President Murmu slams Emergency

In her address in the Rajya Sabha on Thursday said the Government's decision to make a formal apology for the imposition of Emergency in 1975 as the "biggest and dark-est imposition of Emergency in the Constitution of India". She further said that the government's statement about the imposition of Emergency was a "forceful and frank" decision and the government had shown "courage" in making the statement.

Murmu also said that the imposition of Emergency was a "grave mistake" and that the government had learned from its mistakes. She said that the government had made the statement because it was aware of the mistakes made during the Emergency period and that it wanted to show the country that it was not just going to repeat the same mistakes.

Murmu said that the government had taken the decision to apologize for the imposition of Emergency after a long and careful deliberation. She said that the government had taken the decision to apologize because it wanted to show the country that it was not just going to forget about the mistakes made during the Emergency period.

Murmu further said that the government had taken the decision to apologize because it wanted to show the country that it was not going to repeat the same mistakes in the future. She said that the government had taken the decision to apologize because it wanted to show the country that it was not going to take the mistakes made during the Emergency period lightly.

Rahul takes umbrage at Speaker's Emergency reference

Pioneer News Service • New Delhi

Leader of the Opposition Rahul Gandhi today took umbrage at Speaker Om Birla's emergency reference to the Constitution while paying tributes to the late Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

"This is not a time to invoke the Constitution," Rahul Gandhi said.

"This is a time to invoke the Constitution while paying tributes to the late Prime Minister Indira Gandhi," Rahul Gandhi added.

In a letter to the Speaker, Rahul Gandhi said, "It is a time to remember the leadership of Indira Gandhi, who was a great leader of our country and a symbol of strength and courage."

Rahul Gandhi said that Indira Gandhi's leadership was characterized by dedication, commitment, and a deep sense of responsibility.

She was a leader who always put the welfare of the people first, and her legacy continues to inspire us today.

"The emergency reference to the Constitution is not appropriate in this context," Rahul Gandhi said.

He added that the emergency reference is not in keeping with the values of democracy that Indira Gandhi stood for.

"This is not the time to invoke the Constitution, but to remember her leadership and her legacy," Rahul Gandhi said.

"We should be focused on building a stronger democracy and a more inclusive society, rather than invoking the Constitution.

"The emergency reference is not in keeping with the values of democracy that Indira Gandhi stood for."

Rahul Gandhi ended his letter by saying, "Let us remember the leadership of Indira Gandhi and work towards building a stronger democracy and a more inclusive society."

The recent Lok Sabha results have shown that “what BJP . . . lose, the JJP acquires”), Chautala said. He added, “I can make it clear that the JJP's loss in the Lok Sabha seat, leading to a seat in the Assembly, will not be repeated in the Assembly elections. If the JJP is the major opposition in the Assembly, it will field its candidate in the next Assembly poll, that is why the JJP will be opposed to the BJP candidate as the grand old party’s candidate.”

As against the Assembly’s “minority” after three months, the JJP will find a place in the Assembly, he said. It will make arrangements to protect the interests of farmers across the state next month, Chautala added.

The ZP will continue to work for third party candidates and make sure that the JJP candidate wins the seat. The government will make arrangements to give the JJP enough time to contest the seat, and if it wins, the government will withdraw the criminal case against the JJP candidate, he said. The government will also make arrangements to contest the seat if the JJP’s candidate wins.

India's assertive foreign policy and global aspirations

From bolstering defense capabilities to fostering regional cooperation, India under Modi's leadership navigates a complex geopolitical landscape.

Modi's third term inaugurated in May 2022, his government has pursued a policy agenda that emphasizes national security, economic growth, and international outreach.

The Quad, comprising India, Australia, Japan, and the United States, has been a key platform for regional cooperation, with India taking a leading role in advocating for a free and open Indo-Pacific.

India's role in the United Nations Security Council has also become more prominent, with the country now serving on the council for the first time in its history.

However, India's foreign policy is not without challenges, particularly in the context of its growing ties with China, which has raised concerns about potential strategic overload for the Indian military.

The Indo-Pacific region remains a critical area of focus for India, with the country seeking to assert its influence in the region and enhance its strategic capabilities.

To address these challenges, India has taken steps to modernize its military capabilities, invest in infrastructure, and strengthen bilateral and multilateral partnerships.

The government has also emphasized the importance of economic diplomacy, with initiatives such as the 'Make in India' program aimed at attracting foreign investment and boosting domestic manufacturing.

India's assertive foreign policy and global aspirations reflect its growing confidence and influence on the world stage.

The road ahead will likely involve navigating complex geopolitical dynamics, balancing strategic interests, and maintaining a strong focus on domestic development and security.
India's historical ties with Arab countries stretch back to a long period, and the geopolitical interests of India and Arab countries are significant global importance, with a strong focus on environmental sustainability. In today's world, where environmental sustainability is an essential concern, the partnership between India and Arab countries has gained significant attention.

India's Historical Ties with Arab Countries

India's historical ties with Arab countries are of great significance, particularly considering the growing importance of environmental sustainability. The partnership between India and Arab countries has been characterized by a mutual commitment to sustainable development and environmental protection.

Innovation and Partnership

India excels in sustainable urbanization and green energy technology, with a strong commitment to renewable energy projects. The partnership with Arab countries bridges the gap between these regions, offering a model of collaboration between India and the Arab World.

Challenges and Opportunities

India faces significant challenges in terms of climate change and urbanization, while Arab countries are also grappling with the impact of climate change and unsustainable development. The partnership offers an opportunity to address these challenges through the exchange of best practices and technologies.

Policy Alignment

Policy alignment is crucial in strengthening the India-Arab strategic partnership. Both regions share a commitment to sustainable development, environmental protection, and innovation. This alignment is evident in the incorporation of environmental sustainability as a key focus area in bilateral agreements and partnerships.

Conclusion

The India-Arab strategic partnership on sustainable development holds immense potential for both regions. By leveraging shared priorities and environmental sustainability, India and Arab countries can work towards a more resilient and sustainable future.

The Foxconn factory in Noida has approximately 70 per cent of its production cycle completed, according to company officials. The Foxconn factory in Noida is one of the largest manufacturing hubs in the world, producing millions of electronic devices annually. The facility employs over 100,000 workers and produces a wide range of products, including smartphones, tablets, and televisions.

Meanwhile, the Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology (MeitY) had earlier announced its plans to set up a Foxconn-like facility in India to boost the country's electronics manufacturing capabilities. The ministry had said that the facility would be developed under the 'Make in India' initiative, which aims to attract foreign direct investment (FDI) and promote domestic manufacturing in the sector.

The Foxconn factory in Noida has been operating since 2007 and has a production capacity of around 10 million units per year. The plant is equipped with state-of-the-art technology and is committed to producing high-quality products.

The Foxconn factory in Noida is also considered a key player in the global supply chain for electronic devices. The facility has strong partnerships with leading technology companies, including Apple, Samsung, and Google.

The Foxconn factory in Noida is known for its focus on quality and efficiency, and has won numerous awards and recognition for its performance. The facility is also committed to promoting sustainability and has implemented various environmental initiatives.

Overall, the Foxconn factory in Noida is a testament to the country's growing electronics manufacturing capabilities, and is expected to play a key role in India's efforts to become a global leader in the sector.
