Company secretaries playing multifaceted role: Dhankhar

Vice-President of India said that the company secretaries had stepped forward in different chapters of ICSI including the academic environment of the Institute of Company Secretaries of India (ICSI).

"The students' movement in Allahabad University (AU) was suppressed under the watch of police," Ramila lyadav Samrat, who began the protest on October 17. She added that the students had been forced to leave the campus.

The incident made the students more aware of the importance of the secretarial profession. The AU administration is 'snatching' the students' rights. The police sent the students to jail after arresting them. The cases will be over within a week said the vice-chancellor of AU.

"Let us make the ’victory of the students’ known to the whole nation," he said.

The SC ruling on the 'opacity' of electoral bonds can be a game-changer for political donations.

In any democracy, electoral transparency and accountability are paramount. If political financing has structural flaws, it casts a shadow over the electoral process, eroding trust and eroding democracy. In India, electoral bonds have become a symbol of this shadow, a way for political parties and candidates to raise funds without disclosing the identities of donors. This lack of transparency raises doubts about donor identity and the intent of their contributions. The Supreme Court's recent ruling has the potential to overcome these challenges by requiring political parties to disclose the names of donors who purchase electoral bonds above a certain threshold. This is a significant step forward in strengthening electoral transparency and accountability in India.

The Government must open backroom engagement channels and not dial-up nationalist sentiment to secure the release of eight Indian ex-Navy officers.

With many of the country's exports of strategic resources, the tiny island nation of Bahrain is in a strategic position. It is known for its high-level political and economic engagements, including the release of prisoners. The Bahrain government has been under international pressure to release these prisoners, and the recent negotiations have shown some progress. The release of these prisoners is a positive development, and it demonstrates the importance of dialogue and negotiation in resolving complex international issues.

Over the years, there has been a substantial increase in the number of Indian students opting to go abroad for higher studies. This trend is largely driven by several factors, including the pursuit of better education, exposure to diverse cultures, and the desire to gain international exposure.

Over the years, there has been a substantial increase in the number of Indian students opting to go abroad for higher studies. This trend is largely driven by several factors, including the pursuit of better education, exposure to diverse cultures, and the desire to gain international exposure.

Several factors have contributed to this increase. First, the availability of international education and the opportunity to study abroad have increased significantly. Many Indian universities now offer courses in English, and the language is widely spoken in many countries. Second, the cost of higher education in India has increased, making it less affordable for many students. In contrast, many countries offer scholarships and financial aid to international students, making it more affordable to study abroad.

Let's look at some of the key factors that have contributed to this trend.

1. Cost of Education: The cost of higher education in India has increased significantly over the years, making it less affordable for many students. In contrast, many countries offer scholarships and financial aid to international students, making it more affordable to study abroad.

2. Quality of Education: Many Indian universities have limited resources, and the quality of education may not be up to par with international standards. In contrast, many countries have world-renowned universities that are renowned for their excellence in various fields.

3. Employment Opportunities: Many Indian students who study abroad return to India to work, and some find high-paying jobs in sectors like technology and finance. In contrast, many countries have thriving economies, offering students a wide range of employment opportunities.

4. Cultural Exposure: Studying abroad offers students the opportunity to experience different cultures, languages, and traditions. This exposure can be valuable for personal growth and development.

5. Networking Opportunities: Many students who study abroad return to India to work, and some find high-paying jobs in sectors like technology and finance. In contrast, many countries have thriving economies, offering students a wide range of employment opportunities.

Indian students who study abroad face several challenges. These include language barriers, cultural differences, and the pressure to adapt to a new environment. However, many students find these experiences enriching and rewarding.

Will there be more overseas universities?

A global call for peace in Gaza

Diplomacy, backed by the principles of justice and international engagement, should be the cornerstone of the effort to end the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. The ongoing conflict in the Gaza Strip that paints a grim picture of the region has been exacerbated by violence, terror, and attacks on civilians, including women and children, leading to staggering loss of life and widespread destruction of homes and infrastructure. Images of homes and families torn apart evoke a sense of shock, horror, and heartbreak.

The conflict is complex and multifaceted, with deep historical roots tracing back to the establishment of the State of Israel in 1948. The ongoing Israeli-Palestinian conflict has led to a staggering loss of life, with thousands of civilians killed and thousands more injured. The situation continues to devolve, with no end in sight.

International efforts to resolve the conflict have been ongoing for decades, with various peace processes and negotiations aimed at finding a lasting solution. However, the recent escalation of violence has highlighted the urgency of the situation.

The United Nations Security Council has repeatedly called for a cease-fire and the protection of civilians, and has imposed sanctions against those deemed responsible for the violence.

Despite these efforts, the conflict continues to spiral out of control, with each side accusing the other of violations of international law.

The urgent need for a diplomatic solution is clear. The international community must work together to end the violence, protect civilians, and find a durable peace agreement that addresses the legitimate aspirations of both parties.

Theziel is to achieve a just and lasting peace that respects the rights of all people in the region, and to ensure a future where everyone can live in safety and security.

Naveen Patnaik’s “Pandian” move

Naveen Patnaik’s “Pandian” move is a strategic and tactical response to the ongoing conflict in the Gaza Strip. The move aims to highlight the urgency of the situation and to rally support for a peaceful resolution.

Patnaik has announced plans to invest in various sectors, including education and healthcare, to provide relief to those affected by the conflict. The move is seen as a way to demonstrate the government’s commitment to addressing the needs of the people and to promoting peace in the region.

The move is likely to be seen as a bold and timely intervention, as the situation in the Gaza Strip remains volatile and uncertain. It is a clear indication of the government’s resolve to address the crisis and to work towards a peaceful resolution.

The move also highlights the challenges faced by governments in times of crisis. The need for effective leadership, strong partnerships, and a commitment to international engagement cannot be overstated.

India will soon become aatmanirbhar: Rajnath

PHOENIX NEWS SERVICE | NEW DELHI

Defence Minister Rajnath Singh has said that India will become aatmanirbhar by 2022, indicating the intention of the country as the hub of the Indian economy. He added that the country is well placed to be a world leader in the 21st century.

Singh made the statement during his speech at the inauguration of the three-day Laghu Udyog Bharti (Small Business Fair) in New Delhi. The fair is being organised by the Ministry of Micro, Small & Medium Enterprises (MSME) to promote small industries.

Singh said that small industries are the backbone of the Indian economy. He added that small industries have played a vital role in the country’s growth and development.

Singh also highlighted the role of small industries in poverty alleviation and employment generation. He said that small industries have provided employment to millions of people, especially women and youth.

Singh urged small industries to adopt modern technologies and increase their productivity. He also asked them to focus on quality and innovation to become globally competitive.

The fair is expected to bring together small industries from across the country and provide them with a platform to showcase their products and services.
