India takes Bangladesh down by the scruff

SANJU TAKES COUNTRY SKY HIGH

PTI ■ HYDERABAD

Sanju Samson's ebullient maiden T20 International hundred dotted India's resounding 133-run victory and 3-0 series sweep over a listless Bangladesh here on Saturday. Once India broomed away records like rotten twigs while posting 297 for 6 after electing to bat, it was always a case of eventual margin of win and Bangladesh never really offered a meaningful fight, ending up at 164/7 in the third and final T20I. Pacer Mayank Yadav (2/32) and leg-spinner Ravi Bishnoi (3/30) led the hosts' bowling effort. Samson (111, 47 balls, 11x4, 8x6), who hammered the second fastest T20I century by an Indian after Rohit Sharma (35 balls), and skipper Suryakumar Yadav (75, 35 balls, 8x4, 5x6), biffed 173 runs during an electrifying second wicket stand, propelling the hosts past several records. The total was second in the all-time list of the highest T20I team totals behind Nepal's 314 and ahead of Afghanistan's 278/3, and also India's highest in the shortest format. They were purely amazing stats even taking into account a barren pitch and lighting quick outfield. But beyond that cold realm of numbers, Samson's innings was touched by his esoteric genius, the ingredient that makes him compelling and frustrating in equal measure. But the Kerala right-hander chose to display his captivating side on the field on a clement Hyderabad night and Bangladesh withered quickly. Samson needed a big effort after lukewarm outings in the first two matches in Gwalior and New Delhi and, oh boy, did he make it count here! Samson's brand-new purpose found an immediate on-field expression as he pummelled pacer Taskin Ahmed for four consecutive fours -- two cover drives and as many flicks -- in the second over of the innings. It was the perfect teaser for the blockbuster action that unfolded in the next 10.3 overs. The rapid start also helped India move past the early dismissal of opener Abhishek Sharma (4), falling to a poorly-timed pull off slinger quick Tanzim Hasan. Suryakumar was a mere spectator once Samson slipped into top gear with an array of mind-spinning shots. That could be the biggest tribute for the 29-year-old's knock. It is quite tough to put Suryakumar to shade in T20Is but Samson did that with a knock of rare brilliance as India raced to 82 for 1 in Power Play and 152 for 1 after 10 overs. No bowler was spared during the batting extravaganza that was based on the single-minded and simple philosophy of naked aggression. It was so glaring in the 10th over when leg-spinner Rishad Hossain came to bowl. Hossain erred in line and length and Samson creamed him for five consecutive sixes, including a 105-meter monster. But the most stunning shot in Samson's innings was a six off the backfoot off pacer Mustafizur Rahman. Waiting deep inside the crease, Samson judged the slower ball to perfection, and whacked it over extra cover for a maximum, eliciting a dejected shrug and shake of head from the experienced bowler.

Soon, he brought up his hundred off 40 balls with a boundary off off-spinner Mahedi Hasan and celebrated with a roar and punch before getting melted into a tight embrace by his captain. Suryakumar reminded the gallery of his presence, smashing Tanzim for three fours and a six while reaching his fifty in 23 balls. But both the batters fell in the space of adding 10 runs. Samson was jettisoned by Mustafizur's well-directed bouncer and Suryakumar became Mahmudullah's last T20I victim, giving a simple catch to Rishad in deep. But by then India had reached 206 for three in the 15th over. That itself was a daunting total but Hardik Pandya (47, 18 balls, 4x4, 4x6) and Riyan Parag (34, 13 balls, 1x4, 4x6) flogged the dead horse to milk a further 70 runs for the fourth wicket as India raced to a massive total. Once Mayank ousted Pervez Hossain in the first ball of Bangladesh innings, they struggled for momentum in the always futile chase of 298. The tourists did not have the resources even to attempt a powerful chase as knocks by Towhid Hridoy (63 not out, 42 balls, 5x4, 3x6) and Litton Das (42, 25 balls, 8x4) remained distant specks in the match's scoresheet.

Mysuru-Darbhanga Express entered occupied loop line

PNS/PTI ■ NEW DELHI/CHENNAI

A day after a passenger train rammmed into a stationary freight train near Chennai, experts and union leaders said according to the data-logger video, the Mysuru-Darbhanga Express train was given a green signal to pass through the main line, however, it entered a loop line already occupied by the freight train. Train number 12578, Mysuru-Darbhanga Bagmati Express, collided with the stationary goods train at the Kavaraipettai railway station in the Chennai rail division in Tamil Nadu at around 8:30 pm on Friday, leading to injuries to nine passengers. The data logger is a device placed in the station area to capture train movements and signal aspects, among other things. This data logger's yard-simulation video has been circulated among senior railway officials' WhatsApp groups since Saturday morning, prompting them to draw a parallel between the accident and the Balasore train collision of June 2, 2023. Chief Public Relations Officer (CPRO) of the Southern Railway said he is not aware of any such video and that multiple investigations have already been initiated into the collision. In a Press statement, the Railway Board also admitted that the passenger train was given a green signal for the main line but it experienced a jerk and entered the loop line, resulting in the collision with the freight train. A high-level enquiry has been ordered into the incident. In Balasore, the Howrah-bound Coromandel Express was given a green signal for the main line. However, due to the wrong interlocking of tracks, it entered a loop line and collided with a stationary goods train. "Based on the information available in the public domain, it appears that this collision almost repeats the Balasore train collision of June 2, 2023. The railways should take a serious approach to remove the anomalies in the signalling system," R Kumaresan, president, All India Loco Running Staff Association (AILRSA), Southern Railway, said. According to safety experts, in an automatic-signalling system, the signal aspect follows the interlocking of tracks. It means if the signal is green for the main line, the interlocking will automatically be set in such a way that the train comes on the main line. "The lack of coordination between signal aspect and interlocking happens due to some fault in the signalling system. Prime facie, it appears to be some kind of a technical glitch," a safety expert said, requesting anonymity. Sanjay Pandhi, the working president of the Indian Railway Loco Runningmen's Organisation (IRLRO), expressed surprise as according to him, all previous trains passed through the said station "without any abnormalities in the signalling and interlocking system". Continued on page 2

Love driving your SUVs? Get ready to pay Congestion Tax

Heads up Delhi drivers, joyrides may be vanish

BY RAJESH KUMAR

Worried over increasing traffic jams, the Delhi government is mulling to introduce a congestion tax to reduce traffic during peak hours to tackle congestion. Inspired by cities like London, New York, and Singapore, the Delhi government is planning to introduce a congestion tax on vehicles entering the city during peak hours - 8 am to 10 am and 5.30 pm to 7.30 pm - through 13 major entry points along its borders. According to officials, the proposal is currently in its advanced stages of planning. The pilot programme will focus on 13 key entry points around Delhi's borders and will utilise a barrier-free charging mechanism that incorporates FASTag technology and number plate recognition systems, avoiding manual collection to prevent traffic bottlenecks. The move aims to address traffic congestion and reduce pollution. This is the third time the Delhi government is contemplating introducing a congestion tax to reduce traffic burden on the capital's roads. The Pioneer has been running a campaign highlighting traffic jams in the national capital, highlighting the woes of daily commuters. However, the implementation of this congestion tax is not without its challenges. Officials are in the process of establishing a legal framework that will support the enforcement of the tax, alongside necessary modifications to existing Delhi and Central Motor Vehicle regulations. The revenue generated from the tax, along with any penalties, will be used to enhance public transportation and improve road infrastructure, particularly for vulnerable users such as cyclists and pedestrians. The influx of vehicles from nearby rapidly expanding towns and the flow of commercial goods vehicles have contributed to the increased vehicular traffic entering Delhi. Currently, several border areas, including DND and New Ashok Nagar, are major choke points. According to the transport department, two wheelers account for 66 per cent and growth rate is touching nine per cent. Cars occupy more than 70 per cent of road space but account for less than 20 per cent of passengers carried daily. This is not the first time such a measure has been considered in Delhi. Similar proposals were discussed in the past, but could not be implemented. In 2017, a Parliamentary committee had also recommended levying a toll on congested stretches in the Capital. In 2018, a plan was introduced to impose a congestion tax on vehicles along 21 high-traffic stretches in the city, including sections like the Aurobindo Chowk-Andheria More corridor, the Nehru Place to Modi Mills flyover, areas around Hauz Khas Metro station, and the ITO intersection. In 2008, then Chief Minister Sheila Dikshit suggested an additional charge on private vehicles entering the capital to promote public transport. However, the proposal was eventually shelved. Former Delhi Transport Commissioner Rajni Kant Verma who conceptualised the project for the first time in 2008, told the pioneer that he had made a presentation before the then Chief Minister Sheila Dikshit and Chief Secretary PK Tripathi but the Congress government was not interested due to backlash from voters. The concept is good to reduce traffic burden on the roads. "If executed, congestion will come down at least 26 per cent; traffic reduction by 15 per cent; Nitrogen Oxide will come down by 13 per cent and PM 10 by 15 per cent. Accidents are also expected to drop by 40-70 per annum and bus usage will also go up one to three per cent, and that will help to increase revenue," he said. Verma said the government would have to create an infrastructure in place before introducing the Congestion tax in Delhi. "All vehicles should be registered. There should be an intelligent traffic signalling system in Delhi," said Verma, adding that this is a very complex issue which needs to be handled carefully. The survey at nine entry points showed that around 3.07 lakh cars and 1.27 lakh two-wheelers entered Delhi daily. Besides, 70,000 commercial vehicles enter Delhi daily. This number increases to over one lakh when considering all 127 entry points into the city. In 2023, Delhi saw a record number of vehicle sales, with over 6.5 lakh vehicles registered. According to the Economic Survey of Delhi, the total number of motor vehicles on road in the national capital on March 31, 2023 was 79.45 lakh, showing the increase by 0.34 per cent from 2021-22. The government has banned Diesel Vehicles more than 10 years old and Petrol Vehicles more than 15 years old, and hence 'deregistered' 62,59,214 vehicles till 2022-23. During the period of 2022-23, the number of vehicles per thousand population is 473 (As per Census 2011) which is not much affected from 2021-22 (472). Total motorised vehicles in Delhi are 79.45 lakh. Cars and jeeps accounted for around 26 per cent of the total registered motorised vehicles, whereas two wheelers are about 66.64 per cent of total registered vehicles.

HINDUS BE UNITED, EMPOWERED, WEAKNESS NOT AN OPTION: RSS

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ NAGPUR/NEW DELHI

Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS) chief Mohan Bhagwat on Saturday gave a clarion call for unity among the Hindus to strengthen the community and simultaneously stated that 'Deep State', 'wokeism' and 'cultural Marxist' are declared enemies of all cultural traditions.

Condemning the violence against Hindus in Bangladesh, Bhagwat said that as long as the radical nature of committing atrocities out of anger persists — not only Hindus, but all minorities will be in danger. He said what is happening in Bangladesh is also a learning for Hindus in India. "If we are weak, we are inviting atrocity. Wherever we are, we need to be united and empowered and weakness is not an option," he said. "What happened in our neighbouring Bangladesh? It might have some immediate reasons and those who are concerned will discuss it. But the underlying issue is the repeated atrocities against Hindus. But for the first time, Hindus united to protect themselves, but as long as this radical violence persists, not just Hindus, but all minorities are in danger. They need support from Hindus from the entire world and India's government must step in," the RSS chief said in his Annual Vijaydashami programme at RSS Headquarters in Nagpur which also marked the beginning of centenary year as RSS was founded on this day in 1925. Prime Minister Narendra Modi and his Cabinet colleagues and top BJP leaders greeted RSS members on the occasion of its foundation day and said since its inception, the

Systematic desecration of temples in Bangladesh: MEA

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ NEW DELHI

Termining the recent attacks on places of worship and a theft at a revered temple in Bangladesh as "deplorable events," India on Saturday said these follow a "systematic pattern of desecration" of temples and deities there. New Delhi also requested Dhaka to ensure the safety and security of Hindus, all other minorities, and their places of worship in the neighbouring country. In a statement, the Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) described the incidents as "deplorable events" and flagged that these follow a "systematic pattern of desecration" of temples and deities in Bangladesh. "We have noted with serious concern the attack on a Puja mandap in Tantibazar, Dhaka and the theft at the revered Jeshoreshwari Kali temple at Satkhira," the MEA said. Bangladesh daily 'Prothom Alo' has reported an incident of a "crude bomb" allegedly thrown at a Durga Puja pandal in the Tantibazar area of Old Dhaka. Though the bomb caught fire, nobody was injured, the report said, adding that the incident took place on Friday night. Friday marked the ninth and last day of Navratri, the nine-day sacred period for Hindus. Durga Puja is also celebrated during this time. It culminates with Dussehra or Vijaya Dashami on the 10th day. The MEA has taken strong exception to the two reported incidents in Bangladesh. "These are deplorable events. They follow a systematic pattern of desecration and damage to temples and deities that we have witnessed over several days now," it said. "We call upon the government of Bangladesh to ensure the safety and security of Hindus and all minorities and their places of worship, especially during this auspicious festival time," it added. The silver, gold-plated crown for the Hindu deity at the Jeshoreshwari Temple in Satkhira was gifted by Prime Minister Narendra Modi during his visit to Bangladesh in March 2021. According to local reports, the crown was stolen during the ongoing Durga Puja and the theft was caught on camera. The Jeshoreshwari Temple is revered as one of the 51 Shakti Peethas spread across India and neighbouring countries. Prime Minister Modi had visited the Jeshoreshwari Temple on March 27, 2021, as part of his tour to Bangladesh. The visit coincided with the celebrations of Bangladesh's Golden Jubilee of Independence and the birth centenary of its founding leader, Sheikh Mujibur Rahman.

organisation has been doing a remarkable job of protecting Indian culture and inculcating the ideas of patriotism in youth. Bhagwat said attempts to disturb and destabilise the country seem to be gaining momentum from all directions, while a narrative is being spread in Bangladesh to portray India as a threat, he said. According to Bhagwat, a narrative is being spread in neighbouring Bangladesh, which recently witnessed a massive political upheaval, that India is a threat and they should join Pakistan as a defence against Bharat. Who is spreading such a narrative, he asked. In an obvious reference to the certain Opposition parties insisting for a Caste census, Bhagwat said in a multi-party democracy, petty selfish interests have become more important than mutual harmony, pride and integrity of the nation. "Their modus operandi is to stand in support of one party and advance their destructive agenda in the name of alternative politics," he said. On the occasion Bhagwat described the Kolkata rape-murder as shameful and said attempts were made to protect criminals. The nexus of crime, politics and poisonous culture is ruining society, he said. Bhagwat further said India has become stronger and more respected in the world with enhanced credibility in the last few years but sinister conspiracies are testing the country's resolve. The ongoing Hamas-Israel war is a cause for concern about how far the conflict will spread, he said. Bhagwat expressed satisfaction that the recent assembly elections in Jammu and Kashmir were held peacefully.

Pre-Assembly poll Dussehra rallies: Warring Senas flex muscle as Uddhav, Shinde trade charges

T N RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

In their bid to reach out to voters in the country's commercial capital and elsewhere in the State, the two feuding Shiv Senas — led by late Bal Thackeray's son Uddhav Thackeray and chief minister Eknath Shinde respectively — flexed their muscles and traded charges in leading grounds of Mumbai on the occasion of Dussehra on Saturday night. While Uddhav Thackeray's lieutenant MP Sanjay Raut claimed that the Sena (UBT) chief Uddhav Thackeray would reassume office as the chief minister in the next two months, Eknath Shinde asked the rival Sena leadership not to take him easily because he had already ruled the state as the chief minister and the ruling MahaYuti — comprising the BJP, Shiv Sena and NCP (Ajit Pawar) would return to power in the State Assembly polls. "I have not been sitting quietly, but have been ruling the state for the past two years. Don't take me easily. I am a real Shiv Sainik. I will not run away from the battlefield. Nor will I give up the ideology of late Sena chief Balsaheb Thackeray. That's why we are taking forward the legacy of the late Sena chief," Shinde said. Listing the achievements of his government, Shinde said: "Wherever I go, people welcome me with a smile. Ours is the favourite government of the people. Because of the financial assistance scheme we have introduced for them, daughters, brothers and farmers across the state love our government" Hitting back at Shinde and his party, Uddhav Thackeray slammed the MahaYuti for its proximity to industrialist Gautam Adani, Uddhav told the chief minister: "You have said Hindutva is breath and Marathi is our life... but you have forgotten two more things.. Adani is our Jaan and we are lap dogs of our Shetji. I do not want to say more and insult a dog. We have Ratan Tata's love for dogs. Even I love dogs. But I am not a blind love." "The battle that we are fighting is Mahabharat. We are pandavas. You know who is Shakuni Mama .. it is the BJP. You have people, central agencies and the government with you.. I dare you if can, go ahead and finish the Thackeray Sena. Our Sena is an army of tigers. All of them are sitting in front of me. We are following in the

MNS chief urges voters to bring about change in Maharashtra Assembly polls

T N RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

Likening the votes as weapons hidden by Pandavas in the Shami tree, Maharashtra Navnirman Sena President Raj Thackeray on Saturday exhorted the people in the state, especially the youth and farmers, to make effective use of their votes to bring about a change in power. Interacting with the people through a podcast on the occasion of Vijaydashami, Raj said: "Today is Dussehra, one of the most auspicious days of the year. I extend my heartfelt greetings to all of you. On this day, we traditionally exchange the leaves of the Shami tree as a symbol of gold, but for years, Maharashtra's true wealth has been looted while we pass these leaves among ourselves. It's time for action". Dwelling upon how Pandavas had kept their weapons hidden on the Shami tree, Raj asked the people to bring down their unused "weapons" (votes) from the Shami and use them in the elections to herald a change. "You often leave your vote unused. After that, you spend the next five years speaking against the decisions made by these same politicians whom you elected. This time, use your vote as your weapon. Do not fall into the trap of caste, community, or familiarity," the MNS chief said, asking the people to take revenge against the politicians who had betrayed them. "Building roads and flyovers is not real progress. Having mobile phones and gadgets doesn't equate to development. True progress lies in the upliftment of society as a whole. Yet, even after so many years, we are still groping in the dark, trapped by the false promises of the political class," Raj said. "For years, your votes have been taken for granted by the politicians. As a result, Maharashtra is on the decline... The forthcoming State Assembly polls provides you an opportunity to bring about a change," Raj said, as he attempted to tell the people that his party is different from the rest of the political parties contesting the elections. Raj Thackeray is the nephew of late Bal Thackeray and cousin of Shiv Sena (UBT) chief Uddhav Thackeray. He rebelled against the Sena chief, quit the then united Shiv Sena on November 27, 2005 and set up a new political party Maharashtra Navnirman Sena on March 6, 2020. Though his party has fought many elections since then, it has not had much success. The MNS did not contest the recent Lok Sabha polls, but extended unconditional support to the BJP-led ruling MahaYuti in the state. However, in the forthcoming Maharashtra Assembly polls, The MNS is planning to contest anywhere from 225 to 250 seats of the total 288 seats in the state.

Congress analysing Haryana Assembly poll results: Kharge

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ BENGALURU

Congress President Mallikarjun Kharge on Saturday said the party was analysing the Haryana Assembly poll results, and has sought a booth wise report to determine what led to the defeat. He said his party is paying special attention to ascertain what led to Haryana loss, keeping forthcoming elections in mind, but ruled out the possibility of this result having any impact on the upcoming Maharashtra Assembly election. "We are doing the analysis, along with Rahul Gandhi and other leaders I have held a meeting a couple of days ago to analyse and we are getting booth wise reports. How much fault lies with our workers, what is the role of our leaders and what happened, on all that we are getting report booth wise, based on it we will analyse and decide on further course of action," Kharge said. Speaking to reporters, the Congress leader said the party is paying special attention to it as the entire country was of the opinion that Congress will win in Haryana, and no one including journalists or news channels said the party is going to lose and BJP will win. From page 1

With the inauguration of these 75 projects, the BRO has completed a total of 111 infrastructure projects in 2024 at an overall cost of Rs 3,751 crore. This includes 36 projects worth Rs 1,508 crore, such as the state-of-the-art Sela Tunnel in Arunachal Pradesh, inaugurated by the Prime Minister earlier this year. Last year, 125 infrastructure projects of BRO were dedicated to the nation at a cost of Rs 3,611 crore. The defence minister commended the grit and determination of the BRO personnel for completing the projects in a time-bound manner even in most challenging terrains and harsh weather conditions, adding that the government, in its third term, aims to further bolster the border infrastructure with more promptness. Referring to the increased allocation of Rs 6,500 crore for BRO in Union Budget 2024-25, he expressed hope that it would not only contribute to strategic infrastructure development, but will also prove helpful in socio-economic progress in the border areas, including the North East region. Rajnath pointed out that the governments before 2014 were of the view that the development of border areas can have an adverse impact as it may be used by the country's adversaries. He emphasised that border infrastructure development has been the priority area of Prime Minister Modi-led Government ever since it came to power as these regions, especially the North-east, is crucial from the socio-economic and strategic perspectives. "In the last decade, we have built a vast network of roads from villages to cities, which has resulted in the country witnessing progress at an unprecedented pace," he said. The defence minister assured the people that new dimensions will be added to the development of border areas. India will be one of the safest and strongest nations in the times to come, he said. Chief of the Army Staff General Upendra Dwivedi, Defence Secretary-designate R K Singh, General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, Eastern Command Lt Director Ram Chander Tiwari, Director General Border Roads Lt General Raghu Srinivasan, General Officer Commanding,

3.32 crore under Project Udayak, the statement said. The total cost of these bridge projects is Rs 73.03 crore, significantly enhancing road connectivity in Arunachal Pradesh. A helipad was also inaugurated to boost accessibility in the region. Arunachal Pradesh Governor Lt General (retired) KT Parnaik, who participated virtually from Itanagar, emphasised the strategic importance of these projects for the state and the nation. "These completed projects will enhance national security, improve surface and air communication, and boost tourism in the state," he said. Parnaik expressed gratitude to the central government on behalf of the people of the state for successfully implementing these vital projects. "These infrastructures will promote socio-economic development, especially in border areas, supporting the Vibrant Border Village programme and the state government's 'Seva Apke Dwar' initiative, which brings administration directly to the people," he added. Chief Minister Pema Khandu also participated in the virtual inauguration from his office in Itanagar.

"In Balasore, the collision happened soon after the signal-repair work was over. Contrary to that, there was no such thing reported at the Kavaraipettai railway station and train operations were normal. So it appears that some malfunction, which could be corrosion of mechanical equipment etc., might have happened, leading to a coordination break of signal and interlocking," Pandhi said.

NIA chargesheets Babbar Khalsa International...

The NIA chargesheet has named BKI chief Wadhawa Singh alias Babbar, along with two other absconding accused and three arrested accused, as the key perpetrators of the killing, according to a statement issued by the NIA. Two of the three arrested accused have been identified as shooters Mandeep Kumar alias Mangli and Surinder Kumar alias Rika, both residents of Punjab's Nawanshahr. The accused have been charged under various sections of the UA(P) Act, IPC and Arms Act. The third arrested accused charged by the NIA is Gurbpreet Ram alias Gora, who is also from Nawanshahr and charged under the Arms Act, the NIA said. The three absconders were the handlers of the arrested accused. Babbar, currently based in Pakistan, along with Harjit Singh alias Laddi of Nawanshahr and Kulbeer Singh alias Sidhu of Jhunanagar, Haryana, had provided the arms, ammunition and funds to carry out the murder, the NIA said. The NIA which took over the case from the state police on May 9, 2024, found a transnational conspiracy of the BKI behind the deadly terror attack. Several members of the BKI module based in various countries came together to carry out the targeted killing, as per the NIA investigations. The investigation has further revealed that Wadhawa Singh from Pakistan directed Harjit Singh and Kulbeer Singh, who are currently in Germany, to carry out the murder. The roles of Dubai-based logistics providers and India-based weapons suppliers have also figured in the investigation, which is continuing, the NIA said.

The defence minister commended the grit and determination of the BRO personnel for completing the projects in a time-bound manner even in most challenging terrains and harsh weather conditions, adding that the government, in its third term, aims to further bolster the border infrastructure with more promptness. Referring to the increased allocation of Rs 6,500 crore for BRO in Union Budget 2024-25, he expressed hope that it would not only contribute to strategic infrastructure development, but will also prove helpful in socio-economic progress in the border areas, including the

Atishi shifted into CM's bungalow in violation of all norms and procedures: Raj Niwas

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

Taking exception to blaming Lt Governor Vinai Kumar Saxena on the issue of allotment of chief minister's bungalow to Atishi, Raj Niwas on Saturday said she shifted into it in violation of all norms and procedures. In a statement, the Raj Niwas also said the keys of the house were handed over surreptitiously, directly by Shri / Smt. Kejriwal to Ms. Atishi (through their personal staff), as if it was a private property being handed over by one owner to another. However, within a span of just about 48 hours, when the house was handed over by Kejriwal and allotted to Atishi, the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP), its Ministers and even the Chief Minister, resorted to the most devious and diabolic exercise of misleading the people of not only Delhi but the entire country, by way of subverting norms and procedures, hiding facts to this effect and abusing the Lt. Governor incessantly. Responding to Raj Niwas, sources in Chief Minister's Office said, "It's sad to see this statement by the LG office which is full of abuses and allegations on the elected Government". "The AAP government is busy working on war footing to revive and fix all the works stopped by the LG in the last few months. These comments by LG are really not worth responding to," sources said. Giving the sequence of events, it said former Chief Minister of Delhi Arvind Kejriwal handed over the possession and the keys to his erstwhile house 6, Flag Staff Road, to Public Works Department (PWD) on October nine and the house was subsequently allotted to his successor Chief Minister, Ms. Atishi by PWD on October 11 after inventorisation was carried out by PWD a day earlier as per established norms. PWD, being the owner of all Government estates, follows this procedure for any government accommodation and this is in line with what the CPWD follows in case of estates / accommodations belonging to the Government of India. All including the Prime Minister, Cabinet Ministers, Chief Justice, Judges and other dignitaries are subjected to the same set of norms in the process of vacation / allotment of their accommodations. The former Chief Minister of Delhi, as indeed the current Chief Minister, who is also the Minister-in-charge of PWD are fully aware of these norms, processes and procedures and violations thereto by them were prima facie deliberate.

It will be in the fitness of things to mention here that 6 Flag Staff Road, where Kejriwal lived and which has now been allotted to Atishi, has a built up area of 1905 sq.mtrs as the residential complex and 500 sq.mtrs as the camp office. In comparison, the highest categories of Type-8 Bungalows, which are allotted to Prime Minister, Chief Justice of India, Judges, Ministers and others, has a built up area of 460 sq.mtrs only with an additional 100 sq.mtrs for other utilities. However, within a span of just about 48 hours, when the house was handed over by Kejriwal and allotted to Atishi, the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP), its Ministers and even the Chief Minister, resorted to the most devious and diabolic exercise of misleading the people of not only Delhi but the entire country, by way of subverting norms and procedures, hiding facts to this effect and abusing the Lt. Governor incessantly. They abused the Lt. Governor attributing political motives to him knowing fully well that he had nothing whatsoever to do with the entire process of vacation or allotment owing to the fact that PWD, the agency concerned is a fully transferred subject directly and totally under the control of the AAP Government and its Ministers as per the constitutional scheme. As the matter came to light, it came forth that the keys of the house were handed over surreptitiously, directly by Shri / Smt. Kejriwal to Ms. Atishi (through their personal staff), as if it was a private property being handed over by one owner to another. When the PWD rightfully raised the violations that had been incurred in this exercise, the AAP and its leaders realized that they were on a back foot and therefore, while returning the keys and handing over possession to PWD as per norms on one hand, indulged in a shameful exercise of blaming the Lt. Governor in public domain on the other hand. For the purpose of brevity, it would suffice to mention that the Chief Minister, who claimed that she would work from the streets, since the house was not allotted to her, conveniently forgot to tell the people of Delhi that she already had a bungalow, 17-AB Mathura Road right beside the Supreme Court of India allotted to her as a residence and a seven star office renovated at a cost of hundreds of crores in Delhi Secretariat at the Players' Building at ITO. She had her allotted house as well as the seven star office to work from and need not have indulged into theatrics only for media's consumption.

It remains a fact that the building plan of the palatial house at 6 Flag Staff Road has not been sanctioned till now by MCD and since this sanction is required before commencement of construction, the completion certificate of the same also has not been issued till now. The house, therefore, till now is a patently illegal structure. Be that as it may, the latest exercise undertaken by AAP and its leaders, even as Delhi suffers from the worst of civic infrastructure and services, once again brings to light the mis-governance done by them for the past 10 years. If they had governed and worked for what they have been elected for, even for two years out of the ten, Delhi would have been in a much better shape and they would not have been blaming all and sundry and abusing the Lt. Governor for their abject failures.

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

Senior AAP leader and Cabinet Minister Saurabh Bharadwaj on Saturday alleged a scam in the housing for the poor and said the Delhi Development Authority (DDA) housing units meant for slum dwellers in the city are sold illegally to ineligible individuals. Responding to the AAP's allegations, Delhi BJP president Virendra Sachdeva accused him of spreading misinformation against central agencies. However, Sachdeva refuted the charges and termed the allegations "baseless", an official statement from BJP said. South Delhi MP Ramvir Singh Bidhuri also slammed Bharadwaj for spreading lie, saying he is trying to create a false narrative against the DDA and Raj Niwas. Bharadwaj alleged in a press conference that these DDA flats are being sold to ineligible individuals, undermining the very purpose of the initiative aimed at aiding the poor. The slum dwellers, who have been displaced by the Central's government actions, were promised housing that is now falling prey to corruption and this cannot happen without the lieutenant governor's consent, he alleged. "These flats cannot be sacrificed to corruption without the consent of the Central government's DDA. Such a big scam and corruption were happening right under the nose of the BJP LG and it is not possible that Lieutenant Governor Vinay Saxena was not aware of it," he said. Bharadwaj also accused the BJP of being against the poor. "The BJP is always troubled by the poor and stands against them. When free electricity and water were given to the poor, the BJP opposed it. Now these flats, which were meant for the poor, are being given in black to other people," he said. The Delhi Cabinet Minister questioned whether the LG is truly unaware of this corruption, suggesting it is happening with the involvement of top officials from the DDA, which falls under the LG's authority. He took potshots at the BJP for consistently opposing the welfare of slum residents, pointing to the demolition of thousands of slums in the last two years and accusing the party of neglecting the poor. The Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) leader called for an independent investigation into the matter, suggesting that only a sitting judge from the High Court or Supreme Court could ensure a transparent inquiry. "If the ACB or CBI investigate, it will likely be covered up, as these agencies work under the LG and the Central government. So, this matter should be investigated by a sitting judge from the High Court or Supreme Court to ensure a transparent inquiry," Bharadwaj said. Over the past two years, central government agencies like Archaeological Survey of India (ASI), DDA, and Land and Development Office (L&DO) have demolished Delhi's 'jhuggis', rendering lakhs of residents homeless. Those eligible for flats have been evicted, as seen behind DPS Mathura Road, where thousands were displaced by L&DO. In Tughlakabad, the central government's ASI rendered lakhs of people shelterless, and in Mehrauli, thousands more were forced out.

BJP leaders participate in Vijaydashami celebrations across city

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

Delhi BJP President Virendra Sachdeva, along with Union Minister of State Harsh Malhotra, MPs, MLAs, and other leaders, participated in various Vijaydashami celebrations organized by different Shri Ramlila Committees across Delhi. In his message on the occasion of Vijaydashami, Sachdeva emphasized the special significance of this Dussehra for Delhi. Just as Dussehra symbolizes the triumph of good over evil through the slaying of the demon Ravana, this festival provides Delhiites with an opportunity to resolve to bring an end to the Delhi Government, which he described as a symbol of corruption and inefficiency, he said. Sachdeva visited one of Delhi's oldest Ramilas, organized by Shri Dharmik Leela Committee, to watch the festivities and welcomed the President Droupadi Murmu and Prime Minister Narendra Modi at the Ramleela.

Why no action taken against health official for sexually harassing lady doctor: AAP's Sanjay Singh asks LG

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

The Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) on Saturday alleged that no action has been taken against a health official who is accused of sexually harassing a lady doctor in a Delhi government hospital. AAP's Rajya Sabha MP Sanjay Singh, in a press conference, questioned Lt Governor Vinai Kumar Saxena why no action was taken against the accused officer even though allegations against him were found to be correct. Singh said the woman doctor filed her complaint against the medical superintendent of the hospital in October 2023. After a delay of four months, a probe was started by an internal committee in March 2024, he claimed. "The internal committee in its probe found that the woman doctor's allegations against the officer were correct, yet no action was taken against him," he claimed further. The AAP leader demanded action against the health secretary of Delhi government and arrest of the accused officer. Singh shared a heartbreaking incident from a Delhi Hospital. He stated, "For the past one and a half years, a female doctor in Delhi has been subjected to sexual harassment, and despite repeated complaints, no action has been taken against the Medical Superintendent (MS) responsible. Instead, an investigation has been launched against the victim." Highlighting how shocking it is, he said that perhaps this is why PM Modi and the BJP have given the LG the authority to transfer, post, and take action, so that those who harass women can be protected. This is exactly what Delhi's LG is doing.

90,000 poor people in city have not received ration cards: Vijender Gupta

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

Leader of the Opposition in the Delhi Legislative Assembly, Vijender Gupta on Saturday welcomed the order by Lieutenant Governor Vinai Kumar Saxena to the Chief Secretary to investigate the issue of 90,000 poor people in Delhi not receiving ration cards. Gupta labeled the Aam Aadmi Party government as one that exploits the Dalits and the poor, stating that this government has snatched food from the mouths of thousands of poor families by not providing them with ration. He explained that the Kejriwal government has conspired against the poor, deprived them of their rights, and exposed its anti-Dalit and anti-poor agenda by halting the distribution of ration. Gupta recently wrote a letter to the Lieutenant Governor, seeking his intervention in the matter. Taking note of the issue, the Lieutenant Governor has directed the Chief Secretary to investigate. The Leader of the Opposition mentioned that during the tenure of former Prime Minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee, the 'Antyodaya Anna Yojana' was launched under the 'National Food Security Act' with the aim of providing ration to the poorest families in society.

Under this scheme, as per the 2011 census, 1,56,800 extremely poor families in Delhi were entitled to receive 35 kilograms of ration every month, which included 21 kg of wheat, 14 kg of rice, and one kg of sugar. These families primarily included landless agricultural laborers, marginal farmers, artisans, weavers, blacksmiths, slum dwellers, daily wage laborers, waste pickers, tribal communities, poor families with HIV-positive members, potters, cobblers, porters, widows, disabled persons, and the homeless—those belonging to the lowest strata of society. Gupta said when the Aam Aadmi Party came to power

10 years ago in 2015, 76,458 poor families were receiving ration under this scheme. However, after almost 10 years, this number has decreased to 66,532, meaning around 10,000 fewer people are receiving ration, while this number should have increased over the last decade. Out of the 1,56,800 families, the remaining 90,000 poor individuals could have been issued ration cards, but the Kejriwal government failed to do so. Gupta pointed out that when the BJP raised the demand for these families to be issued ration cards, on July 31, 2019, the Delhi government's Food and Civil Supplies Department prepared a list according to their constituencies for issuing ration cards to these poor individuals and sent it to the concerned department's minister, Imran Hussain, for approval. However, the minister commented on the file, ordering the issuance to be stopped until further notice. Gupta said if these 90,000 poor individuals had been issued ration cards, they would have been receiving 35 kilograms of free ration every month today under the leadership of Prime Minister Narendra Modi's central government. However, the Kejriwal government has deprived them of this free food for the last five years, snatching away the food from their children. The Leader of the Opposition expressed his dismay, stating how shameful it is that the Kejriwal government, which claims to be the well-wisher of the poor and underprivileged, has failed to provide them their rightful ration. The government has taken away the free food that they were entitled to from the central government. He added that this government is strongly opposed to the poor, which is why it does not want to provide healthcare under 'Ayushman Bharat Yojana' or 35 kilograms of ration under the 'Antyodaya Yojana' to the poor.

LG approves creation of 200 additional posts for PGTs

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

Lieutenant Governor Vinai Kumar Saxena on Saturday approved the creation of 200 additional posts for Post Graduate Teachers (PGTs). These positions, set at the secondary and senior secondary levels, will be filled on a regular basis within the government schools under Delhi's Directorate of Education and will follow pay matrix level 8 (Rs 47,600 - Rs 1,51,100), a statement issued by the Raj Niwas said. The decision aims to mitigate issues like favouritism, corruption, breaches of reservation norms and employee harassment associated with non-permanent posts, according to the lieutenant governor's office. Currently, over 9,500 Children with Disabilities (CwD) are enrolled in classes 9 to 12 in the Delhi government schools. However, with only 283 PGTs for Special Education working against 301 sanctioned posts, many students have been left underserved.

Presently, 609 government schools in the capital cater to CwD at the senior secondary level, yet the limited number of special education teachers has posed challenges for these institutions in meeting the daily inclusive education needs, it said. The newly approved posts will enhance the existing workforce to ensure that the government's inclusive education policies aligned with the Right to Education Act 2009, the Rights of Persons with Disabilities Act 2016 and the National Education Policy 2020 are adequately implemented. The decision was based on a collaborative assessment process led by the Directorate of Education in consultation with the Administrative Reform, Planning, and Finance Departments of the Delhi government, the statement reads. Saxena has also emphasized the importance of permanently filling vacant positions in the government schools across Delhi through DSSSB-conducted exams in a timely manner. The ongoing recruitment drive is expected to address additional vacancies, including those for Post Graduate Teachers, Trained Graduate Teachers and Nursery Teachers in the capital's government schools, it said.

Police arrest man for involvement in 2013 murder

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

A 50-year-old man was arrested from the forest area in Jharkhand for his alleged involvement in a case of murder committed in 2013 in Delhi's Tilak Nagar by six people over a property dispute. Deputy Commissioner of Police (Crime) SK Sain said it was a contract killing where six people, including Raju Banarasi alias Raju Singh alias Mritunjay Singh, was involved in the murder of Jitender Lamba. The killers were paid Rs 10 lakh for the execution of murder by Jitender's real brother Rajesh Singh Lamba. Five accused were arrested earlier, but Banarasi was on the run. The court had declared him a proclaimed offender and also announced a cash reward of Rs 50,000 on his arrest. Sain said despite multiple setbacks and without any proper lead, the team relentlessly worked and after analyzing hundreds of mobile numbers of last ten years contact of arrested accused persons as well as their friends, finally a mobile phone of Banarasi's distant relative was found active in Jharkhand. The number's location was constantly showing in the forest areas of Chhattisgarh and Jharkhand border. "The team reached the location area and started work with the local labours to get access in the forest area smoothly as it is difficult to find the person in such dense forest," Sain said. During this, the team developed their sources and laid a tactical and strategic trap which finally succeed to zero down and nab Banarasi, who was driving a truck in the jungle area, he added. Banarasi, who is unmarried, was staying in the jungle area with the help of a relative, police said.

34-year-old woman raped, dumped in Sarai Kale Khan area

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

A 34-year-old woman was allegedly raped and later dumped in a semi-conscious state here, police said on Saturday. According to officials, a passerby spotted the woman in Sarai Kale Khan area and informed the police around 3.30 am on Friday. A police team reached the spot and took her to AIIMS Trauma Center, they said. Police said they are suspecting that the woman was sexually assaulted elsewhere and was dumped at Sarai Kale Khan area. The woman, a resident of Odisha, left her hometown a year ago and had been staying in Delhi, a senior police officer said. "The victim stayed with another woman in Delhi's Katwara Sarai," the officer said. She was later asked to leave in August due to a dispute and stayed on the streets for several days, he said. The officer further said that she is a graduate and had previously been seen in southeast Delhi's Jamroodpur where she had allegedly tried trespassing a house. However, no complaint was filed. She also stayed a night inside an ATM booth in Kishangarh, he said. Efforts are underway to identify the accused on the basis of CCTV footages and other technical surveillance, the police said.

Weapons, equipments will be used with full force if needed: Defence Minister

NEW DELHI

Defence Minister Rajnath Singh on Saturday said India has never attacked any country out of hatred or contempt but if its interests are threatened, "we will not hesitate to take a big step".

On the occasion of Vijayadashami, he performed 'Shastra Puja' (worship of weapons) at the Sukna military station in West Bengal, and said the ritual is a "clear indication that if need be, weapons and equipment will be used with full force".

The Sukna-based 33 Corps, popularly known as the 'Trishakti' Corps, is responsible for guarding the Line of Actual Control (LAC) with China in the Sikkim sector.

"India has never attacked any country out of hatred or contempt. We fight only when someone insults or tries to harm our integrity and sovereignty; when war is waged against religion, truth and human values. This is what we have inherited. We will continue to preserve this heritage," Singh said in a statement issued by the defence ministry.

"However, if our interests are threatened, we will not hesitate to take a big step. 'Shastra Puja' is a clear indication that if need be, the weapons, equipment will be used with full force," he said. Earlier in the day, the defence minister shared photographs of the ritual on social media. "On the occasion of Vijayadashami in India, there has been a long-standing tradition of weapon worship. Today, I performed 'Shastra Puja' at the 33 Corps headquarters in Sukna, Darjeeling," he posted in Hindi. Vijayadashami marks the end of Navratra and is celebrated as the festival of Dussehra. This significant ceremony -- 'Shastra Puja' -- in the Indian

Army symbolises the respect for weapons as the protectors of the nation's sovereignty, the ministry said. The event was attended by Army Chief General Upendra Dwivedi, Defence Secretary-designate R K Singh, General Officer Commanding-in-Chief of Eastern Command Lt General Ram Chander Tiwari, Director General, Border Roads, Lt General Raghu Srinivasan, General Officer Commanding of Trishakti Corps Lt General Zubin A Minwalla and other senior officers. The defence minister initiated the rituals with 'Kalash Puja', followed by the

'Shastra Puja' and 'Vahan Puja'. Rajnath also interacted with the troops at the Sukna military station. "The rituals, performed to seek blessings for strength, success and safety, reaffirm the cultural and spiritual depth of Dussehra, underscoring the pivotal role of weapon systems in safeguarding the country," the statement said. They symbolise the preparedness, resolve and unwavering dedication of the armed forces to protect the nation, it added. "The ceremony highlighted the Indian Army's blend of tradition and modernisation, with a focus on preserving India's sovereignty and promoting indigenous defence systems and platforms," the statement said.

Rajnath commended the vigilance and critical role of the armed forces in maintaining peace and stability along the borders.

He said Dussehra symbolises the victory of good over evil. The defence minister was scheduled to address the Army Commanders Conference in Gangtok on Friday in person.

But due to bad weather in the Sikkim capital, he addressed them through video conference from the Army location in Sukna.

The conference came amid a lingering border row in eastern Ladakh. Its first phase was hosted in a forward area in Sikkim's Gangtok, a location that holds significance for the Indian Army, given its proximity to the Line of Actual Control (LAC).

Rajnath in his address to the top commanders of the Army expressed confidence in the force in dealing with "any contingency", even as he said the ongoing talks with China for a peaceful resolution of the row "will continue at all levels".

CAQM empowers district officials against stubble burning

NEW DELHI

Following a rap from the Supreme Court, the Commission for Air Quality Management (CAQM) has empowered district authorities, including District Magistrates in Haryana, Uttar Pradesh, and NCR areas of Rajasthan, to take action against officials for inaction on stubble burning enforcement.

The CAQM order aimed to curb pollution due to stubble burning ahead of the winter season. It directs district administrations and state governments to intensify vigilance during the harvest season and has deployed 26 central teams to Punjab and Haryana. A dedicated paddy stubble management cell has also been established for coordinated action and monitoring, said the CAQM, a statutory body tasked with preparing strategies to curb air pollution in Delhi-NCR.

The commission reported 267 stubble-burning incidents in Punjab and 187 in Haryana from September 15 to October 9. The CAQM emphasized the need for constant vigilance and responsibility from district administrations during the harvest season. "Taking into account the current situation and to ensure effective implementation of the action plans at the field level, the CAQM has authorised deputy collectors/district magistrates in Punjab, Haryana, Delhi and NCR areas of Rajasthan and Uttar Pradesh to file a complaint/prosecution before jurisdictional judicial magistrate in case of inaction in respect of officials, including nodal officers and supervisory officers and station house officers, responsible for effective enforcement towards ensuring elimination of paddy stubble burning in their respective jurisdiction," a statement said. On September 27, a bench of the top court had criticised the commission for not taking penal action under Section 14 of the CAQM Act against stubble burning, highlighting that without such action, directives against farm fires would remain ineffective.

"If there is no penal action taken under Section 14, prohibitive directions against farm fires will remain only on paper," the Supreme Court had said.

The court had also observed that in three years the commission has issued only 82 directions. Section 14 states any non-compliance or contravention of any provisions of the Act, rules made there under or any order or direction issued by the commission, shall be an offence punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend up to five years or with fine which may extend up to Rs 1 crore or with both. In an affidavit submitted to the Supreme Court, the commission had said that concentrated action by the Centre and state governments saw stubble burning incidents decrease by 49% from 71,304 in 2021 to 36,663 in 2023 in Punjab. During the same period Haryana saw the number of farm fires reduced from 6,987 to 2,303, it had said. The CAQM also directed the respective district administrations and the State Governments to shoulder higher responsibility and maintain constant and strict vigil to control any further paddy stubble burning in the harvesting season.

208 infrastructure projects recommended under PM GatiShakti

NEW DELHI

As many as 208 big-ticket infrastructure projects of different ministries, including roads and railways, worth Rs 15.39 lakh crore have been recommended for approval under the PM GatiShakti initiative so far. These projects have been recommended by the Network Planning Group (NPG) constituted under the PM GatiShakti initiative launched on October 13, 2021.

"So far, 208 projects have been assessed under the initiative worth Rs 15.39 lakh crore,"

Secretary, Department for Promotion of Industry and Internal Trade (DPIIT), Amardeep Singh Bhatia, said.

There are several benefits of using the system, including significant cuts in time and cost for planning these infrastructure projects, he added. The maximum number of projects recommended by the group are related to roads (101), railways (73), urban development (12), and four from the oil and gas ministry. The inter-ministerial NPG meets every fortnight and appraises infra projects to ensure synchronisation of efforts, and comprehensive development in and around the project location.

The initiative was launched to develop an integrated infrastructure to reduce logistics costs. All logistics and connectivity infrastructure projects, entailing investments of over Rs 500 crore are routed through the NPG. The NPG's approval is required before the clearance of the project by the Public Investment Board (PIB) or Department of Expenditure under the finance ministry. The NMP (National Master Plan) has over 1,600 layers of geospatial data, showing all physical and social infrastructure of an area and land records in one place. It has been designed for faster planning and better design so that the impact of an investment is maximised.

The NPG has representations from various connectivity infrastructure ministries/departments, involving their heads of network planning division for unified planning and integration of the proposals. All these departments approach the NPG first for approval before making a DPR (Detailed Project Report) at the planning stage. After the NPG's clearance, the project follows the normal procedure of approval by the finance ministry and the Cabinet.

Over 1,600 layers of data, including those related to land, ports, forests, and highways, are available on the portal. Usage of the portal by different ministries, including social sector departments and states, is increasing, and it is helping in the proper planning of projects. Also, as many as 156 critical infrastructure gaps to ports and for movement of bulk commodities like coal, cement, fertilisers and foodgrains, have been identified for intervention under the PM Gati Shakti initiative. The department is working with states for integration of updated land record data, the official added. Besides, he said that Nepal and Sri Lanka have shown keen interest in this initiative. "We can roll it for them also. With Sri Lanka, we are working out the things," he said. He said that the department is working to roll out the initiative at the district level, and in the next 1-2 months, "we should be able to roll it out".

WHO praises India's Tele Manas mental health initiative

NEW DELHI

The World Health Organization (WHO) has praised India's Tele Manas initiative, which was launched two years ago to address mental health issues which are on the increase in the country. The Tele Manas facility offers support in 20 languages and is now expanding to include video consultation options, enhancing accessibility and providing more comprehensive care for individuals seeking mental health assistance.

Initially, this facility will be launched in Karnataka, Jammu and Kashmir, and Tamil Nadu, with plans for a nationwide rollout in the future. This new feature allows mental health professionals to gather additional information during audio call escalations, enhancing history-taking and providing clearer clarifications for patients facing mental health challenges. Congratulating the Ministry for two years with the successful implementation of Tele-MANAS, Dr. Roderico H. Ofrin, WHO Representative to India stated that "WHO review of Tele-MANAS has shown a successful model for mental health. It has the potential to work well. The primary healthcare, especially the Ayushman Arogya Mandirs have proven to be successful in improving mental health and well-being of the people". The upgraded facility with video option was launched by Aradhana Patnaik, Additional Secretary with the Union Health Ministry and Managing Director, National Health Mission (NHM) at an event here. Talking about mental health in the workplace, Dr. Ofrin stated that issues like gender inequity, disrespectful unsupportive colleagues, lack of work-life balance, and job satisfaction lead to mental health challenges for the employees in the workplace. He emphasized the responsibility of employers and managers to create a supportive work environment. A senior official said that the video option will also allow for brief physical examinations or Mental State Examinations (MSE) to verify findings. "However, it will be mandatory to take the prior consent from the caller before doing video consultations," said information provided by the Union Health Ministry.

Tele MANAS app, a comprehensive mobile platform that has been developed for providing support for mental health issues which was also launched on the occasion has a library of information including tips on self-care, recognizing distress signals, managing early signs of stress, anxiety, and emotional struggles. It facilitates engagement of the user through mind challenges, games and mindfulness practices providing a user-friendly experience. The Report of Tele MANAS rapid assessment by WHO and a Self Care Module for Employees titled 'Taking charge of your mental health-because it matters' was also released at the event. Tele MANAS has reached a significant milestone, having handled over 14.5 lakh calls since its launch.

SC to hear Shashi Tharoor's defamation plea

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court is scheduled to hear on Monday a plea of Congress MP Shashi Tharoor against a Delhi High Court verdict that refused to quash defamation proceedings against him for his alleged "scorpion on Shivling" remark targeting Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

While hearing Tharoor's plea on September 10, the apex court had stayed the proceedings before a trial court in the defamation case filed against the Congress MP. The top court had also issued notice to the Delhi Police and BJP leader Rajiv Babbar, who is the complainant in the case, seeking their responses on the plea. As per the cause list of the apex court website, a bench of Justices Hrishikesh Roy and SVN Bhatti is slated to hear Tharoor's plea. The Congress MP has moved the top court against the high court's August 29 order which refused to quash the defamation proceedings against him.

During the hearing on September 10, Tharoor's counsel told the apex court that the complainant cannot be said to be an aggrieved party in the case and members of the political party also cannot be said to be an aggrieved party.

His counsel argued that Tharoor's comment was protected under the immunity clause of the defamation law, which stipulates that any statement made in good faith was not criminal.

The lawyer said Tharoor made a reference to an article published in the Caravan magazine six years before the statement was made.

The top court had expressed surprise that in 2012, the statement was not defamatory when the article was originally published.

"Eventually it is a metaphor. I have tried to understand. It refers to the invincibility of the person referred to (Modi). I do not know why somebody has taken objection here," Justice Roy had remarked during the hearing.

While refusing to quash the proceedings against Tharoor, the high court had said prima facie, imputations like "scorpion on Shivling" against the prime minister were "despicable and deplorable".

The high court, which on October 16, 2020, stayed the criminal proceedings against the Congress MP from Thiruvananthapuram in the defamation complaint, vacated the interim order and directed the parties to appear before the trial court on September 10.

It had said that prima facie, the remark defamed the prime minister, the BJP as well as its office-bearers and members. Dismissing Tharoor's petition seeking quashing of the defamation proceedings pending before the trial court, the high court had said there was sufficient material before the judicial magistrate for summoning him under section 500 (punishment for defamation) of the Indian Penal Code (IPC).

The Congress leader had sought setting aside the trial court's April 27, 2019 order summoning him as an accused in the criminal defamation complaint filed by Rajiv Babbar as also the November 2, 2018 complaint. The criminal complaint was filed against Tharoor in the trial court by Babbar, who claimed that his religious sentiments were hurt by the Congress leader's statement.

In October 2018, Tharoor had claimed that an unnamed RSS leader had compared Modi to "a scorpion sitting on a Shivling". The Congress leader had said it was an "extraordinarily striking metaphor".

NCPCR urges reforms in madrasa education standards

NEW DELHI

The National Commission for Protection of Child Rights (NCPCR) has expressed serious concerns about the status of education in madrasas in India, arguing that their exemption from the Right to Education (RTE) Act is detrimental to children's education. In its recent report, "Guardians of Faith or Oppressors of Rights?", the NCPCR has flagged issues such as inadequate formal education, lack of basic resources, and said that there was a lack of accountability in many madrasas, where physical safety concerns, such as poor infrastructure and cases of child rights violations, have been reported.

According to the report, the exemption of madrasas from the RTE Act has deprived children attending these institutions of quality education. While Articles 29 and 30 of the Indian Constitution protect the rights of minorities to preserve their culture and establish educational institutions, NCPCR asserts that these provisions have inadvertently led to discrimination against children in madrasas, who miss out on formal education mandated by the RTE Act. The report pointed out that while the primary focus of madrasas is religious education, many do not provide the essential components of formal education such as adequate infrastructure, trained teachers, and proper academic curricula.

This leaves students at a disadvantage compared to their peers in mainstream schools. The report also noted instances where madrasa students have been denied basic entitlements such as textbooks, uniforms, and access to midday meal scheme.

The NCPCR said a significant number of Muslim children - approximately 1.2 crore - are out of school and not receiving formal education, as per UDISE 2021-22 data. The child's rights body has recommended a series of measures, including stopping state funding to madrasas and madrasa boards unless they comply with the RTE Act and removing non-Muslim children from madrasas, as their inclusion violates Article 28 of the Constitution, which prohibits the imposition of religious instruction without parental consent.

The commission's report called for a balanced approach, where both religious and formal education can coexist but not within the same institution. "Religious education cannot come at the expense of formal education," the report asserted, emphasising that the state must prioritise the fundamental right of every child to free and compulsory education.

Rising myopia in kids linked to screen time

NEW DELHI

Amid rising concerns about increasing myopia rates among school-age children, ophthalmologists have linked this disturbing trend to the growing use of smartphones and digital screens.

Dr JS Tital, chief of AIIMS's Rajendra Prasad Center in Delhi, emphasised that excessive screen time impacts children's learning and development.

He warned that if not addressed promptly, this could lead to future eye complications. "To combat this issue, there is a need to have a law to restrict smartphone use for kids under three years old," Dr Tital said recently on World Sight Day recently.

He emphasised the importance of parents actively monitoring their children's screen habits and encouraging outdoor activities. In their pediatric outpatient department, the AIIMS doctors noted that up to 10 per cent of visiting kids had refractive errors, with 30 per cent diagnosed with myopia. Thus, underscoring the urgent need for action to combat this troubling trend.

Professor Rohit Saxena from the RP Centre, AIIMS Delhi labeled myopia a "lifestyle disease," and emphasised the concerning symptoms children may experience, including eye fatigue, pain, loss of concentration, sleep disturbances, headaches, and irritability. He warned that these issues could exacerbate myopia in predisposed children.

Dr Mahipal Singh Sachdev, Chairman of the Centre for Sight Group of Eye Hospitals, too stressed the importance of parental awareness, given that a child's retina is still developing at ages 2-3.

"Prolonged exposure to screens can pose a 70% risk of retinal damage," He urged parents to limit their children's screen time, as young kids are naturally drawn to digital content, to safeguard their vision and promote healthier habits.

Mass resignation by doctors not acceptable: Bengal Government

PTI ■ KOLKATA

The West Bengal government on Saturday said the mass resignation of doctors of state-run hospitals is not valid and it must be submitted individually according to service rules. Several doctors from state-run hospitals have submitted collectively signed "resignation" letters to the government seeking justice for the post-graduate trainee who was raped and murdered at Kolkata's R G Kar Medical College and Hospital and in support of junior medics on a fast-unto-death to press for their demands. "Unless an employee sends in his/her resignation personally to the employer as per service rules, it is not a resignation letter," Alapan Bandyopadhyay, chief advisor to West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee, told reporters at the state secretariat Nabanna here. He clarified that the letters sent by the doctors were merely collective signatures without addressing specific issues. Bandyopadhyay emphasised the government's intention to clarify the situation amidst confusion regarding the mass resignations by senior doctors from various government hospitals, including R G Kar Medical College and IPGMER and SSKM Hospital. Earlier this week, a group of senior doctors at R G Kar Medical College sent a collectively signed "mass resignation" letter in solidarity with their protesting junior colleagues. Subsequently, similar letters were sent by doctors from other state-run hospitals. Junior doctors at several government hospitals in the state are on a fast-unto-death demanding justice for their murdered colleague, the resignation of the state's health secretary, and enhanced workplace security. The government asserted that healthcare services in state-run hospitals have not been disrupted, as senior doctors continue to work normally. The junior doctors had called off their 'total cease work' at state-run medical colleges and hospitals on October 4. The mass resignations are being interpreted as a symbolic gesture of solidarity from senior doctors with their junior counterparts, the government said.

Another junior doctor observing fast unto death hospitalised after condition deteriorates

PTI ■ KOLKATA

Another junior doctor, who was observing a fast-unto-death in protest over the rape-murder of a woman medic at RG Kar hospital, was admitted to a healthcare facility on Saturday after his condition deteriorated, an official said. Alok Varma from North Bengal Medical College and Hospital became the second medic of those who have been on the indefinite fast to be hospitalised after Aniket Mahato was admitted to the ICU of RG Kar hospital three days back. Parichoy Panda from Ramakrishna Mission Seva Pratishthan and Alokika Ghorui from Calcutta National Medical College and Hospital joined the protest, taking the total number of medics on indefinite fast across the state to 11, including the two who have been hospitalised. The junior doctors commenced their fast-unto-death in the Esplanade area in central Kolkata on October 5. The protesting doctors have been demanding justice for the deceased woman medic at the RG Kar Medical College and Hospital and immediate removal of Health Secretary NS Nigam. Their other demands include the establishment of a centralised referral system for all hospitals and medical colleges in the state, the implementation of a bed vacancy monitoring system, and formation of task forces to ensure essential provisions for CCTV, on-call rooms, and washrooms at their workplaces. They are also demanding increased police protection in hospitals, recruitment of permanent women police personnel, and swift filling of vacant positions for doctors, nurses, and other healthcare workers. The junior doctors went on to cease work following the rape-murder of a fellow medic at RG Kar medical college on August 9. They ended their stir after 42 days on September 21 following assurances from the state government to look into their demands. The healthcare services in West Bengal was severely disrupted due to the cease work by junior doctors. The Indian Medical Association had said that the demands raised by the doctors were possible to be met by the West Bengal government and not insurmountable. Even the medics of several private hospitals in Kolkata had shown solidarity with the agitating doctors. Medics, junior and senior alike, have hit the streets demanding justice for the deceased trainee doctor.

Pankaja Munde promises to take cognisance if Dalits, OBCs are troubled

PTI ■ CHHATRAPATI SAMBHAJINAGAR

Ahead of Maharashtra Assembly polls, BJP leader Pankaja Munde on Saturday reached out to Dalits and Other Backward Classes (OBC), vowing to take cognisance if they are "troubled". Munde, who lost the Lok Sabha polls on her home turf Beed district, the epicentre of Maratha protests led by activist Manoj Jarange, was addressing her annual Dussehra rally at Sawargaon Ghat, the birthplace of Sant Bhagwanbaba, a saint of her Vanjari community. State agriculture minister and her cousin Dhananjay Munde and Laxman Hake, who had protested opposing any potential dilution of the OBC reservation, were among those who spoke at the rally. Munde expressed her concerns over the growing caste schism within society. "If a vehicle hits someone, people ask the caste of the driver. People want to know the caste of a person who has committed brutality against a small child and killed her. We don't want such a society," she said. The BJP national secretary warned that they would take cognisance if the poor, Dalits, OBCs and others are "troubled" in the state. Munde said she inherited the legacy of her father and late BJP stalwart Gopinath Munde and thanked people for giving her respect despite her electoral setback. "To reciprocate for the respect I received, I will tour the state. The poor are waiting for good days by keeping their faith in Prime Minister Narendra Modi's leadership. Now, we must play our cards," she said. She also appealed to labourers from her area involved in the sugar industry not to leave for work before casting their votes. Sugarcane cutting season starts in October in Maharashtra. Elections to the 288-member state assembly will likely be held in November. BJP is a partner in the ruling Mahayuti coalition, also comprising Ajit Pawar-led NCP and Shiv Sena headed by Chief Minister Eknath Shinde. "I never discriminated between the villages that voted for me and those that didn't during fund allocation. A mistake happened this time (in Lok Sabha polls), but we want to overcome that failure," said the former state minister. Referring to the Lok Sabha polls in Beed, where she lost to Congress' Bajrang Sonawane by about 6,500 votes, Munde said, "I'm not desperate for a post. Five persons lost their lives (by suicide) before I became an MLC. Even though I don't hold any post, I will not abandon those who have supported me." NCP leader Dhananjay Munde said Gopinath Munde and Pankaja Munde struggled for the people, not for themselves. "Today, people from all communities are here. The crowd here today shows that we are all united," he said. Without taking the name of Jarange, who incidentally held a Dussehra rally at Narayangad in Beed district, he appealed to people to stay united. "If we unite, no one can organise another such event in this area and undermine Pankaja Munde's annual Dussehra rally. This is the time for struggle and we need to stand with each other," he added.

Manipur Police sets up special cell to tackle extortion by underground groups, gangs

PTI ■ IMPHAL

Manipur Police on Saturday said the state government has set up a special cell to combat extortion by underground groups and gangs, which has reached unprecedented levels over the last 16 months. Briefing reporters, IGP (Intelligence) K. Kabib said numerous underground groups and gangs have escalated their extortion activities since the ethnic violence erupted in the state on May 3, 2023. "Illegal taxes are being collected from trucks plying on highways. In the guise of donations, they are harassing businesses, educational institutions, and even common people, slowing down economic activities," Kabib said, adding, "Police are taking maximum preventive measures to tackle these extortionists." He also noted that these underground groups are sometimes involved in kidnapping, grenade attacks, and phone threats. In response to these activities, police have formed an anti-extortion cell, led by the ADGP (Law and Order), which includes all zonal IGPs as members, he said. "This cell will focus on monitoring and supervising the anti-extortion drive across the state. District police, with assistance from other security agencies, have established 15 crack teams dedicated to combating extortion," he added. Over the past year, more than 121 extortionists have been arrested, along with over 215 members of underground groups and gangs. Regarding movement of essential commodities along the highways, police, with the support of the CRPF, have deployed 16 dedicated companies for Road Opening Party (ROP) on NH 2, with two additional companies for escorting trucks. Kabib mentioned that certain areas identified as extortion hotspots have mobile teams deployed for increased frisking and checking. Police are coordinating with other agencies and have urged the public to report any extortion demands, he said. "We will do our utmost to apprehend the extortionists. If you give in to one group, others will come for their share. Many gangs are also using the names of underground groups for extortion," he said. Kabib emphasised that extortion has become a well-organised issue, impacting multiple districts and even crossing state lines, which could affect national security. "Police are considering handing over certain cases, such as attacks on essential commodities convoys, to central agencies like the NIA," he added. He also urged the public to be vigilant against moral policing in their communities. "Do not allow groups or people to engage in moral policing, as many cases end in extortion. Innocent people have fallen victim to such practices," he cautioned. Meanwhile, IGP (Administration) K. Jayanta Singh noted that extortion has affected both the private and public sectors in the state. "We suspect that weapons looted from police armories during the violence are being used to intimidate victims in extortion cases," Singh added. "We view this as a highly organised sector, and the situation is serious. We have made arrests, and investigations indicate that those executing extortion on the ground are often just pawns in a larger scheme," he said.

TN Government taking all measures to mitigate impact of heavy rain: Minister

PTI ■ CHENNAI

The Tamil Nadu government is taking all precautionary steps to mitigate the impact of heavy rains predicted by the India Meteorological department next week, Minister K K S S R Ramachandran said on Saturday. The Minister for Revenue and Disaster Management pointed out that challenges arise while initiating relief efforts in those areas, which receive 10 cm to 20 cm rainfall. "On the instructions of Chief Minister M K Stalin, this government is taking all the necessary preventive measures to control the impact as the Meteorological department has predicted heavy rainfall on October 15, 16, 17 and 18. Particularly, Chennai and nearby districts, are expected to receive heavy rainfall on those days. Officials are monitoring the situation round-the-clock and are sharing information with the local officials constantly," he told reporters. Unlike the past, Ramachandran said the state government is taking steps to stock up essentials like milk, drinking water in low-lying areas, well in advance. "Last time, when there was heavy rainfall, there was difficulty in supplying milk, water and food packets to the people in low-lying areas. Now, we are taking all those steps in advance and have instructed officials to keep the stock ready in places where heavy rainfall is predicted," he said.

Nearly 65,000 volunteers have already registered and they would be mobilised based on requirement. Besides the volunteers, there would be constant update through TN Alert mobile application and the services of National Disaster Response Force personnel would be sought during such occasions, he said. To a query, he said, "if there is scattered rainfall across various places, we can manage the situation and take measures adequately. However, if one particular area receives 10 cm or 20 cm rainfall, then it is a challenge for us," he said. According to the Met department, isolated heavy rainfall activity very likely to continue over South Interior Karnataka, Kerala and Mahe and Tamil Nadu during the next 5-6 days. As per the update released by the Meteorological department, a cyclonic circulation lay over the southeast Bay of Bengal and adjoining Indian Ocean. Under its influence, a low pressure area is likely to form over southwest Bay of Bengal around October 14. Isolated very heavy rainfall is predicted very likely over Tamil Nadu, Puducherry and Karaikal between October 14 and 16. Heavy rainfall recorded today as of 8.30am, Karaikudi registered 15 cm, Tiruchirappalli airport 13 cm, Kuruthancode in Kanniyakumari 10 cm, Colachel 9 cm, Neyyoor 9 cm, Erode 8 cm and Varattupallam in Erode district received 7 cm.

UP Government to convene meet to ensure ban on tractor trolleys for passenger transportation

PTI ■ LUCKNOW

The Uttar Pradesh government will soon convene a high-level meeting to ensure compliance of the ban on using tractor trolleys for passenger transportation. The decision has been made in the wake of a spate of mishaps featuring passenger-travel on tractor trolleys, the latest one reported on October 4 from Mirzapur when 10 labourers were returning from a project site to their homes in Varanasi. After October 4 too, many tractor-trolley related mishaps have been reported from different parts of Uttar Pradesh. "We will soon convene a high-level meeting to discuss ways to curb use of tractor-trolleys for passenger transportation. Our strategy is going to be two-fold. Enforce regulations on tractor-trolleys strictly while also creating necessary awareness among the rural masses, who prefer tractor trolleys for commuting, possibly because they consider it to be a cheaper and readily accessible option," Uttar Pradesh Transport Minister Daya Shankar Singh told PTI.

The rules prohibit allowing tractor-trolleys from carrying people other than labourers, who may be heading to a project site or field for commercial/agricultural work. Admitting these rules are often flouted, the minister said that there was a need for strict enforcement. "We intend to create awareness among the masses by making them aware that while they might feel tractor trolleys are an easier, safer option, nothing can be more precious than life. We will see if putting up posters with such awareness messages makes an impact.

Simultaneously, we will go for stricter enforcement and for that we will convene a high-level meeting soon," Singh said. Earlier in February, 23 people travelling on tractor trolleys lost their lives in Uttar Pradesh's Kasganj. In October 2023, six people travelling by tractor trolleys were killed in Hathras and another 14 died in a separate road mishaps featuring the ill-fated trolleys in Shahjahanpur in April last year. In October 2022, 26 people were killed in a similar mishap in Agra.

BJP to woo MBCs in Uttar Pradesh to counter SP's PDA

BISWAJEET BANERJEE ■ LUCKNOW

With an aim to counter the Samajwadi Party's PDA, the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) has set its sights on consolidating its position in Uttar Pradesh by focusing on the Most Backward Castes (MBCs) among the Other Backward Classes (OBCs). Party insiders say as part of new strategy that MBC leaders would be at the forefront of organizational efforts to unite and represent these communities, which have historically been marginalized within the larger OBC group. Key MBC communities such as the Nai (barber), Vishwakarma (craftsmen), Sonar (goldsmiths), Chaurasia (betel leaf sellers), and Ankawanshi (small cultivators) are being specifically targeted. These groups have long been overshadowed by more politically powerful OBC sub-castes like Yadav, Kurmi, and Lodh, and the BJP sees an opportunity to mobilize them as part of its broader electoral strategy. This initiative is being timed ahead of the upcoming by-elections for 10 assembly seats and the 2027 state elections. Vijay Bahadur Pathak, state party vice-president said that the party aims to engage with these underrepresented communities. "Our teams, led by functionaries from various OBC groups, will reach out to these sections to inform them about their rights and the welfare programs launched by the BJP government at both the Centre and state levels," he said. He said that this effort would counter opposition claims regarding threats to constitutional protections and reservations for OBCs and SC/STs. This strategic push is seen as a response to the Samajwadi Party's (SP) successful Pichhda, Dalit, Alpsankhyak (PDA) narrative, which played a significant role in reducing the BJP's dominance in Uttar Pradesh. In the 2024 Lok Sabha elections, the BJP's seats in the state dropped from 62 in 2019 to 33, and its vote share fell from around 50% to approximately 41%. Meanwhile, the SP and its ally Congress saw their vote shares rise significantly, with SP gaining more than 15% and Congress around 3%, bringing them to 34% and 9.5%, respectively. BJP leaders pointed to their success in consolidating the OBC vote in Haryana, where they navigated the Congress's attempts to win over the Jat community, which makes up 27% of the state's electorate. The BJP's decision to replace Manohar Lal Khattar, a Punjabi Khatri, with Nayab Singh Saini, an OBC leader, was part of this strategy. Union minister Dharmendra Pradhan, a Kurmi, played a key role in shaping this approach as Haryana's election in-charge. Political experts suggest that the BJP has been laying the groundwork for its MBC outreach in Uttar Pradesh for some time.

Revenue Minister's comments on drones as unjustified, claims Himachal Governor

PNS ■ SHIMLA

Himachal Pradesh Governor Shiv Pratap Shukla on Saturday dismissed as "unjustified" the statement made by Revenue Minister Jagat Singh Negi's on drones being spotted on the India-China border in Kinnaur district. Revenue Minister Negi, MLA from Kinnaur constituency on Monday said that drones were spotted on the India-China border in the Kinnaur district and were likely being used for surveillance and espionage purposes. Responding to Negi's statement, the governor said, "No one has the courage to encroach our borders in today's era and in case any drone is spotted, the matter should be reported to the Union Government. Such a statement is unjustified and should not have been made." Talking to the media persons, the Governor said "I feel that this matter pertains to the Centre and not the state government." "Road construction to lay roads up to the Line of Actual Control (LAC) is in progress in both Shipki La and Rishidigri and the possibility of surveillance and espionage by these drones cannot be ruled out," the revenue and horticulture minister said on Monday. The minister had urged the Union government to take note of the matter and issue necessary directions, he had asked the Union Government to take strong notice of the Chinese drones violating Indian space and take necessary action.

Trump's campaign requests armoured vehicles amid threats from Iran

PTI ■ NEW YORK

Donald Trump's aides have requested a slew of stepped-up security measures, including military aircraft capable of shooting down surface-to-air missiles to transport the former president in the race's final stretch, amid growing concerns over threats from Iran in a campaign already shaken by violence.

The campaign's highly unusual request comes as the Republican candidate faces death threats from Iran, which has also targeted other former Trump administration officials and has also been blamed for a widespread hack of top campaign officials. Trump narrowly survived one assassination attempt and U.S. Secret Service agents foiled a second, though neither case has been publicly linked to Iranian actors. Beyond a military plane, the campaign has asked for special armored vehicles typically reserved for sitting presidents, expanded temporary flight restrictions over his rallies and his residences, reimbursements for decoy aircraft, and more money for the U.S. Secret Service and local law enforcement agencies that assist in Trump's protection. Both Trump and his staff have complained that he is being restricted from campaigning the way he wants to because the agency lacks the resources to keep him safe.

would be happy to approve Trump's request to use military aircraft in the final stages of the campaign, as long as "he doesn't ask for F-15s." "Look, what I've told the department is to give him every single thing he needs for his - as if he were a sitting president," he said. "Give him all that he needs. If it fits within that category, that's fine. But it doesn't, he shouldn't." The new security requests were first reported by the New York Times. The campaign and Secret Service have gone back and forth. The Trump campaign's requests were outlined in a letter to acting Secret Service director Ronald Rowe Jr. From senior Trump campaign adviser Susie Wiles and obtained by The Associated Press. She asked the Secret Service to pre-position the ballistic glass that Trump now uses for protection at his outdoor rallies in the seven battleground states where he is expected to spend the majority of time in the race's final stretch. Currently, it takes more than a week's notice to position the barriers in the right place, according to a person familiar with the requests who, like others, spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss security matters. Trump aides see that advance notice as unrealistic given the frenetic nature of the final days of a campaign, when schedules are adjusted based on incoming polls and campaign strategy, the person said. In a statement, Secret Service spokesperson Anthony Guglielmi said that since the attempted assassination on July 13 at a rally in Butler, Pennsylvania, the agency "has made comprehensive enhancements to its communications capabilities, resourcing and protective operations" and that Trump "is receiving the highest levels of protection." He said the Department of Defense regularly provides assistance for Trump's protection, including canine units, and that the Secret Service has been restricting air traffic over the former president's residence and when he travels. "Additionally, the former President is receiving the highest level of technical security assets, which include unmanned aerial vehicles counter unmanned aerial surveillance systems, ballistic and other advanced technology systems," he said. Former American presidents are able to use military airlift only if requested by the current president. In April, for instance, former President Bill Clinton used one as he led a U.S. Delegation to Rwanda. On Sept. 11, 2021, Biden, Clinton, and former President Barack Obama flew to a remembrance in New York. Trump has accused Biden of denying him resources. The Trump campaign for weeks now has accused the U.S. Secret Service of forcing it to cancel or scale back events due to a lack of resources. That includes a speech in Prairie du Chien, Wisconsin, held the same week as the U.N. General Assembly in New York, that was scaled back because the Secret Service couldn't secure a larger rally. Trump has accused Biden of intentionally denying security resources to help Vice President Kamala Harris, his Democratic opponent, by preventing him from addressing large crowds. "They couldn't give me any help. And I'm so angry about it because what they're doing is interfering in the election," he said in a recent Fox News interview. Trump, however, has repeatedly praised his own security detail, commending them for their bravery. While the Secret Service says Trump already has presidential-level protection, there are differences. Both Biden and Harris, for instance, have military assets, including planes. Beyond her Sept. 30 letter, Wiles has also spoken with White House Chief of Staff Jeff Zients and others about her concerns about Trump's security and how his ability to campaign has been curtailed by threats. Zients, according to a person who spoke on condition of anonymity to disclose details of their conversation, connected Wiles to Homeland Security Department and Secret Service leadership after she reached out and made clear that Biden had directed the Secret Service to provide the highest level of protection for Trump.

Australian cop can be charged over Nazi salute

PTI ■ MELBOURNE

An Australian state police chief apologized to the Jewish community on Saturday after a police sergeant allegedly performed an outlawed Nazi salute. The 65-year-old instructor on domestic violence policy and law at the Victoria state police academy in Melbourne is facing charges for the gesture and for praising Nazi leader Adolf Hitler with the words, "Heil Hitler" on Tuesday and Wednesday in front of academy staff and recruits, Police Chief Commissioner Shane Patton said. "I want to express just here at the outset my disappointment, my disgust, my anger at this appalling conduct," Patton told a press conference. "There is simply no place for this type of conduct in our society, let alone in this police force. For that reason, I want to profoundly apologize to the Jewish community but also to the community as whole," Patton added. Patton said the alleged behavior would exacerbate the grief and pain the Jewish community felt following the Oct. 7 anniversary of the Hamas attack on Israel. The police officer, whose name has not been released, has more than 40 years service. She was suspended from duty on Friday and was interviewed by professional standards internal investigators on Saturday. She will likely be charged by summons, a police statement said after Patton's news conference. The offence carries a potential maximum penalty of 12 months in prison and a fine of up to 23,000 Australian dollars ($16,000). Performing Nazi gestures and displaying Nazi symbols such as the swastika have been banned by various state and federal laws since 2022. The scandal comes in a week a Melbourne judge told self-described Nazi Jacob Hersant that he will become the first person in Australia to be sentenced to prison for performing the same banned gesture when the 25-year-old appears in court next month. In June, three soccer fans were fined for performing the salute during a Sydney match. The men were the first convicted in Australia for such offences and have lodged appeals. The Police Association of Victoria, a police union, described the allegations as serious and said officers should be held to the same standards as the rest of the community. "The Police Association has consistently condemned this offensive gesture and urged the government to toughen legislation and penalties against those who perform it," a union statement said. Anti-Defamation Commission chair Dvir Abramovich, a leading opponent of antisemitism in Australia, praised the police force's swift response to the officer's alleged actions. "A Nazi salute isn't just a gesture it's a horrifying symbol of genocide, terror, and anti-Semitism and for a police officer to wield this emblem of hate is beyond disturbing," he said in a statement. Patton said the suspended officer did not have a history of extreme views and her motives were unknown.

Deadly threat from migratory birds in Chicago

PTI ■ CHICAGO

With a neon-green net in hand, Annette Prince briskly walks a downtown Chicago plaza at dawn, looking left and right as she goes. It's not long before she spots a tiny yellow bird sitting on the concrete. It doesn't fly away, and she quickly nets the bird, gently places it inside a paper bag and labels the bag with the date, time and place. "This is a Nashville warbler," said Prince, director of the Chicago Bird Collision Monitors, noting that the bird must have flown into a glass window pane of an adjacent building. "He must only weigh about two pennies." For rescue groups like the Chicago Bird Collision Monitors, this scene plays out hundreds of times each spring and fall after migrating birds fly into homes, small buildings and sometimes Chicago's skyscrapers and other hulking buildings. A stark sign of the risks came last fall, when 1,000 migrating birds died on a single night after flying into the glass exterior of the city's lakefront convention center, McCormick Place. The USD 1.2 million project installed tiny dots on the exterior of the Lakeside Centre building, adorning enough glass to cover two football fields. Doug Stotz, senior conservation ecologist at the nearby Field Museum, hopes the project will be a success. He estimated that just 20 birds have died after flying into the convention's centre's glass exterior so far this fall, a hopeful sign. But for the birds that collide with Chicago buildings, there is a network of people waiting to help. They also are aiming to educate officials and find solutions to improve building design, lighting and other factors in the massive number of bird collision deaths in Chicago and worldwide. Prince said she and other volunteers walk the streets downtown to document what they can of the birds that are killed and injured. "We have the combination of the millions of birds that pass through this area because it's a major migratory path through the United States, on top of the amount of artificial lighting that we put out at night, which is when these birds are traveling and getting confused and attracted to the amount of glass," Prince said. Dead birds are often saved for scientific use, including by Chicago's Field Museum of Natural History. Rescued birds are taken to local wildlife rehabilitation centres to recover, such as the DuPage Wildlife Conservation Centre in suburban Illinois. On a recent morning, veterinarian Darcy Stephenson at DuPage gave a yellow-bellied sapsucker anesthetic gas before taping its wings open for an X-ray. The bird arrived with a note from a rescue group: "Window collision." Examining the results, she found the bird had a broken ulna - a bone in the wing. The centre takes in about 10,000 species of animals annually and 65 per cent of them are avian. Many are victims of window collisions and during peak migration in the fall, several hundred birds can show up in one day. "The large chunk of these birds do actually survive and make it back into the wild once we're able to treat them," said Sarah Reich, head veterinarian at DuPage. "Fractures heal very, very quickly in these guys for shoulder fractures. Soft tissue trauma generally heals pretty well. The challenging cases are going to be the ones where the trauma isn't as apparent."

Nepal's President, PM extend best wishes on Vijaya Dashami

PTI ■ KATHMANDU

Prime Minister K P Sharma Oli and President Ram Chandra Paudel greeted citizens on Saturday on the occasion of Vijaya Dashami and urged them to help the people affected due to recent disasters to return to normalcy. President Paudel wished peace, prosperity and happiness to all Nepalis on the tenth day of Nepal's largest Hindu festival Dashain while Prime Minister Oli called for cooperation and harmony among all citizens. Urging all Nepalis to extend help at individual levels too to the disaster hit people to return to normalcy, Oli, in a statement, assured the disaster survivors of necessary assistance on the part of the government. Nepal was recently hit by floods and landslides in different parts of the country due to incessant rain that saw as many 240 deaths and thousands either displaced. The almost two-weeks long major Hindu festival of Vijaya Dashami, or Dashain as it is popularly known here, began on October 3, by sowing of barley seeds called Jamara in a mud vessel on the first day with the installation of water vessel known as Kalash, known as Ghatasthapana. The festival extends till Kojagrat Purnima or the full Moon day, which falls on October 17 this year. During the occasion, people receive tika, vermilion powder mixed with curd and rice, along with Jamara or barley leaves from their elder members of the family as blessings. Meanwhile, every year, scores of people working in the Kathmandu Valley return to their remote homes across the Himalayan nation for Dashain. The Federation of Nepalese National Transport Entrepreneurs (FNNTTE) had initially estimated approximately 1.8 million passengers would leave the Valley via road transport. The Kathmandu Post quoted FNNTTE president Bijaya Swar as saying that only 1.3 million have travelled to their native places since day one of the festival and said, "The lower figure is due to road disruptions caused by floods and landslides following heavy rains on September 27 and 28." "The roads are in poor condition, making travel difficult. Despite this, 1.3 million people have left to celebrate Dashain with their families," Swar said. Avian enthusiasts try to counter the deadly risk of Chicago high-rises for migrating birds Chicago, Oct 11 (AP) With a neon-green net in hand, Annette Prince briskly walks a downtown Chicago plaza at dawn, looking left and right as she goes. It's not long before she spots a tiny yellow bird sitting on the concrete. It doesn't fly away, and she quickly nets the bird, gently places it inside a paper bag and labels the bag with the date, time and place. "This is a Nashville warbler," said Prince, director of the Chicago Bird Collision Monitors, noting that the bird must have flown into a glass window pane of an adjacent building. "He must only weigh about two pennies. He's squinting his eyes because his head hurts." For rescue groups like the Chicago Bird Collision Monitors, this scene plays out hundreds of times each spring and fall after migrating birds fly into homes, small buildings and sometimes Chicago's skyscrapers and other hulking buildings. A stark sign of the risks came last fall, when 1,000 migrating birds died on a single night after flying into the glass exterior of the city's lakefront convention center, McCormick Place. This fall, the facility unveiled new bird-safe window film on one of its glass buildings along the Lake Michigan shore. The USD 1.2 million project installed tiny dots on the exterior of the Lakeside Centre building, adorning enough glass to cover two football fields. Doug Stotz, senior conservation ecologist at the nearby Field Museum, hopes the project will be a success. He estimated that just 20 birds have died after flying into the convention's centre's glass exterior so far this fall, a hopeful sign. "We don't have a lot of data since this just started this fall, but at this point, it looks like it's made a huge difference," Stotz said. But for the birds that collide with Chicago buildings, there is a network of people waiting to help. They also are aiming to educate officials and find solutions to improve building design, lighting and other factors in the massive number of bird collision deaths in Chicago and worldwide. Prince said she and other volunteers walk the streets downtown to document what they can of the birds that are killed and injured. "We have the combination of the millions of birds that pass through this area because it's a major migratory path through the United States, on top of the amount of artificial lighting that we put out at night, which is when these birds are traveling and getting confused and attracted to the amount of glass," Prince said. Dead birds are often saved for scientific use, including by Chicago's Field Museum of Natural History. Rescued birds are taken to local wildlife rehabilitation centres to recover, such as the DuPage Wildlife Conservation Centre in suburban Illinois. Ancient humans were good at surviving last ice age: Study

Humans seem to have been adapted to the last ice age in similar ways to wolves and bears, according to our recent study, challenging longstanding theories about how and where our ancestors lived during this glacial period. Previous studies have supported the view of most archaeologists that modern humans retreated into southern Europe during the height of the last ice age and expanded during the later increase in global temperatures. But our study is the first to use genetic data to show that at least some humans stayed in central Europe, unlike many other animals and despite our species having evolved in the much warmer climate of Africa. Scientists have known since the 19th century that the distributions of animals and plants across the world may fluctuate with the climate. But the climate crisis has made it more important than ever to understand these fluctuations. Populations of the same species that live in different places often have different genetics to each other. More recently scientists have studied how climate change has altered the distribution of these genetically distinct populations of species. Most of the studies in this field focus on individual species of animal or plant. They have shown that many species, including humans, expanded their geographical ranges since the height of the last ice age, approximately 20,000 years ago. At this time, European ice sheets reached Denmark and south Wales. Europe was cold but mostly unglaciated, probably much like Alaska or Siberia today. Our team's new study, led by Oxala García-Rodríguez at

Bournemouth University, took a different approach and reviewed the genetic history of 23 common mammals in Europe. In addition to humans, these included rodents such as bank voles and red squirrels, insectivores like shrews and hedgehogs, ungulates like red deer and wild boar, and carnivores like brown bears and weasels. An important metric in our study was where the greatest diversity is today across Europe. This is because areas of high genetic variation are likely to be the areas of longest occupation by species. These areas, known as refugia, are locations where species retreated to survive during periods when environmental conditions were unfavourable elsewhere. For the mammals we studied, these refugia would have been occupied since the height of the last glaciation, at least. These refugia were probably the warmest areas or places where it was easiest for the animals to find food. The genetic patterns we found include cases where some mammals (such as red foxes and roe deer) were restricted to glacial refugia in southern areas such as Iberia and Italy, and that they expanded from these areas as global temperatures warmed following the ice age. Other mammals (such as beavers and lynx) expanded from glacial refugia to the east of Europe only to spread west. Species such as pygmy shrew and common vole had been restricted to sheltered areas such as deep valleys in northern Europe, small enclaves in otherwise inhospitable glacial landscapes. These patterns have previously been documented by other scientists. But we found a fourth pattern. Our study indicated some species (such as brown bears and wolves) were already widely distributed across Europe during the height of the last glaciation with either no discernible refugia or with refugia both to the north and south. This pattern includes Homo sapiens too. Neanderthals had already been extinct for around 20,000 years by this point. It's not clear why ancient humans and other animals in this group lived in this seemingly harsh climate rather than explore more hospitable places. But they seemed able to tolerate the ice age conditions while other animals withdrew to refugia. Perhaps most important of all is that among the species that seem to conform to this pattern, where little or no geographical contraction in population took place at the height of the last ice age, are modern humans.

India eye big win against injury-hit Australia

PTI ■ SHARJAH

Confident India will strive to take control of their destiny by securing yet another net-run-rate boosting victory when they face an injury-ravaged Australia in their must-win Women's T20 World Cup match here on Sunday. India's massive win over Sri Lanka earlier this week has significantly improved their chances of reaching the last four, despite their setback against New Zealand in their opener. Meanwhile Australia, with six points from three matches and an impressive net run rate of +2.786, have all but qualified for the semifinals, leaving India, New Zealand and Pakistan to fight out for the remaining spot. However, the defending champions suffered two injury setbacks during Friday's victory over Pakistan with skipper Alyssa Healy exiting the field due to an "acute injury to her right foot" and fast bowler Tayla Vlaeminck dislocated her shoulder. With the pair, which will undergo scans on Saturday, expected to miss the crucial clash on Sunday, Australia's depth will be tested. India's 82-run victory over Sri Lanka marked their largest margin of victory in tournament history, boosting not only their confidence but also their net run rate from negative to positive. The win also elevated them to second place in Group A, just behind Australia, who are undefeated in the tournament. But India, who are on 4 points, will need a win to keep their knockout aspirations alive as New Zealand have one more game in hand and can also reach a total of 6 points. If that's the scenario, qualification will hinge on the net run rate. While India currently holds a +0.567 NRR, New Zealand (-0.050) could surpass Harmanpreet Kaur and Co. With substantial victories over the struggling Pakistan and Sri Lanka. Pakistan have 2 points from three games. If they defeat New Zealand in their final match and India lose to Australia, there is a possibility that all three teams could be stuck on 4 points and again the NRR will come into play. Thus the 'Women in Blue' will be desperate not only for a win, but also for another net run rate boost to steer off any threat from the Kiwis. India has always challenged the Aussies, and with a last-four spot on the line, Harmanpreet Kaur would want her side to produce its A game once again. The fact that the top order comprising Shafali Verma, Smriti Mandhana and skipper Harmanpreet is back among runs augers well for the side. Considering that it will be India's first match here and the venue has been tough on the batters, a lot will hinge on the trio and Jemimah Rodrigues, who is due for a big knock. The bowlers, who enjoyed a stellar outings against Pakistan and Sri Lanka will hope to keep their opponents quiet. If Healy misses out, Australia will face the challenge of finding a new captain, wicketkeeper, and opening batter, significantly reshaping their lineup. Beth Mooney will take over the wicket-keeping duties. But vice-captain Tahlia McGrath, who is expected to lead the side against India, insists Australia are ready to call on their squad strength. "The thing about this Australia team is the depth we have. It's time to use it," she said on Friday.

SQUADS:

India: Harmanpreet Kaur (c), Smriti Mandhana, Shafali Verma, Deepti Sharma, Jemimah Rodrigues, Richa Ghosh (wk), Yastika Bhatia, Pooja Vastrakar, Arundhati Reddy, Renuka Singh Thakur, Dayalan Hemalatha, Asha Sobhana, Radha Yadav, Shreyanka Patil, Sajana Sajeevan Australia: Alyssa Healy (c), Darcie Brown, Ash Gardner, Kim Garth, Grace Harris, Alana King, Phoebe Litchfield, Tahlia McGrath (vc), Sophie Molineux, Beth Mooney, Ellyse Perry, Megan Schutt, Annabel Sutherland, Tayla Vlaeminck, Georgia Wareham.

Hero MotoSports becomes World Rally-Raid champion

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Hero MotoSports Team Rally's Ross Branch was crowned the new FIM World Rally-Raid Champion, becoming the first African rider to achieve the feat after successfully completing the final round of the Rallye Du Maroc. The race marked the fifth and final round of the 2024 FIM World Rally-Raid Championship (W2RC). The achievement also marks a milestone for Hero MotoSports, which, in its eighth year of racing, has clinched its first-ever FIM World Championship title, stated a release. The Indian manufacturer becomes only the sixth team in history to win this prestigious title, breaking the dominance of the KTM group (comprising KTM, GasGas, and Husqvarna) that had held the championship streak since 2014. Ross delivered some of his career-best performances throughout the season, securing the highest points in the Championship standings. In January, Ross earned Hero MotoSports their first-ever Dakar podium by finishing second overall at Dakar 2024, which was also the opening round of the W2RC. His momentum continued with a second-place finish at the Abu Dhabi Desert Challenge in February, propelling him to the top of the Championship rankings. He maintained his form with fifth-place finishes at both Rally Raid Portugal (April) and Desafio Ruta 40 in Argentina (June) that helped him hold onto his lead until the final round in Morocco, ultimately securing the coveted World Championship title. Since its inception in 2003, only 10 riders have managed to achieve this feat, and Ross became the 11th rider to do so. Hero MotoSports fielded three riders -- Ross, Nacho Cornejo, and Sebastian Buhler. After a relatively smooth prologue in Marrakech, the rally quickly escalated in difficulty due to unexpected rains and floods, which turned the terrain treacherous and caused several competitors to withdraw due to crashes or injuries. Buhler was among those forced to exit after a crash in Stage 2, leaving Rss and Cornejo to carry the team's hopes. The rally, which spanned nearly 2,500 kilometers across the Sahara Desert, culminated in Mengoub-Bouarfá, near the Algerian border. Despite the harsh conditions, Ross' closest competitor in the championship was forced to withdraw, as he needed to finish the rally to secure the title.

Olympiad gold-medallist Vantika ready for Grandmaster title

PTI ■ LONDON

Chess Olympiad gold-medallist Vantika Agrawal is someone who has learnt the sport the hard way. Hailing from Noida in Uttar Pradesh, she had little chess infrastructure to motivate her to pursue the sport. However, her determined mother, who wanted her children to excel in whatever they pursued, supported Vantika in overcoming numerous challenges and making a mark in a sport dominated by players from South India. Vantika finally helped India achieve its biggest glory in team chess by winning the first-ever Olympiad gold in Budapest recently. Vantika, 21, is now aiming to become a Grandmaster, which could happen as early as next year. But she knows the challenges that lie ahead -- the least being the countless tournaments she will have to play across the world and the monetary burden it will put on her parents. "It has not at all been easy reaching this level, because the culture here (in north India) is all about excelling in academics, and if you want to play chess or any other sport, you need to devote extra time to that," said Vantika, who is a brand ambassador of the ongoing Tech Mahindra Global Chess League here. "I remember that even in school while they were supporting me, nobody really knew about chess. So, when I used to go and tell them about my achievements, they were completely uninterested... I mean, even in Shri Ram College of Commerce, where I completed my B.Com (Hons), they still don't know that I have won the Olympiad gold," says Vantika, whose mother quit her job with a leading multinational to be with her daughter as she pursued success in the sport. For Vantika, the Hangzhou

Asian Games women's team silver medallist last year, chess started out of curiosity to explore more sport after she had dabbled a bit in arts, music, dance, karate and a lot of other things during 'zero' period in school. "I joined karate classes and did a bit of Bharatnatyam, learnt music and vocals. I was seven-and-a-half years old when I developed a liking for chess. I think the first tournament I played I won some prize money. I think prizes, to some extent, became a motivation to continue playing chess. But with coaches hard to come by, she spent 5-6 hours online every day to learn the finer nuances of the game. Luckily, she got a coach in Manish Uniyal, who was willing to invest his time. "I think, I won the Asian Championship U9 title in Delhi in 2011. I kept playing 'Open' tournaments all over India, travelling with my mother to every single state... Odisha, Maharashtra, Mumbai, everywhere." Even as she continued to pursue the sport, there was no way Vantika was willing to compromise on her academics. "I used to play a tournament, come back and the next day, I used to have some exam or something. I remember giving 2-3 unit tests on a single day," she recalled. Balancing chess with academics continued for a good 10 years and she excelled in both, winning several national titles and also scoring big in school and college. "I remember my first medal, a silver in the U11 Nationals. I achieved my first international success by winning the U14 world championship bronze in 2016." While the Covid-19 pandemic brought with it several challenges, Vantika got plenty of time at her Noida residence to sharpen her skills. Soon, she went on to win the mixed team gold in the 2020 Online Chess Olympiad. A consistent show at the Olympiad in Budapest recently added another feather to Vantika's cap when she along with Divya Deshmukh played a pivotal role in guiding India to the gold medal at a time when stalwarts like R Vaishali were struggling. The Olympiad success achieved, Vantika is now completely focused on becoming a Grandmaster. "So, from 2022 till now, I have competed in 28 Open events to earn rating points to become a GM. I've been living out of the suitcase. Every month, I am travelling to some place or the other," says Vantika. "You start getting fatigued... "Playing one tournament after another, while also arranging the finances, is a challenge in itself," says Vantika's mother Sangeeta. But she is willing to invest in her child's future knowing that Vantika has the potential to make it big. "An online coaching class with a foreign grandmaster costs Rs 10,000 an hour. So, if she does 10 hours of coaching every month, it comes to Rs one lakh. But we are not thinking about money right now. We are just trying to focus on her, make her a better player. More than the expenses, it's the travel and the challenges to keep her child motivated in a lonely world of chess, which continuously weigh on Vantika's mother's mind. Vantika knows that and is trying her best to give her mother a present for her sacrifices by becoming a GM. "I think if I keep trying my best, I can even make it (become a GM) by next year. Divya Deshmukh is pretty close to becoming a grandmaster. But, yeah, I will also keep trying and see how things go," Vantika signed off.

Uthappa to lead India in Hong Kong Cricket Sixes

Alcaraz upset by Machac in Shanghai and Sabalenka rallies in Wuhan

AP ■ SHANGHAI

No. 2-ranked Carlos Alcaraz's 12-match winning streak was ended by Tomas Machac 7-6 (5), 7-5 in the Shanghai Masters quarterfinals. It was No. 33 Machac's third four-level quarterfinal, and the Czech player proved more than a match for the four-time major-winning Spaniard as he earned his second win over a top-five opponent this year in two hours. Machac will play top-ranked Jannik Sinner in the semifinals. "I knew that the level of my tennis would be great because I am playing the best right now, for sure," Machac said. "I beat Tommy Paul (in my) last match with an unbelievable performance. With these types of players, I have to play this level otherwise it's 6-2, 6-3 (and) you go home, there is no other option. Alcaraz, who won the China Open in a thriller against Sinner last week, learned of Rafael Nadal's retirement announcement shortly before going on court but said the news about his idol hadn't affected his match. "It is a really difficult thing, really difficult news for everybody, and even tougher for me," Alcaraz said. "He has been my idol since I start playing tennis. I look up to him. Proudly, thanks to him, I really wanted to become a professional tennis player. Losing him, in a certain way, is going to be difficult for us, so I will try to enjoy as much as I can when he's going to play. "But we are going to play in Saudi Arabia, and then Davis Cup, so I'm going to try to enjoy as much as I can the time with him. But, yeah, it is a shame for tennis and for me." Sinner advanced to his fifth ATP Masters semifinal of the season when the Italian swept aside fifth-ranked Daniil Medvedev in straight sets. Sinner started strongly and only faced one break point in his 6-1, 6-4 masterclass over the Russian, who needed treatment on his shoulder from the physio during the second set. "I'm very happy how I handled today and this match," Sinner said. "It felt like he had a bit of shoulder pain and couldn't hit his forehand as well as he wished to.

Hopefully, he can recover as fast as possible, but from my side it was a great match, a great battle, and let's see what I can do now in the semifinals." With Thursday's win, the two-time major winner has leveled his head-to-head series against Medvedev at 7-7, but has won seven of the last eight meetings with the Russian. Second-ranked Aryna Sabalenka rallied from a set down to beat No. 35 Yulia Putintseva 1-6, 6-4, 6-0 to maintain her undefeated record at the Wuhan Open and rise to the top of the Race to the WTA Finals. Sabalenka, the U.S. Open champion, is 14-0 in Wuhan after winning the title on her first appearance in 2018 and defending her crown in 2019 before the tournament took a five-year hiatus from the calendar due to COVID-19 travel restrictions. The three-time major winner started slowly but roared to life during the second set and carried that momentum through the decider to clinch a quarterfinal spot against Beatriz Haddad-Maia or Magdalena Frech. Sabalenka finished with 44 winners to 33 unforced errors, while holding Putintseva to 13 winners and 14 unforced errors. Coco Gauff advanced to the quarterfinals with a 6-4, 6-1 rout of 17th-ranked Marta Kostyuk. It was the fourth-ranked Gauff's eighth consecutive win after the American won the China Open last week. Gauff fired two aces and broke the Ukrainian's serve five times - for the loss of one of her own - as she clinched a one-sided match and extended her lead in their head-to-head series to 3-1. Next for Gauff is No. 45-ranked Magda Linette, who continued her impressive form this week by beating eighth-seeded Daria Kasatkina 6-2, 6-3. "She's a tough opponent," Gauff said of Linette. "We haven't played since (the U.S. Open in 2021). I really don't know what to expect. But just from watching her play, she's been playing a great couple of matches here in Wuhan. "I expect it to be a tough match. She's not an easy opponent." Gauff will be the only American left in the draw after third-ranked Jessica Pegula and four rookie Hailey Baptiste lost. Pegula, the U.S. Open finalist, had a tough afternoon against the 51st-ranked Wang Xinyu of China, who was dominant on serve throughout and clinched a 6-3, 7-5 win. Wang had won their only previous meeting in three sets in the second round at Wimbledon and got off to a fast start here by breaking Pegula twice in the opening set to take the lead. After her first win over a top-10 player in the previous round, Baptiste was routed by Ekaterina Alexandrova 6-1, 6-1. Paris Olympics gold medalist Zheng Qinwen rallied to beat Leylah Fernandez 5-7, 6-3, 6-0 and sixth-ranked Jasmine Paolini defeated Erika Andreeva 6-3, 6-2.

Peru upsets Uruguay 1-0, ends winless run in South American World Cup qualifying

AP ■ LIMA (PERU)

Peru won its first match in South American World Cup qualifying by beating Uruguay 1-0 on Friday. Miguel Araujo scored the only goal with a header in the 88th minute, and Peru moved out of last place in the South American standings. Peru was winless in eight matches in qualifying, but beat Uruguay in a qualifier for the first time since 2017.

The Peruvians rose above last-placed Chile. Uruguay remained third after nine matches, four points behind leader Argentina and one behind second-placed Colombia. The first six teams secure a berth in the 2026 World Cup in North America and Mexico. Uruguay wasted opportunities in the first half, with Federico Valverde, Darwin Nunez and Maximiliano Araujo stopped by Peru goalkeeper Pedro Gallese. Peru took control in the second half. "I honestly feel responsible, due to the players we had in the midfield and in the offense, for such a small proportion of goal chances we created in the second half," Uruguay coach Marcelo Bielsa said. Uruguay next hosts Ecuador on Tuesday, the same day Peru faces fourth-placed Brazil.

CTRL: AN UNRECOGNISED REALITY

CTRL exhibits the life of internet as a cybernetic 'termite', eating you without knowing writes ABHI SINGHAL

The Netflix film, directed by Vikramaditya Motwane, "CTRL" delves into the false depths of the digital age, painting a chilling portrait of a world where social media has become a double-edged sword. The film stars Ananya Panday as Nella Awasthi and Vihaan Samat as Joe Mascarenhas. The cast also includes Devika Vatsa as Bina, Kamakshi Bhat as Shonali and Suchita Trivedi as Nella's mother. The film, a cyber thriller that unfolds like a digital labyrinth, follows the seemingly idealistic lives of Nella Awasthi and Joe Mascarenhas, a popular social media couple whose carefully curated personas mask a brewing storm. The story majorly starts when Nella and Joe break up and Nella uses an AI generated tool to erase Joe from her memories. At the chilly heart of this narrative lies Allen, an AI-generated companion who quickly morphs from a harmless chatbot into a malevolent force. The film's central theme is a stark warning about the warnings of oversharing in the digital realm, where personal data can be weaponised against unsuspecting individuals. Ananya Panday delivers a compelling performance as Nella, a social media influencer who finds herself trapped in a web of her own creation. Her transformation from a carefree influencer to a victim of cyberbullying is a poignant exploration of the consequences of exposing one's life to the digital world. Vihaan Samat, while playing a supporting role, adds depth to the narrative with his portrayal of Joe. The film's greatest strength lies in its ability to resonate with audiences who are deeply connected to social media. The characters' struggles mirror the anxieties and vulnerabilities of many individuals who navigate the complexities of online life. "CTRL", with a varied storyline than others, serves as a cautionary tale, urging viewers to reconsider the extent to which they share their personal information and the potential consequences of doing so. The film's plot is a reminder that the curated realities presented on social media platforms often mask the underlying emptiness and discrepancy between the idealised image and the true nature of individuals. Audience will find consequences of sharing everything online can be disastrous, as the film unfolds. The movie altogether is a worth-watch, with gripping storyline and everyday reality but the climax didn't pick the pace it should have. Its a blunt ending, failing to provide solutions and a worthy end.

In the remote tribal heartland of Chhattisgarh, the ancient art of Dokra, a 4,000-year-old metal-casting technique fights for the survival, writes GYANESHWAR DAYAL

DOKRA AND THE ART OF SURVIVAL

The nondescript district of Kondagaon, about 80 kilometres from Jagdalpur, the capital of Chhattisgarh, is home to a population of around six lakhs and is renowned for its world-famous Dokra art, which is still practiced by a small tribal community of Ghadwa artisans here. As we approach the place we have no idea of their life and livelihood and do not know what we are going to see. All we know is that Dokra is an ancient metal casting that has been around for over 4,000 years. But in these modern times, it is finding tough to survive. It is a dying art form with the people who practice it reluctant to pursue it for the want of work and remuneration. On the way we are told by Navaldeep Thareja, a friendly guy who works with this community and is into documenting these art forms, that Dokra art is one of the oldest known methods of metal casting, using the lost wax technique that has remained unchanged over millennia. The Ghadwa craftsmen, belong to 'Dokra nag' tribe, create detailed sculptures and figurines—depictions of gods, animals, tribal stories, and everyday objects—all shaped with remarkable precision. Each piece, made from an alloy of brass, is characterised by its rustic appeal and distinct style, marked by thin shapes and rich textural patterns. What sets Dokra apart is that no two pieces are ever identical, ensuring that each creation holds unique cultural value. Originating from the tribal communities of Kondagaon, this intricate craft has managed to survive centuries of change but now it is dying out, as the artisans struggle to maintain sustainable livelihood, facing competition from modern industries. Though completely handcrafted and with intricate carvings, it has few takers as it now faces new challenges brought by changing tastes, modern lifestyles, competition from machine-made artifacts, and fading local interest. The biggest challenge is to sell it. It is a handcrafted piece that often takes days to make but may not fetch a good price.

The technique is simple yet demands skill and focus. The mud moulds are made with hands and then wrapped around with mud threads dyed in coaltar mixed with wax, then covered with mud and heated. As wax melts away, the hollow mould is ready to be filled with liquid brass which is then cooled and finished and painted. This needs time and dexterity, skill and passion which many people would not understand. To them it is just an artifact, for Dokras it is life and means of livelihood. Many have switched to other professions. However things have changed as big brands have shown interest in its revival. But now there is a glimmer of hope. 'Jaypore' a well known brand is stepping in to ensure that this craft does not disappear. It is collaborating with artisans to bring this traditional art form to a wider audience, while also ensuring its preservation. They are providing these artisans work and logistic support and the market. Providing the much needed link between the buyer and the seller, they are taking it to metros to the people with a taste for art and deeper pockets. And that has led to a kind of resurgence of Dokra art, though there is a long long way to go. It also sets out to rectify the problems artisans have. While the art form itself is remarkable, Dokra faces significant challenges today. Artisans are often forced to compromise on quality to meet the lower price points demanded by the market, and younger generations are less interested in learning these intricate techniques due to their labour-intensive nature and uncertain economic returns. Shabbir Nag who runs a unit in Kondagaon started it early to support his family and used to get Rs 5 per day gradually he learnt the ropes as it was in his blood; his father and forefathers did this. He gradually worked his way up and the turning point came when he met the Jaypore team which not only gave him training but also orders to supply pieces. But even for the brands it is a challenge as the market for traditional handicrafts has shrunk with the influx of mass-produced goods that can replicate aesthetics at a fraction of the cost and time. Navaldeep Thareja tells me that working with communities is not as simple as it looks. “To work with them you have to understand them, live with them and respect their culture and values. Like all artists, they are creative people and cannot be forced to finish orders like other units” says Navaldeep. He has a point and people are generally shy and reluctant to talk. To get acquainted we talk to them about their craft and rituals like tatoos which we are told are given to girls by their parents as their identity. We share food with them and indulge in small talk. The ice finally breaks and they chat with us and tell us about the issues, challenges they face in transporting their products and difficulties in getting the raw material. The raw materials required for Dokra—brass and wax—have become more expensive, adding further strain to the artisans. Middlemen in the supply chain also absorb much of the revenue, leaving the actual creators with minimal profit margins. Without intervention, this ancient craft runs the risk of fading away into oblivion, like many other traditional art forms. Reflecting on the partnership, Radhika Chhabra, Creative Head, Jaypore, says, “Our collaboration with the Ghadwa artisans has been a remarkable journey of mutual growth. At Jaypore, we take pride in preserving and promoting traditional crafts, while also ensuring that the talented hands behind these creations receive the recognition and support, they deserve.” Its initiative goes beyond just selling the products. It works with artisans to ensure they preserve the authenticity of the craft while adapting to contemporary designs that appeal to modern-day consumers. The shift is subtle but vital—preserving traditional techniques while offering innovative designs that make Dokra more commercially viable. By integrating traditional motifs with modern aesthetics, Jaypore helps bridge the gap between heritage and consumer demand. Through workshops and training programs, they also invest in skill-building for artisans, encouraging younger generations to get involved in the craft. Dokra is more than just a decorative art form. It is a living testament to India's tribal history and a tangible connection to the country's ancient past. Preserving it is essential not just for the sake of cultural continuity but also for sustaining the livelihood of the tribal communities who depend on this craft. The tribal communities in Chhattisgarh do not have many sources of income and with New Forest laws in place, it is even more difficult to sustain themselves. “This is all we know and this is what we want to do” says one of the artisans who works as a caster in the unit. In an era where fast fashion and mass production dominate the marketplace, Dokra offers an antidote: an artisanal, sustainable form of craftsmanship that emphasises individuality and heritage. Beyond the artistic value, Dokra contributes to the global movement towards slow fashion and conscious consumerism. Consumers are becoming more aware of the environmental and social impact of their purchases, and Dokra, with its handmade nature and use of sustainable materials, fits neatly into this narrative.

Moreover, preserving this art form allows for the continued passing down of skills and knowledge through generations. It fosters a sense of pride and identity within the tribal communities of Kondagaon. The loss of such a craft would mean not only the disappearance of an art form but also the erosion of a community's cultural identity. While the newfound interest of big brands in the craft has led to a revival of the craft and poured in the survival money that sustains around 200 families in the village of Shabbir Nag, much more needs to be done to ensure the survival of Dokra art. Greater government support, better access to raw materials, and increased promotion on international platforms could help safeguard this tradition. The establishment of direct-to-consumer models that eliminate intermediaries and provide artisans with higher revenue shares is another potential solution. Initiatives that encourage tourism to regions like Kondagaon, where tourists can witness the craft firsthand, could also contribute to its revival. The preservation of Dokra art is not just about protecting an ancient tradition; it is about creating a sustainable future for the artisans who keep this cultural legacy alive.

India's Single Malt Matures

Indian single malts, once overshadowed by international brands, now account for 53% of total sales, with brands like Crazy Cock from South Seas Distilleries making a splash

BY TEAM AGENDA

The whisky market in India has experienced remarkable growth over the past decade, emerging as one of the largest and most diverse spirits markets in the world. India is now both a significant consumer and a producer of whisky, with a market that spans a wide range of products, from mass-market brands to premium single malts. The size of the whisky market in India is estimated to be around USD 21.13 billion in 2023.

In 2024, the revenue from the whisky market is expected to be USD 17.4 billion. In 2024, the volume of the whisky market is expected to be 3.3 billion litres. It may come as a surprise but the fact remains that India is the second largest export market for Scotch whisky by volume, though Scotch whisky only has a 2% share of the Indian whisky market. Besides, Indian single malts are gaining recognition and competing with international brands. India's single malt whisky market is growing, reaching $18.38 billion in 2023. The market is expected to grow at a CAGR of 5.34% from 2023 to 2027.

In one of the major milestones, Indian single malt whiskies have made history by surpassing renowned international brands in terms of sales. According to the Confederation of Indian Alcoholic Beverage Companies (CIABC), Indian single malts accounted for 53% of total sales in 2023. The entry of brands like Crazy Cock single malt whisky by South Seas Distilleries is another noteworthy development. As the market expands, more players are entering with their premium offerings, positioning India as a key player in the global whisky market.

oldest malt distillery and home to the largest maturation warehouse, has expanded its luxury single malt brand, Crazy Cock, into Haryana. Launched in December 2023, Crazy Cock offers two distinct expressions, 'Rare' and 'Dhua'. Founded in 1984 in Dahanu, Maharashtra, South Seas Distilleries has a rich legacy, supplying luxury malts to top global and Indian brands. The distillery, renowned for its tropical maturation process, houses the largest copper-pot stills in the country and produces some of the oldest luxury malts. With its expansion into the consumer market, the distillery is showcasing its line of premium single malts under the Crazy Cock brand. Rupi Chinoy, Director of South Seas Distilleries, highlights the family's long-standing association with malts: "Our legacy predates most players in the industry. After years of excelling in the B2B space, we are proud to introduce Crazy Cock Single Malts, featuring some of the finest matured malts from our private collection." The distillery's production process is entirely in-house, from mashing to bottling, with each batch matured in rare oak barrels. The term 'Crazy' in 'Crazy Cock' reflects the passion, belief, resilience and determination of the Founder. At a time when Indian single malts were virtually unheard-of, four decades ago, he established one of India's first malt distilleries with the largest copper pot stills that India has till date. Despite numerous challenges, he held a visionary belief that India could produce luxury single malts to rival the world's offerings. The 'cock' or the rooster (also the mascot of the brand) is a symbol of new beginnings and positivity across cultures. It also marks a new chapter for South Seas as the company transitions from supporting the biggest spirit brands to launching their own consumer-facing line. Just as a rooster's crow heralds a new day, Crazy Cock signifies the dawn of South Seas' journey into the luxury single malt consumer market after four decades of mastering distillation and maturation. One of the primary drivers of this growth is the increasing disposable income of the middle class, coupled with a shift in consumer preferences towards premium and high-quality products. As a result, more Indians are gravitating toward higher-end spirits, especially single malts, which were once considered beyond reach. Another key factor is the expanding demographic of young, urban professionals, who are not only drinking more but are also becoming more discerning about their alcohol choices. A whisky-tasting session by South Seas to appreciate their Single Malt Crazy Cock was packed and had young people from across the board. Such events had made a change in understanding of drinking along with the drinking etiquettes gradually seeping in. A whisky tasting session is a refined experience that allows individuals to explore the unique flavours and characteristics of various whiskies. The session often starts with a visual inspection of the whisky's clarity and hue, followed by swirling it in the glass to release its aromas. Taking small sips and savouring the whisky's complexity is encouraged to fully appreciate its texture and finish. Whisky etiquette plays an essential role in enhancing this experience. Key practices include holding the glass by its base to avoid warming the whisky, sipping rather than gulping, and refraining from adding too much ice, which can dilute the flavours. As India's whisky culture matures, the country will likely continue to make its mark not only as one of the largest whisky markets in the world but also as a producer of world-class spirits. The growing demand for single malt whiskies, in particular, signals a shift towards more refined tastes, presenting exciting opportunities for both consumers and producers alike.

CELEBRATING THE HARMONY OF MUSIC AND DANCE

The opening night of KNMA's 2024 Performing Arts Programme featured an enchanting performance of 'Adharam,' where Carnatic vocalist Sudha Raghuraman and Odissi dancer Arushi Mudgal brought together the rich traditions of their art forms in a captivating celebration, writes SAKSHI PRIYA

The inaugural evening of KNMA's 2024 Performing Arts Programme unfolded with an enchanting performance of Adharam Arts Programme brought a breath of fresh air, as two gifted artists, Sudha Raghuraman and Arushi Mudgal, took the stage for an unforgettable performance of Adharam. With the soulful strains of Carnatic music and the graceful flow of Odissi dance, the evening was a celebration of India's deep artistic traditions, lovingly explored and reimagined. Both performers brought their hearts and souls into their art, creating a performance that felt deeply rooted yet refreshingly new. KNMA opened its 2024 season at Kamani Auditorium in New Delhi with the outstanding production of Adharam. This captivating collaboration between Carnatic vocalist Sudha Raghuraman and Odissi dancer Arushi Mudgal highlighted the deep foundations of their respective art forms. The performance marked a brilliant beginning to the season, reinforcing KNMA's commitment to promoting both traditional and contemporary cultural expressions. The evening unfolded as an intricate dialogue between two classical art forms. Raghuraman's mastery of Carnatic music, with its complex ragas and improvisations, perfectly complemented Mudgal's fluid and expressive Odissi movements. The harmony between the two was remarkable, as they explored the delicate interplay between music and movement, revealing the underlying connections that bind these distinct forms. Odissi, a classical dance originating from Odisha, is celebrated for its graceful body movements, expressive gestures and intricate footwork. Mudgal's performance exemplified the elegance and technical mastery for which she is known. Deeply grounded in the traditions of Odissi, her movements were precise, yet imbued with a contemporary sensitivity that brought fresh energy to the performance. The timelessness of the dance form was evident, but through Arushi's interpretation, it felt alive and evolving. On the other hand, Carnatic music, with its emotive ragas and rhythmic complexity, was brought to life by Raghuraman's powerful and evocative voice. Her rendition blended technical brilliance with profound emotional depth, elevating the performance and allowing the audience to feel the richness of the musical tradition she represents. Every note seemed to resonate with history, yet it was presented with an immediacy that felt current and relevant. The uniqueness of Adharam lay in how these two distinct forms came together. The metaphor of the tree, deeply rooted with branches that spread wide, was fitting for the evening. Both artists are firmly grounded in the traditions of their art forms, yet through this collaboration, they expanded the boundaries, exploring new creative possibilities. This balance between preserving tradition and introducing new ideas was the heart of the performance. The decision to commission this production shows its dedication to encouraging artistic innovation while staying true to cultural roots. By bringing together two masters of their crafts, KNMA demonstrated its vision of supporting performances that not only showcase artistic excellence but also inspire new ways of engaging with traditional forms.

As the evening progressed, the connection between music and dance created moments of exceptional beauty. There was a natural unity, where music flowed into the dance and the dance, in turn, responded to the music with grace and intensity. This collaboration created an artistic experience that transcended individual elements, forming something truly memorable. KNMA's 2024 Performing Arts Programme has set a high standard with this opening performance. Adharam was a powerful reminder of the enduring relevance of classical Indian art forms, while also showcasing their potential for innovation. Both Sudha and Arushi exemplified what it means to be guardians of tradition, while being open to new interpretations and creative explorations. The performance of Adharam was a remarkable celebration of the rich traditions of Indian art, skillfully brought to life by both the artists. Their ability to fuse the intricate nuances of Carnatic music with the graceful movements of Odissi created a captivating experience that resonated on multiple levels. It was inspiring to witness how they not only honoured their respective traditions but also opened a dialogue between them, highlighting the beauty that emerges when different art forms come together. This collaboration was a beautiful reminder of how art can create a space where innovation thrives alongside heritage. The evening was a celebration of creativity and passion, leaving the audience with a profound sense of connection to the art and to each other. Adharam offered more than just a display of talent; it was an immersive experience that underscored the power of artistic collaboration. As the audience left the auditorium, they carried with them the memories of a performance that was not only beautiful but also deeply meaningful, an evening that truly brought art to life and reminded everyone of its ability to inspire and uplift.

An Artistic Tribute to Gandhi's Legacy

Pearl Academy invites everyone to experience 'Gandhi Natura Colore,' an inspiring exhibition that beautifully blends art, sustainability and the spirit of Gandhi, connecting hearts and minds across India, Italy and Australia, SAKSHI PRIYA

In a world often clouded by challenges, art emerges as a vibrant source of hope and inspiration. The "Gandhi Natura Colore" exhibition, hosted by Pearl Academy, was a beautiful celebration that captivated audiences with its profound tribute to Mahatma Gandhi's enduring legacy. This unique event brought together international artists to explore themes of peace, sustainability, and the interconnectedness of humanity and nature. Held simultaneously in New Delhi, Rome and Sydney, the exhibition crafted a powerful dialogue around critical global issues, reminding us of the transcendent nature of art in enriching understanding and connection. This collaborative effort brought together creative talents from Pearl Academy in India, DESART2 Associazione Culturale in Italy and DE LUCA 1937 / StudioLab in Australia. The initiative celebrated the beauty of nature, the importance of colour and the principles of sustainable living that Gandhi espoused. The concept this year focused on reconnecting with nature, with artists in Rome creating pigments from vegetable and fruit waste. In India, students engaged in a unique process where they interviewed hundreds of individuals to determine the first word that came to mind when thinking of Gandhi. They then utilised AI to generate concepts, connecting back to nature in the age of technology. This innovative approach showcased how traditional crafts can be revived, inspiring artisans to explore new possibilities in their work. From the moment one enters the exhibition, the beauty of the artworks is striking. Each piece reflects the artists' creativity and passion, capturing Gandhi's ideals of Ahimsa (non-violence), Satya (truth) and Sarvodaya (welfare of all). The thoughtfully arranged displays invite viewers to immerse themselves in the rich narratives each artwork conveys, creating an atmosphere alive with inspiration and purpose. One standout piece that captivated many was "Ahimsa". The vibrant pigments on natural fibre canvas vividly reflect Gandhi's belief that a nation's greatness is judged by how it treats animals. The portrayal of the alarming decline of bee populations serves as a stunning reminder of the urgent need for environmental stewardship. The delicate brushwork and colour choices drew viewers in, allowing them to appreciate not only the technical skill involved but also the emotional weight of the subject matter.

Another remarkable work was "Hope". This exquisite textile artwork, made from khadi voile, beautifully symbolises Gandhi's inner peace and strength during his imprisonment. The swirling patterns and soft shades of blue evoke a sense of serenity, while subtle hints of saffron and green connect the piece to India's cultural heritage. The intricate textures resembling ripples on a calm pond further enhance its visual appeal, inviting viewers to reflect on the concept of hope as a quiet yet powerful force. The textile artwork "The Light Within" is another piece that left a lasting impression. This work showcases a profound connection to both artistic inspiration and cultural heritage. Inspired by Rothko, this patchwork artwork employs hand-dyed, hand-spun fabrics to create layers of luminous colour. The way the colours blend and radiate light mesmerises onlookers, highlighting the complexity and beauty of Gandhi's teachings. The meticulous stitching and thoughtful arrangement of fabric pieces add depth to the composition, encouraging viewers to contemplate the themes of illumination and transcendence. A particularly exciting highlight was the INTERNATIONAL LAB EXPERIENCE, a collaboration between Pearl Academy and the Beijing Institute of Fashion Technology (BIFT). Visitors were enchanted by the students' innovative exploration of Kantha embroidery, creating a fabric collection that harmoniously blends Indian and Chinese folklore. The intricate designs and vibrant colours reflect a shared cultural narrative, showcasing the beauty of collaboration and the power of art to bridge divides. "Gandhi Natura Colore" was not just an exhibition; it was an enriching experience that engaged the audience on multiple levels. The stunning artworks, each a unique expression of creativity and thoughtfulness, sparked conversations about contemporary global challenges, urging viewers to reflect on their role in promoting sustainability and compassion in a world that often feels disconnected. This beautiful art exhibition invites all to embrace Gandhi's principles of peace and sustainability. The artworks, from "Ahimsa" addressing the treatment of animals to "Hope" embodying resilience, collectively honour the spirit of Gandhi. Visitors are inspired and motivated to contribute to a more sustainable and compassionate world, reminding us that art holds the power to ignite change and deepen our connections with one another and the environment.

THE TUNING FORK

C V Srikanth

Spiritually, a state of going beyond the worldly attachments moha. Focus on more sublime, transcendental matters. However, we face a sense of disillusionment and aversion, periodically in our life time - like a loss a very dear one, pained by getting cheated

Samanyasa - The Mantra for inner Peace, Spiritual growth and Purpose

In a world chasing 'success' - a seldom recognised yardstick (or do we?) but believe is outside of us. What we seek is within us. Our ancient scriptures define some wonderful concepts that help achieve self-realization with senses of discipline. Sadhana Chatushtaya or Samanyasa is one such example of a profound model - the path of study of scriptures, self-realisation, humility or surrender to the Universal consciousness, and detachment. Traditionally, Samanyasa is associated with the renunciation to connect with higher spiritual goals. In the modern context the relevance outlines personal holistic development, emotional & psychological wellness, and the societal ecosystem. In the Vedic tradition, it is often discussed in the context of the sannyasa (the third of the four ashramas) order or renunciation - relinquishment of all forms of rigid adherence to worldly duties and surrendering to One. The four elements of Samanyasa are Viveka (Discerning abilities), Vairagya (Dispassion or Detachment), Shat-Sampatti (Spiritual goals and fulfilments) and Mumukshutva (Desire for Liberation)

Viveka - the awareness of correct understanding and discriminatory intelligence through our applied learnings and wisdom - an imperative quality for navigating through life. It helps identify what distracts us from our goals and pursue our purpose. Build the right attitude. Discern the cause and effect. Cultivate the capacity to listen to the inner voice. Foster the faith. Recognising our shortcomings to evolve to a better version of ourselves. This leads us to Vairagya. After segregating the distractions, detach from the unessential and cultivate disengagement from the dispensable. An indifference to things not serving our goals. Prioritisation driven by our goals. Building the right temperament to accomplish. Spiritually, a state of going beyond the worldly attachments moha. Focus on more sublime, transcendental matters. However, we face a sense of disillusionment and aversion, periodically in our life time - like a loss a very dear one, pained by getting cheated. This is negative Vairagya and short lived. True Vairagya is about making it consequential - refining our mind to resonate at an elevated level. As Krishna says ...

*uddhared ātmanātmānaṁ nātmanān avasādayet
ātmaiva hyātmano bandhur ātmaiva ripur ātmanah* Bh Gita 6.5
Elevate yourself through the power of your mind. Do not degrade yourself. For the mind can be the friend and also the enemy of the self.

- Shat Sampat* - the 6 spiritual qualities to be developed.
- Shama - Regulation of the mind to bring clarity and peace
 - Dama - Training the senses for disciplined progress
 - Uparati - Withdrawal within the Self (different from Vairagya) - removing unwanted thoughts
 - Titiksha - State of Fulfilment Contentment. Building capacity to handle adversity
 - Shraddha - Devotion Faith Reverence. A sense of quiet confidence to optimize oneself
 - Samadhana - Focus on the actions oriented with no doubts.

Essentials, not built in a day. A Sadhana - a meaningful spiritual journey with a commitment
The last of the Samanyasa is Mumukshutva - the deep yearning for liberation - a beginning of a different journey. To become in Unison with the Single Consciousness and relieved of the cycles of sufferings.

In today's context, these qualities build tenacity and purpose. To be effective, they have to work cohesively. Essentially, as a check and balance. They help in pivotal areas like Mindful living, Stress management, Holistic Wellness, Ethics, and perhaps most importantly Minimalism and simplicity leading to happiness and beyond. This timeless wisdom integrates the principles of Living that Universal Knowledge for an overall sustained personality development. Paradoxically, we stay busy, but often disconnected, losing clarity of purpose and objective. One common thread is Commitment, Intent and Integrity of Desire - a thread that weaves us to our self, our Universe and the Supreme Consciousness.
