PM leans on south to make fortunes go north

RAJDEEP KHANNA

PM Narendra Modi, who has won a record third term in office, has been a master of the art of managing multiple frontiers. If the saffron party made gains in the north, it also kept its red carpet in the south. Not surprisingly, six ministers from the south have been kept in his cabinet. The new faces in the cabinet include five from south India and one from the south-east region, with two women from Andhra Pradesh.

Five new faces from Madhya Pradesh have been included in the cabinet. Among them is Rameshwar Pratap Singh, who will be the new Union Minister of State for Defence, who hails from the south. Singh is the younger brother of the late Sharad Singh, who was the Union Minister of State for Defence.

The other five new faces from south India are: Ashwini Choubey, who is the new Union Minister of State for Defence; Sadhvi Pragya Singh Thakur, who is the new Union Minister of State for Women and Child Development; Ravi Shankar Prasad, who is the new Union Minister of State for Law and Justice; and Ashwini Vaishnaw, who is the new Union Minister of State for Finance.

After brief respite, North India sets for blistering heatwave: IMD

Pioneer News Service

A brief respite from the heatwave in North India is over. Delhi and Punjab are likely to witness a fresh spell of heatwave.

The Indian Meteorological Department (IMD) has issued an alert for a fresh spell of heatwave in the northwestern region, including Delhi and Punjab, from Thursday to Saturday. The region has already witnessed several heatwave episodes this season, with temperatures soaring above 40 degrees Celsius in many areas. The IMD has warned that the heatwave is likely to intensify over the next few days, with temperatures expected to rise further. The alert has been issued to ensure that people take necessary precautions to mitigate the impact of the heatwave.

"The heatwave is likely to continue over the next few days, with temperatures expected to rise further," said an IMD official.

The heatwave is likely to be accompanied by high humidity, which could make the heat more oppressive. The IMD has advised people to stay indoors during the hottest part of the day and to limit outdoor activities.

The heatwave has already caused several cases of heat-related illnesses, including heatstroke and heat exhaustion. The IMD has urged health authorities to be on high alert and to take appropriate measures to prevent the spread of heat-related illnesses.

The heatwave is likely to impact agriculture, with crops in the vulnerable stage facing the brunt of the heat. Farmers are advised to take preventive measures such as sprinkling water and using shading nets to protect crops.

The heatwave is likely to affect tourism, with many tourists opting to stay indoors or visit air-conditioned spots. The IMD has advised tourists to be cautious and to take necessary precautions to avoid the heat.

The heatwave is also likely to impact road and rail traffic, with delays and disruptions expected on some routes. The IMD has advised drivers and commuters to plan their journeys accordingly and to take necessary precautions to ensure safety.

The heatwave is likely to impact the energy sector, with demand for electricity expected to rise. The IMD has advised energy sectors to ensure that sufficient power is available to meet the demand.

The heatwave is likely to impact the environment, with increased air pollution and respiratory problems. The IMD has advised people to avoid exposure to pollutants and to take necessary precautions to protect their health.

The heatwave is likely to impact the economy, with reduced productivity and increased cooling costs. The IMD has advised businesses to take necessary measures to ensure safety and to protect their workforce.

The heatwave is likely to impact the health of vulnerable groups such as the elderly, children, and those with pre-existing health conditions. The IMD has advised these groups to take necessary precautions to protect their health.

The heatwave is likely to impact the mental health of the population, with increased stress and anxiety levels. The IMD has advised people to take necessary measures to manage their stress and to seek professional help if needed.

Parched Capital

The water crisis in Delhi shows no signs of abating, the SC’s directions to Haryana notwithstanding.

The water situation in the Capital has gone worse due to Haryana’s and Himachal Pradesh’s failure to curb their industrial and domestic water consumption, respectively. The SC has instructed the states involved to ensure that their water management policies are robust and responsive to the needs of the people. However, the states have not taken adequate measures to address the issue, leading to a crisis that threatens the sustainability of the region.

The situation is further complicated by the lack of coordination between the states, which is evident from the fact that Delhi, which is located in the basin of the Yamuna River, is struggling to get its fair share of water. The states’ lack of commitment to the interstate water sharing agreement has only added to the problem.

The water crisis in Delhi is a warning to all of us that the time to act is now. We must work together to ensure that our water resources are managed sustainably and equitably, both for current and future generations.
Women lead India's 2024 election transformation

Women's increasing involvement in Indian elections led to near equal representation in voter turnout, marking historic progress

T he Lok Sabha 2024 elections in India this year are expected to witness a record high number of women candidates, marking a significant cultural and societal change.

Experts predict that a record 336 women candidates may campaign for the 543 parliamentary seats, up from 272 in 2019, with women constituents constituting nearly half of the voter turnout, as the electoral gender ratio generated between 29.3 in 1994 to 28.6 in 2019. This shift reflects a consistent increase in women's participation in political processes.

Public Choice Theory and Electoral Strategies

According to the Public Choice theory, women as a decisive candidate have a stronger influence on elections compared to men's votes, which can represent diverse social and cultural interests. This phenomenon has been highlighted by scholars noting a correlation between women's increased political participation and economic and political empowerment.

Rahul Gandhi

Dr. Rahul Gandhi, the President of the Indian National Congress, highlighted the importance of women in leadership roles. He stated that women can bring about significant change in governance and contribute to the nation's development.

Narendra Modi

Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister and the prime ministerial aspirant, Narendra Modi, emphasized the need for women empowerment and inclusivity in the political arena. He said, "Women must have a say in the decision-making process, and their voices must be heard."

BRAIN TUMOUR
EARLY DETECTION, EARLY TREATMENT

BRAIN TUMOURS are a considerable health challenge worldwide, with India alone reporting approximately 33,000 new cases annually, predominantly impacting individuals aged 35 to 65. Despite the widespread fear and misunderstanding surrounding these conditions, not all brain tumours are cancers, doctors tell ARCHANA JYOTI.

A

s per the WHO, all brain tumours are cancers. However, not all brain tumours are detected each year in India, as there is a lack of awareness and acceptance of brain tumours. While most brain tumours are benign, approximately 35% are malignant. Malignant brain tumours, also known as gliomas, are more likely to spread and can be more difficult to treat. The most common type of brain tumour in adults is glioblastoma, which is a highly aggressive type of glioma. Approximately 5% of brain tumours are metastatic, meaning they spread from another part of the body, most commonly the lungs. Metastatic brain tumours can be treated with surgery, radiation therapy, and chemotherapy. However, the prognosis for patients with metastatic brain tumours is generally worse than for those with primary brain tumours.

Some common symptoms of brain tumours include:

- Headaches
- Seizures
- Visual problems
- Memory loss
- Blurred vision
- Nausea and vomiting
- Changes in personality or behaviour

It is important to note that some of these symptoms can also be caused by other conditions, such as stress, fatigue, or lack of sleep. Therefore, it is crucial to consult a healthcare provider if you or someone you know experiences any of these symptoms. Early detection and treatment are crucial for improving the chances of recovery.

The symptoms of brain tumour depend on the size and location of the tumour. A small tumour may cause no symptoms, while a larger tumour may cause symptoms such as headache, changes in personality, or changes in vision. Some symptoms may be more common depending on the location of the tumour. For example, a tumour in the brainstem may cause difficulties with balance and coordination.

Diagnosing a brain tumour typically involves a combination of neuroimaging tests, such as MRI or CT scans, and surgical procedures. Once a tumour is diagnosed, the treatment plan will depend on the type, size, and location of the tumour. Treatment options may include surgery, radiation therapy, chemotherapy, or a combination of these treatments.

It is important to consult a healthcare provider if you or someone you know experiences any symptoms of a brain tumour. Early detection and treatment are crucial for improving the chances of recovery. If you or someone you know experiences any symptoms of a brain tumour, please consult a healthcare provider for a proper diagnosis and treatment plan.
Pulling out of IPL best thing for me moving forward into this World Cup, says Zampa

PULLING OUT OF IPL BEST THING FOR ME MOVING FORWARD INTO THIS WORLD CUP, SAYS ZAMPA

A 31-year-old from Spain who has represented his country at the highest level has announced his retirement from competitive sport, citing the need to focus on his health and well-being. Zampa, who has played for his national team at the highest levels, has decided to pull out of the upcoming IPL season. "I think it’s the best thing for me moving forward with this World Cup," he said. "The IPL can be very demanding on my body, and I believe making this decision now will benefit me in the long run."

Zampa made his international debut for Spain in 2010 and has represented his country in over 50 matches. He is a highly regarded all-rounder with impressive batting and bowling credentials. Zampa has scored 1,000 runs and taken over 50 wickets for his country, making him one of Spain’s most valuable players.

"I have spoken with my team management and medical staff, and we have come to the conclusion that it’s best for me to take a break from the IPL," he added. "I want to give my all to Spain in the World Cup and I believe this decision will help me achieve that."
