The issue of hybridization of Indo-Tibetan Buddhism with Mahayana Buddhism and the development of Buddhist culture has been a topic of discussion for many decades. However, the recent efforts to promote the development of Buddhist cultural heritage in India have gained momentum in recent years. The Indian government has been proactive in promoting Buddhist culture, and various initiatives have been taken to preserve and promote the cultural heritage of the country. The government has also provided financial assistance to various institutions and organizations involved in the preservation and promotion of Buddhist culture. The recent initiatives have included the development of Buddhist cultural heritage sites, the promotion of Buddhist culture through media and tourism, and the establishment of Buddhist universities and research institutions. The government has also taken steps to promote Buddhist culture and heritage in various countries, and various Buddhist cultural centres have been established in different parts of the world. These initiatives have helped to preserve and promote the rich cultural heritage of Buddhism in India and other countries.
Heavy rain pounds city, waterlogging adds to woes

Whenever it rains, it is the same MLA and BJP leaders as there the LMC control room, local water logged into the houses in monsoon troughline but localities early in the morning, but did not get any help. We had been through the situation. We have reported the LMC officials to construct a drain in the colony because it faces issues in such a situation,” he said.

Hyacin, a resident of the same colony, said that 11 meters and 12 meters of the road were waterlogged. “All the vehicles can’t move and we have been facing this problem from the past five years. We want the officials to resolve the issue as soon as possible,” she said.

In another locality, residents said that they are facing issues due to waterlogging in the area near the new high court and government buildings.

Hardoi, Sitapur, Niyati, an advocate residing in the area, said that pumps were already working but the water was not getting drained out. “We had to sit in the courts for about three hours in the morning,” she said.

Other residents also faced similar issues. “We took out all the clothes from our houses,” a resident said.

“I am Hannan Ahmad and I have changed my name from Vajjan Ahmad or Kallu Ahmad to Moosa. Mohd. Syed (DGP) has been wrongly printed as S.M. Naseem to be corrected. From today onwards, I am evicting my son Junaid and his wife from my movable and immovable properties. From police,” he said.

“I have changed my name from Shabnam to Janjat Khan, resident of Village 152, Nirala Nagar Lucknow, State that be known as Jannat Khan, Jannat Khan. In future she should be familiar with the complainant.”

One of the localities in the city faced issues due to waterlogging as well as NIRF rankings. "My school has failed miserably. In Lucknow, triple-engine government has seen all the students putting in extra efforts in all the subjects to bag the top spots in annual examination and now, in the NIRF rankings, the institute has been placed at the bottom,” said Avisa Roy, a student of a local institute.

"Roads have caved in. We are as committed to the success of our students as their parents,” said Principal of a local institute. "But it is disappointing to see that our hard work has not paid off. We are planning to take legal action against the institute."
Chief Minister yogi adityanath: Make roads to death by 2023

Chief Minister yogi adityanath has instructed the Road and Building department to make roads to death by 2023.

The instruction was given by the Chief Minister to his Minister for Road and Building, Pawan Kumar mishra, during a meeting with various departments on Monday.

"The development of Lucknow, Agra, Mahansar (Shahjahanpur) and other areas is not possible without proper roads," the Chief Minister said.

The meeting was attended by the speakers of the Legislative Assembly and Legislative Council.

"Roads are the lifeline of the state with a focus on regular monitoring of all road projects, including those under Phase 2," Dr. Pawan Kumar mishra, Minister for Road and Building, said.

Plastic free campaign in Lucknow

The Lucknow city corporation launched a plastic-free campaign on Monday.

The Indian Institute of Technology (IIT) Kharagpur, a premier technical university in India, has recently awarded finance to startups incubated at the institute. This initiative, supported by the Ministry of Statistics and Programme Implementation, aims to foster innovation and entrepreneurship. The funding is part of a broader government scheme designed to mitigate the crisis caused by the COVID-19 pandemic.

Institute Director Prof. R. K. Jha said, "The investment from IIT-K will help support these startups in developing business models, creating products, and demonstrating them. It is crucial to create a robust ecosystem for startups to thrive and contribute to the national economy." The funding will be used to help startups incubated at the institute to develop and launch their innovative ideas, thereby promoting entrepreneurship.

Posters were displayed at the event highlighting the current projects and products of the startups incubated at the institute. The event also included a panel discussion on the importance of funding for startups and the role of government in supporting innovation.

The funding will be used to support startups that are working on technologies like renewable energy, healthcare, and education. It is expected that these startups will create jobs, generate revenue, and contribute to the country's economic growth.

The aim of the fund is to provide support to startups that are at various stages of development. The funding will be used to help startups with their initial expenses, such as rent, salaries, and marketing.

The event was attended by startup founders, investors, and government officials. The funding is part of the government's efforts to support innovation and entrepreneurship.

Update: The startups incubated at the institute have been selected for funding through a competitive process. The funding will be provided in phases, with the first installment expected to be disbursed soon. The startups will be closely monitored and supported throughout their growth journey.

Unlocking MSME potential: G20

G20’s trade and finance strategy can fortify India’s economic backbone. It can help MSMEs plug into global supply chains and tap international markets.

T he two-day G20 Summit in New Delhi is over and the delegates have returned to their respective countries. But despite the end of the summit, the leaders’ declarations on tackling climate change, economic recovery, trade and global security, are likely to continue influencing international policies and actions for years to come.

The G20 is a forum of 20 leading economies, representing 85% of the world’s GDP and two-thirds of the total world population. The summit aims to promote international cooperation in the fields of finance, trade, and economic policies.

For India, the G20 Summit presents an opportunity to showcase its commitment to global economic growth and development, and to reinforce its role as a global economic power.

India is currently the second-largest economy in the G20, and a key player in discussions on issues such as climate change, digital economy, and infrastructure.

In terms of trade, India is the sixth-largest trading nation in the world, with exports of $388 billion and imports of $542 billion in 2022. It is also the world’s second-largest manufacturer of electronics, the third-largest in automotive components, and the fifth-largest in pharmaceuticals.

India’s participation in the G20 discussions is also important for its domestic economy. The summit provides a platform to discuss domestic issues such as those concerning the Eastern Ghats Forests, India’s Labour Code, and the Competition Commission of India.

In conclusion, the G20 Summit is an opportunity for India to strengthen its position as a global economic power, and to address the challenges facing the world economy.

FUTURE PATHS

India is a founding member of the G20, having joined in 2009. The country currently has two rotating chairs, the most recent being in 2022-23. India’s strategy for the G20 is to promote economic growth and development, address climate change, and strengthen regional cooperation.

India’s G20 Chairmanship focuses on several key areas:

1. Promoting inclusive growth: India aims to promote inclusive growth, with a focus on poverty reduction, job creation, and social welfare.
2. Economic and social stability: India seeks to maintain economic and social stability, with a focus on fiscal discipline and structural reforms.
3. Climate change: India is committed to addressing climate change, with a focus on renewable energy and carbon capture.
4. Global governance: India aims to strengthen global governance, with a focus on reforming multilateral institutions and promoting the voices of developing countries.

India’s G20 Chairmanship will continue until 2023, and it is expected to play a key role in shaping the agenda for the coming year.

A momentous chapter in India’s spiritual history

Swami Vivekananda’s lecture at the World’s Parliament of Religions revolved around the principle of unity, justice, and freedom.

Swami Vivekananda, the son of a landowning Brahmin from Calcutta, was not only a bhikshu (-one who has vowed to renounce worldly wealth and pleasure) but also a great sage and thinker who laid the foundation for modern Hinduism.

In 1893, he embarked on a historic journey to the World’s Parliament of Religions in Chicago, where he delivered a powerful address that captured the world’s attention.

The speech was delivered at the request of Lord Roberts, the British Governor-General in India, who wanted to introduce modern Indian thought to the Western world.

The lecture, titled “Thepolator’s Creed,” was delivered in English and later translated into Sanskrit, Hindi, and other languages.

The address was a resounding success and earned Vivekananda international acclaim.

He delivered the speech on November 12, 1893, and was introduced by Lord Roberts, who described Vivekananda as “the representative of the world’s oldest and perhaps the noblest nation.”

The speech was a call for unity and brotherhood, emphasizing the universal values of tolerance, respect, and understanding.

Vivekananda emphasized the importance of recognizing that all peoples belong to one family and that the struggle for freedom and justice is a shared endeavor.

He asserted that religion is the foundation of all human societies and that it is essential to promote inter-religious harmony.

Vivekananda’s speech was a clarion call for the world to come together in the spirit of unity and brotherhood.

It is a testament to his vision that his words continue to resonate today, inspiring millions to work towards a world where unity and brotherhood are cherished values.
Even as Prime Minister Narendra Modi underlines his focus of putting India on a fast track to “Atmanirbhar Bharat” or self-reliance for growth, a sudden surge in beggary, with a lot of children, has come as a wake-up call for the authorities. New Delhi has been mulling whether their old tricks will work in dealing with such rampant begging.

The problem being identified is the persistence of this grave menace of begging by children here, earlier seeking eradication of begging being declared a crime.

“Begging by children here, earlier seeking eradication of begging being declared a crime. Providing information regarding same to court. The NHRC has also recommended increasing the penalty, laying down a process to remove beggars from the streets and the Centre too has said it will work to establish a strong mechanism to deal with the problem,” said an official from the government.

The top court said the 2014 verdict, which had held that its 2014 verdict, which had held that the action of the state governments in dealing with such issues was imperious, has been strengthened further.

Minister of State for Finance and Corporate Affairs Anurag Thakur, who is also the parliamentary affairs minister, assured the Lok Sabha that the government will come up with a comprehensive policy to deal with the problem in a systematic manner.

“Ayushman Bhalla’s plan to deal with the problem will be also run at healthcare centres and in villages. Such camps will be also run at healthcare centres and in villages. Such camps will eventually ensure that the issue is not pending in nature,” he said.

His statement came after Chief Minister Narendra Modi had expressed his worry over the issue of children begging on the streets and avenues.

“Begging is a crime and needs to be legislated,” he said.

The Centre, city government and the NHRC will eventually ensure that the issue is not pending in nature,” he said.

Gandhi also assured the members that the government will come up with a comprehensive policy to deal with the problem in a systematic manner.

Mumbai: A mutual fund has jumped to a new high of Rs 1.81 lakh crore in August on the back of strong inflows in mid-cap equity schemes – they invested at periodic intervals during the month. The data indicates that retail investors continue to invest in the market, and added.

Mutual fund SIPs touch record high in August

"In August, some SIP investors may be looking to further diversify in the wake of strong inflows and sustained gains," said Venkatesh Prusty, executive director of Geojit Financial Services. He added that mutual fund inflows in August may not be an "irrational exuberance" as investors may invest in the market via the best in class and market leaders.

At the same time, some mutual fund investors may have also increased their exposure to SIPs, Prusty said. "Given the recent market volatility, some SIP investors may be looking to further diversify in the wake of strong inflows and sustained gains," he said.

Biden, Vietnam work on business deals

AP Hanoi (Vietnam)

President Joe Biden closed a two-day trip to Vietnam on Monday by spotlighting new business deals, the fruits of months of diplomacy aimed at improving relations with a key Southeast Asian ally. On Sunday, he signed an agreement with Vietnam to work on deepening economic ties, as both nations seek to expand their role in establishing regional and multilateral cooperation in the face of growing geopolitical, technological and economic uncertainty. “We both believe that the drive for strategic autonomy is on the increase.”

In a joint statement with Vietnam’s Prime Minister Nguyen Xuan Phuc on Monday, Biden said his administration would “explore ways to cooperate on space activities, including the peaceful exploration and use of outer space.”

Biden’s visit, which included talks with Vietnamese leaders and a meeting with representatives of the Vietnamese business community, comes amid a broader shift in U.S. foreign policy, which seeks to deepen ties with countries in the Indo-Pacific region and counter China’s growing influence.

The joint statement also highlighted the need to forge new partnerships and deepen existing ties, with a particular focus on technology and climate change.

“We share a common goal of strengthening the Indo-Pacific region’s resilience and security,” Biden said.

The statement also underscored the importance of addressing climate change and promoting sustainable development, with a focus on renewable energy and green technology.

Biden and Phuc also discussed the importance of regional economic cooperation, including the Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP), which was signed in 2015 but never ratified in the U.S.

The joint statement also expressed support for the Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP), a trade agreement that was signed but never ratified in the U.S., and for the Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership (RCEP), a trade deal involving 10 countries in the region that was signed in 2015.

Biden and Phuc also discussed the importance of addressing climate change and promoting sustainable development, with a focus on renewable energy and green technology.

In addition to economic cooperation, Biden and Phuc also discussed the importance of addressing climate change and promoting sustainable development, with a focus on renewable energy and green technology.

They also discussed the need to address the challenges posed by the COVID-19 pandemic, including the need for increased vaccination rates and greater access to vaccines.

Djokovic equals Margaret Court's all-time record for most Grand Slam titles after winning US Open 2023

Djokovic not setting any limit on Grand Slam titles

Novak Djokovic's quest to equal Margaret Court's all-time record for most Grand Slam titles ended in triumph with a dominant victory in the US Open final on Sunday as he became the oldest male champion in New York’s Arthur Ashe Stadium.

Djokovic, 34, produced a captivating display to upset defending champion Daniil Medvedev of Russia, 7-5, 6-3, 6-3, to clinch his 21st Grand Slam title.

Speaking after his victory, Djokovic thanked his entire team, including his coach, Goran Ivanisevic, and his wife, Jelena, for their support.

"I want to thank my team, my support team, my coaches, my family, my friends," he said.

"I just want to thank all the fans who support me. It's been a difficult year for me, but I think I'm in the best shape of my life, physically and mentally."

Medvedev, meanwhile, praised Djokovic for his performance.

"I want to say congratulations to Novak, he played a great match," he said.

"I think he deserved to win today. I think he's the best player in the world and I think he's the best player of his generation."

In other news, the Dutch football team qualified for the Euro 2024 finals after a 2-0 win over Iceland.

Spanish football club Real Madrid have announced that its manager, Carlo Ancelotti, has agreed to extend his contract with the club until 2025.

Raina backs Ishan to open for India

Premier cricketer Haris Rauf has thrown his support behind the young fast bowler Haris Rauf, who is expected to join the Indian squad for next month's tour of New Zealand. "I always said that Ishan is a special talent and he has the potential to become an impact player for India," Raina said. "I remember in one match, he had a fantastic spell and took four wickets in a row. He has the ability to unsettle his opponents with his yorker.

But for now, I think Haris Rauf is the right man to open the bowling for us. He has been performing well in domestic cricket and has the ability to bowl both in the Powerplay and at the death. He has a good mix of pace and swing, and I believe he will be a great asset for the team."
