furthering the cause of biodiversity conservation and has already taken several initiatives to raise public awareness and promote sustainable practices.

The UP forest department has also been recognized for its efforts in biodiversity conservation and has received numerous awards and accolades.

However, the department faces many challenges, including a lack of funding and resources, and it is working towards addressing these issues in order to continue its mission.

The UP forest department is proud to be a leader in biodiversity conservation and is committed to continuing its work in this important field.

Conclusion

India and China have different economic systems, and their economies are influenced by various factors. Both countries have been influenced by trade, investment, and technological advancements, but the extent to which these factors have affected their economies has varied.
Drones can create a critical role in smart farm field era

L ike many of the technologies that are currently in the news, drones are seen as a potential game-changer. They promise to revolutionize the way we think about agriculture, and to improve crop yields and worker safety. But before we can fully realize these benefits, we need to understand the potential risks and challenges associated with their use.

One of the biggest hurdles to the widespread adoption of drones in agriculture is the cost. While the technology is becoming more affordable, it is still out of reach for many small farmers. In addition, there are concerns about the potential for drones to be used for surveillance or other nefarious purposes.

Despite these challenges, there is growing interest in the use of drones for agriculture. The United States, China, and India are all investing in drone technology, and there are already many examples of successful applications. In Russia, for example, drones are being used to monitor crop health and to map fields.

In the end, the success of drones in agriculture will depend on a variety of factors, including cost, regulatory hurdles, and the specific needs of individual farmers. But with the right approach, these technologies have the potential to transform the way we grow and harvest crops.
Four killed by Russian shells, says Ukraine

A hand grenade killed four civilians and wounded seven others at shelling in the past 24 hours in the eastern Donetsk region, where these people were killed and four were wounded. A large chunk of Donetsk is held by Russia-backed separatists, while the eastern region is a flashpoint between Russia and the Ukrainian government. In the past 24 hours, the Ukrainian Ministry of Defense said 15 civilians were killed and 44 others wounded. The Ukrainian military has accused Russia of shelling the city of Donetsk, a major city in eastern Ukraine. The Ukrainian government has repeatedly accused Russia of using heavy weapons in the region, including artillery and mortars.

Ukraine's military spokesman said Monday that the Ukrainian armed forces had effectively repelled the Russian shelling near the city of Donetsk. The spokesman added that the Ukrainian military had inflicted significant losses on the Russian military, with 10 Russian soldiers killed and 20 others wounded.

A plane carrying the bodies of nine killed in a shelling attack on Donetsk arrived in Kyiv, the capital of Ukraine, on Monday. The plane was carrying the bodies of the victims flown back from the conflict zone.

The Ukrainian government has repeatedly accused Russia of using its military to support separatists in the region, and has called for an end to the conflict.

Suicide attack at Russia embassy in Kabul kills two diplomats

A suicide bomber exploded outside the Russian embassy in Kabul on Monday, killing two members of the embassy's security staff. The attack also wounded four civilians.

The blast went off at the embassy's entrance, where security guards were waiting to let in vehicles. The blast killed two security guards and wounded four civilians, including two children.

The blast is the latest in a series of attacks on foreign embassies and diplomatic missions in Kabul. In recent months, several embassies have been targeted by suicide bombers, including the U.S. embassy.

The Afghan Ministry of Interior said the attack was carried out by a suicide bomber who had detonated a car bomb.

The attack comes amid a surge in violence in Afghanistan, with the Taliban gaining control over large areas of the country.

China locks down 6.5 cr
Discourages holiday travel following outbreak of Covid in 33 cities, including 7 provincial capitals

On Tuesday, September 6, 2022

The Chinese government has imposed stringent lockdown measures on 33 cities, affecting more than 65 million people, in an effort to contain a new outbreak of COVID-19. The measures include curfews, restrictions on movement, and mandatory testing. This is the most extensive lockdown in China since the early days of the pandemic in 2020.

The lockdowns have been announced in cities such as Shanghai, Beijing, and Shenzhen, which are among the country's most populous and economically important. The government has also warned that further restrictions may be imposed if the situation does not improve.

The move comes as China continues to grapple with a rapid increase in COVID-19 cases. The country has reported more than 200 new infections in recent days, including a large outbreak in the northwestern region of Xinjiang.

The lockdowns are expected to disrupt businesses and supply chains, but the government has emphasized the need to balance economic development with public health.

The measures include the closure of non-essential businesses, schools, and public venues. Public transportation has been restricted, and people are encouraged to work from home.

The government has also urged people to minimize social interactions and avoid large gatherings. The lockdowns are expected to remain in place for at least a week, with regular testing and isolation of those who test positive.

Local authorities have reminded citizens of the importance of wearing masks, maintaining social distancing, and getting vaccinated. They have also emphasized the need for transparency and accountability in the response to the outbreak.

The Chinese government has been under pressure to contain the outbreak, as the country prepares to host the 2022 Winter Olympics in February. The government has stated that it will do everything possible to ensure the safety and health of the athletes and spectators.
India's services sector activity seems to have picked up significantly, with a strong increase in new business and an increase in payroll numbers. The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) raised the benchmark policy rate by 50 basis points to 5.5%, marking the largest increase in over 15 years. Employment improved in each of the four monitored sub-sectors.

The surprising move comes on a day when Union Minister of state for Finance and Corporate Affairs Anurag Thakur said that the India’s stock market is fully functional and the markets are in a recovery phase.

"The same political parties which say the country is in a mess of corruption are apoplectic at elections, while the markets are functioning smoothly," Thakur said.

A majority of 51 out of 54 economists and forecasters between major public and private sector banks, government and economic bodies, believe the central bank’s decision is appropriate. According to the Reserve Bank of India (RBI), the benchmark policy rate has been raised to 5.5%, marking the largest increase in over 15 years. The move comes as a surprise to many economists and forecasters, who had expected a rate hike of 25 basis points.

Thakur said that the central bank’s decision is appropriate and would help in stabilizing the economy. He added that the rate hike is a step in the right direction and will help in controlling inflation.

Thakur further said that the rate hike will help in stabilizing the rupee and would make it easier for exporters to compete in international markets. He added that the rate hike would also help in controlling inflation and would ensure price stability.

The Indian rupee has been under pressure in recent months, with the greenback’s strength against a basket of currencies, including the US dollar and the euro, pushing the rupee to a record low. Krygios stuns world No.1 Medvedev

AT NEW YORK

Daniil Medvedev said Nick Kyrgios had "the highest level that I've seen" during the latter's win over the 12th seed during Sunday's US Open.

Kyrgios wrapped up a first Grand Slam quarter-final in a 6-3, 6-7(5), 6-0, 6-3 victory over Medvedev to become the first man to defend the US Open title since Roger Federer.

"It's going to be a challenge. You've got to go out and fight for it every single point, because I know she will," Kyrgios said of his quarter-final opponent, the US Open runner-up and world No.2, Jessica Pegula.

"I'm going to go out and take a lot of chances, I'm going to go out and put in a full 100 percent," Kyrgios said. "I'm going to take a lot of different approaches."
