

INDIA SHALL IDENTIFY, TRACK AND PUNISH EVERY TERRORIST

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ New Delhi/Madhubani (Bihar)

Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Thursday sent out a fierce message that perpetrators of Pahalgam terror attack will be pursued "to the ends of the earth" and promised to "identify, track and punish every terrorist and their backers".

In his first reaction after the dastardly attack, which left 26 dead on Tuesday, Modi also vowed that terrorists and conspirators behind the attack will get a punishment beyond their imagination.

Addressing a public rally in Madhubani, Bihar, Modi suddenly switched from Hindi to English to reiterate his message. It was an apparent move to address the global community about India's intentions and resolve to bring the killers of Pahalgam to justice.

In his first speech after the attack in Pahalgam, the Prime Minister vowed to punish terrorists behind the strike and said

India's spirit will never be broken by terrorism.

Modi then spoke in English and said, "Friends, today from the soil of Bihar, I say to the whole world India will identify, track, and punish every terrorist and their backers. We will pursue them to the ends of the earth. India's spirit will never be broken by terrorism. Terrorism will not go unpunished."

In the stern message, he said, "Every effort will be made to ensure that justice is done. The entire nation is firm in this resolve. Everyone who believes in humanity is with us. I thank the people of various countries and their leaders who have stood with us in these times."

In a message to Pakistan without naming the country, Modi said he will state it categorically that the terrorists who carried out the attack and those who hatched the conspiracy, they will be punished beyond their imagination. "Punishment will definitely be served." The prime minister said the willpower of 140 crore

Indians will break the back of patrons of terrorism.

Paying condolences to the victims and their families, he said citizens across the country are in mourning over the brutal manner in which terrorists killed 26 innocent civilians in Kashmir on April 22. The nation stands with their families, he said. Modi, other leaders on the dais and the crowd observed silence to pay homage to the victims of the attack at the beginning of the prime minister's speech.

He said people lost their sons, brothers and husbands and noted that the victims belong to different parts of India, be it Bengal, Karnataka, Maharashtra, Gujarat, Odisha and Bihar. "Our sorrow and anger are same from Kargil to Kaniyakumari," he said. Peace and security are the most necessary conditions for fast development, he added.

Earlier, Bihar Chief Minister Nitish Kumar condemned the terror attack at Pahalgam and told the prime minister that the entire nation was united against terrorism. Panchayati Raj Minister Rajiv Ranjan Singh said the entire nation had belief in Modi's strength and were confident he would give a befitting reply to the perpetrators of terror at an appropriate time. These strong assertions came a day after India on Wednesday downgraded diplomatic ties with Pakistan and announced a raft of measures, including expulsion of Pakistani military attaches, suspension of the Indus Water Treaty of 1960 and immediate shutting down of the Attari land-transit post in view of the cross-border links to the horrific Pahalgam terror attack.

These decisions were taken in Cabinet Committee on Security (CCS) meeting chaired by Prime Minister. He had cut short his visit to Saudi Arabia and returned to New Delhi on Wednesday. External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar, National Security Advisor (NSA) Ajit Doval and Foreign Secretary Vikram Misri briefed him about the situation at the airport.

Army Commando killed in Jammu and Kashmir

MOHIT KANDHARI ■ Jammu

An elite Para Commando of the Indian Army was 'killed in action' after an encounter broke out during an ongoing search operation in the forest area of Dudu Basantgarh in Udhampur district of Jammu region on Thursday.

A joint team of security forces were combing the area based on the receipt of information about the presence of terrorists in the area.

After the brutal massacre of tourists in Pahalgam, in which 26 tourists were killed and 17 others were wounded on Tuesday, this is the third encounter in the last 24 hours between terrorists and security forces in Jammu and Kashmir.

The Indian Army on Wednesday foiled an infiltration bid in the Uri Nala area of Baramulla, killing two terrorists amid an intense firefight.

The second encounter broke out after terrorists opened fire on security personnel during a cordon and search operation in the Tangmarg area of Kulgam district of south Kashmir.

It is believed the forces were looking for the same group of terrorists who were earlier spotted in the Joffer area of Ramnagar tehsil on April 9.

"Based on specific intelligence, a joint operation with Jammu and Kashmir Police was launched today in the Basantgarh area of Udhampur," the White Knight Corps said on X. Contact was established, and a fierce firefight ensued, it said.

"One of our bravehearts sustained grievous injuries in the initial exchange and later succumbed despite best medical efforts," the Army said.

The deceased soldier has been identified as Havaladar Jhantu Ali Sheikh of 6 Para of the Special Forces.

"GOC White Knight Corps and all ranks salute braveheart Havaladar Jhantu Ali Shaikh of 6 PARA SE, who made the supreme sacrifice during a counter-terror operation," the Army said on X.

The Army said his indomitable courage and the valour of his team will never be forgotten. "We stand in solidarity with the bereaved family in this moment of grief," the Army added. The operation was still underway when the last reports came in from the spot, they added.

Four suspects were also picked up from the area for questioning.

In the last year, the area of Basantgarh has witnessed several incidents of terrorist violence.

Raksha Mantri holds All Party meet

DEEPAK KUMAR JHA ■ New Delhi

The crucial All Party meeting convened by Raksha Mantri Rajnath Singh saw all the political parties including the Opposition extending full support to the Narendra Modi Government in its fight against terrorism. Sources said the Government admitted to security lapses in the recent Pahalgam terror attack, which killed 26 people and injured many others.

The Government briefed leaders of various political parties on the Pahalgam terror attack and heard their views at the All Party meeting. At the beginning of the meeting, a moment of silence was observed for the victims of the attack.

Defence Minister Rajnath Singh initiated the discussion at the meeting. Intelligence Bureau Director Tapan Deka gave all leaders a 20-minute briefing on the attack and how it happened. Later, he answered the questions of several leaders and Home Minister Amit Shah joined him in answering the queries. External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar and Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman were also present at the meeting from the government's side.

During the closed door meeting which lasted for about 46 minutes, several Opposition parties asked questions about the apparent failure of security protocols. "Where were the security forces? Where was the Central Reserve Police Force?" several leaders asked, according to sources.

In response, the Government reportedly said local authorities did not inform security agencies before opening the Baisaran area near Pahalgam in Anantnag district, which traditionally remains restricted until the Amarnath Yatra in June. Concerns were also raised about the delayed response to the incident. According to sources, Government officials explained that the site was a 45-minute uphill walk and that no standard operating procedure (SOP) was in place to handle such situations.

Leaders across party lines assured their support to the Government in taking decisive action against terrorism and destroying terror camps, even as they flagged security lapses in Pahalgam.

Sources said Government claimed it was taking all measures to ensure security. It noted that the attack was aimed at vitiating the atmosphere at a time when the economy was on the upswing and tourism was booming in Jammu and Kashmir.

Parliamentary Affairs Minister Kiren Rijiju said everyone agreed that India should fight terror united and all parties said that they are with the Government in this fight. All political parties have given this message and their leaders have said in one voice that whatever step the Government takes, they will support it.

India mourns its dead: From North to South, East to West

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Jaipur/Ahmedabad/Balasure

Flames leapt from funeral pyres, suppressed sobs and anguished cries mingled with the sound of mantras and the fragrance of flowers and incense lingered. It was the final adieu for the families of those killed in Pahalgam and also for a country in mourning with them.

On Thursday, the last rites of several of the 26 gunned down by terrorists in Baisaran in the upper reaches of Pahalgam were held - from Odisha to Gujarat and from Rajasthan to Karnataka. A snapshot as it were of the prime holiday destination that Kashmir has been for people across the country and indication of the belief that all was well in the volatile Valley.

The dead in Tuesday's terror strike were all men, 26 lives of promise that ended in a hail of bullets. And back in their homes, families grieved for the sons, fathers and husbands they had lost, some stoic and others inconsolable.

A hush fell over many villages and towns as funeral corteges wound their way to crematoriums and shops downed shutters.

In Ishani village in Odisha's Balasure district, nine-year-old Tanuj Kumar Satpathy lit the pyre of his father Prashant.

It was just two days ago that the family - 41-year-old Prashant, an employee of the Central Institute of Petrochemicals Engineering & Technology, his wife Priya Darshini and Tanuj - were in Pahalgam.

A distraught Priya Darshini did not allow anyone to touch the body of her husband, hugging it till she crumpled in a faint.

Hundreds of people gathered in Ishani to pay their respects to Prashant, lining up on both sides of the road as the funeral procession proceeded to the crematorium a kilometre away. Chief Minister Mohan Charan Majhi and Balasure MP Pratap Chandra Sarangi were among those who accompanied Tanuj from his home to the crematorium.

Amid chants of "Jai Hind" and "Prashant Satpathy Amar Rahe", young Tanuj lit the pyre, a sight that seared the consciousness of everyone who was watching, whether in Ishani or on their mobile and television screens. The Satpathy family's story found tragic echo in many other parts of the country.

In Jaipur, the flower-bedecked bier of 33-year-old Neeraj Udhwani made its way down a quiet street with mourners walking silently behind and lining the streets.

Rajasthan deputy CM Diya Kumari pays tribute to Neeraj Udhwani, who was killed in the Pahalgam terror attack

The chartered accountant had come from Dubai to attend a wedding and on an impulse decided to holiday in Kashmir. As his elder brother Kishore lit the funeral pyre at Moksh Dham in Jhalana, his wife Ayushi fought back her tears. He was shot dead right in front of her eyes.

The funeral was attended by large crowds. Political lines blurred as Rajasthan Governor Haribhau Bagade, Chief Minister Bhajanlal Sharma, Union minister Gajendra Singh Shekhawat as well as state Congress chief Govind Singh Dotasra among others visited Udhwani's Model

Town residence. A woman in the crowd spoke out loudly. "This is your government's failure. What is the point of deploying security here now?" In response, Shekhawat was seen standing with folded hands, acknowledging the grief and anger of the people.

Gujarat saw three funerals - Yatish Parmar and his son Smit from Bhavnagar city and Shailesh Kalathiya, a resident of Surat. Everywhere, local residents and political bigwigs joined the families, an outpouring of grief and anger that united them all. Gujarat Chief Minister Bhupendra Patel, who reached Bhavnagar on Wednesday night, paid floral tributes to Yatish and Smit Parmar at their residence in the Kaliyabid area before the bodies were taken for cremation on Thursday morning.

In Surat, Union minister CR Paatil along with Gujarat Minister of State for Home Harsh Sanghani were among the dignitaries who paid floral tributes to Kalathiya.

And in Hathipur village in Uttar Pradesh's Kanpur district, 31-year-old businessman Shubham Dwivedi was given a tearful sendoff with full state honours.

IED recovered in forests during Anti-Naxal Operation

PNS : JAMSHEDPUR

In a significant breakthrough in the ongoing fight against Naxal extremism, a 1.5 kg Improvised Explosive Device (IED) was recovered and safely defused by security forces during a coordinated operation in the forest areas under Goikera Police Station limits in West Singhbhum district. The IED, likely planted by Maoist insurgents to target security personnel, was detected near the forested stretches of Esarikhamda and Kharkichu—regions known for insurgent activities.

Senior officials report that the initiative is being guided by intelligence inputs indicating the presence and strategic movements of CPI (Maoist) cadres under the leadership of Filmlis Besra, a prominent Maoist commander. The objective is to reassert control in areas vulnerable to extremist infiltration and to prevent the resurgence of insurgent networks in remote forest zones. The IED was located during a search operation carried out by specially trained units. It was skillfully defused by the bomb disposal squad, with the support of CRPF and local police teams. Security forces stated that the early detection and disposal of the device prevented a potential ambush, highlighting the alertness and coordination among the personnel.

Officials involved in the operation emphasized the importance of proactive measures in neutralizing threats before they escalate. "Recovering an IED of this magnitude is a clear reminder that the threat is real and active. However, our coordinated response demonstrates the preparedness of our forces," said a senior police official on the ground. The ongoing combing operation is part of a broader, sustained effort to stabilize the region and ensure the safety of local residents. Villages in and around the operation zones are being sensitized and patrolled regularly to prevent the spread of fear and misinformation. Authorities have confirmed that the anti-Naxal operation will continue in the coming days, with additional surveillance, foot patrols, and intelligence-gathering planned across other parts of the region. The administration has also urged local communities to cooperate with the forces and report any suspicious activity.

NPU's chronic shortage of manpower to continue

PNS : DALTONGANJ

Nilamber Pitamber university got a setback to its drive to engage manpower from the outsourcing agency. The university had floated a tender under two bid system technical and financial ones on 1.4.2025. It had invited bidding from the experienced, reputed and registered agencies/firms/companies for 'supply of manpower at the university and all its constituent colleges'. The NPU is struggling with an acute shortage of fourth grade staff. There are 235 sanctioned posts of the fourth grade staff. As against 235 sanctioned posts, only 28 are working. A fleet of 207 sanctioned posts lie vacant here. However one outsourcing agency identified as Cobra

Industrial Security Force (CoISF) meanwhile reached the High Court of Jharkhand at Ranchi against the floating of the tender dated 1.4.2025 in regard to supply of manpower. The High Court issued a notice to the counsel of the Nilamber Pitamber university stating 'there shall be the stay of all further proceedings pursuant to the tender floated. The Pioneer has a copy of this notice of the HC. The HC has issued notice in a writ petition 4034/2025. The notice bears the date as 17.4.25. The outsourcing agency CoISF has made two officials of the university - the registrar and CDC (convener of college development council) respondents in this writ petition. The petitioner here the CoISF has contended that the university had awarded the work of supplying man power to this university to it. An agreement to this effect between the university and this outsourcing agency was reached on 25.1.25. The agreement so reached was valid for one year prima facie. The petitioner agency further contended that the university in the meanwhile floated a tender without issuing 'work order' to it. The Jharkhand High Court took cognizance of the writ petition and issued the notice to the counsel of the university. Again this case is now listed on 26.6.25. This correspondent spoke to the Vice Chancellor of the Nilamber Pitamber university Dr Prof Dinesh Kumar Singh today.

The VC said "There has come a stay of all further proceedings pursuant to the tender floated by us for the supply of manpower." "The matter is listed on 26.6.25. I will speak to our counsel to know more about it." added the VC. "The university will file counter affidavit. The High Court has asked for the counter affidavit. University counsel will do this" told the VC. On being asked as to when this petitioner outsourcing agency had an agreement with the university but was not given 'work order' by the university, then how come this outsourcing agency was cold shelved and a new tender was floated to which the VC said "Let me find out. Any more comments at this point of time will be premature."

GRACE IN MOTION

BY RACHNA TIWARI

Before the flashbulbs pop, before the music swells and the lights strike the runway, there is a stillness. A breath. A flicker of confidence. And then — you walk. If you're an aspiring model, let me say this: the runway isn't just a strip of fabric on the ground. It's a stage for your story. The camera lens isn't just clicking — it's searching for authenticity. And your body, your posture, your presence — that's your language. Let's learn how to speak it fluently. The Runway Walk: It's a Dance of Confidence No one's born with a perfect walk — we train, we stumble, we learn. A good runway walk is a balance between elegance and intention. Your feet land heel to toe, your hips sway naturally, and your gaze is steady — looking just past the audience, as if you know something they don't. When I first started, I'd practice walking in front of a mirror every morning. Heels on. Shoulders back. Chin up. I'd walk with a song playing in my head — something that made me feel powerful. The music helped set a rhythm that became second nature. Try this: Lay down a straight line of tape on your floor — your DIY runway. Walk it daily, slow and steady. Record yourself and study your movements — arms, stride, head position. Walk like you're telling the world, "I'm here. And remember, don't overthink. Feel. Confidence isn't loud — it's silent, magnetic. Posing: Capturing Moments, Not Freezing in Them Modeling for the camera isn't about striking a pose and holding it like a statue. It's about movement — even in stillness. A good pose captures a feeling, a flicker of emotion, a breath caught mid-air. When you pose, think about what you're wearing and what story it tells. Are you a warrior in avant-garde couture? A dreamer in soft pastels? Let your body reflect that mood. Use your hands — touch your face, your neck, your waist. Create angles. Break symmetry. Daily drill: Stand in front of a mirror or set your phone on timer mode. Choose a theme — power, elegance, vulnerability. Move slowly between 4-5 poses, adjusting your face and hands slightly each time. Study what works, what feels natural, and what looks too forced. A pose is never just a shape — it's an emotion. When you connect with the lens emotionally, the photo comes alive. Body Language: Speak Without Words Before you even open your mouth, your body has already introduced you. The way you enter a room, hold a pause, or tilt your head — it all speaks volumes. On set, your energy affects everyone. I've seen entire teams light up when a model walks in with calm, grounded confidence. And I've also seen tension spread like static when someone enters stiff and closed-off. Here's a technique I swear by: Before every show or shoot, I find a quiet corner and stand in a power pose — feet apart, hands on hips, chin lifted. Two minutes. Just breathing. It's a small ritual, but it sets the tone. Body language also means listening — with your eyes, your posture, your attentiveness. Great models know how to read the room, mirror the mood, and adapt without losing themselves. Final Thoughts The walk, the pose, the presence — they're not separate skills. They're parts of the same whole. And they can all be learned, refined, and elevated. You don't need to be perfect. You need to be aware. Aware of your body, your rhythm, your impact. Modeling is an art, but also a discipline. So train like an athlete. Move like a dancer. Express like a poet. And most importantly — feel like yourself. Every great model you admire started the same way: one foot in front of the other, unsure but determined. Your journey starts now. Walk tall.

Crackdown ordered on illegal ultrasound clinics

PNS : JAMSHEDPUR

In a strong administrative push to enforce the Pre-Conception and Pre-Natal Diagnostic Techniques (PCPNDT) Act and curb illegal practices related to sex determination, the East Singhbhum district administration has issued firm directives for surprise inspections of ultrasound centres. The directive was part of a key meeting held at the Collectorate Auditorium on the instructions of District Magistrate-cum-Deputy Commissioner Ananya Mittal. The meeting, chaired by Additional District Magistrate (Law and Order) Aniket Sachan, saw the presence of SDM Dhalbhum Mrs. Shatabdi Majumdar, Civil Surgeon Dr. Sahir Pal, Dr. Ranjit Panda, and concerned officials from both Dhalbhum and Ghatsiala subdivisions. The committee reviewed a total of 20 proposals concerning ultrasound centres, including new applications, renewals, and modifications.

After thorough examination, the committee approved the establishment of three new ultrasound centres, renewal of one licence, and name changes for four centres. Proposals with errors or incomplete documentation were returned, with instructions to re-submit them in the next meeting after rectification. Taking serious note of unregistered or unauthorised ultrasound clinics operating within the district, Sachan issued a clear directive for immediate identification and closure of such centres. He emphasized that any clinic found operating without proper authorization will be sealed without delay and legal action will follow as per the provisions of the PCPNDT Act. "The Act's core objective is to prohibit sex selection before or after conception and to prevent the misuse of medical technology for prenatal sex determination. Any violation is a punishable offence," said Sachan, reiterating the administration's commitment to improving the district's sex ratio, which remains a key concern. In addition to enforcement, the meeting also focused on public awareness and accountability. All registered ultrasound centres have been mandated to prominently display signage that reads: "Sex determination is a punishable offence under the law. Do not indulge in or encourage such practices." Officials were also directed to initiate awareness campaigns at both the block and district levels, targeting both healthcare providers and the general public. These campaigns aim to sensitize communities about the legal, social, and ethical implications of sex-selective practices. Both Sub-Divisional Officers (SDOs) were entrusted with the responsibility of monitoring implementation in their respective jurisdictions. Regular reviews and field inspections are expected to follow, ensuring that the objectives of the PCPNDT Act are not only met on paper but enforced in practice. The meeting concluded with a strong message: the administration will adopt a zero-tolerance approach to any form of non-compliance, and all stakeholders—including private clinics, healthcare professionals, and administrative officers—must act in coordinated efforts to uphold the law and protect the rights of the girl child.

We will pursue terrorists to the ends of the Earth, says Modi in poll-bound Bihar

ALOK MOHIT : MADHUBANI

In a stern warning to the perpetrators of the recent Pahalgam terror attack, Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Thursday declared "a war on terror" and vowed to "identify, track and punish every terrorist and their backers". Addressing an event on the National Panchayat Day in Bihar's Madhubani district, Modi condemned the April 22 massacre of 25 Indians and one Nepalese tourist and declared that the perpetrators of the Pahalgam attack would be brought to justice. "India will not rest until every terrorist and their backers are punished," he said. "The enemies of the country have dared to attack the soul of India," Modi said, adding that the country's spirit remained unbroken by such acts of terror. Modi, who mostly speaks in Hindi even during his foreign tours, made a rare switch to English to ensure that his strong words, first since the Pahalgam terrorist attack, were heard beyond Indian territory. "Today from the soil of Bihar I say to the whole world that India will identify, track and punish every terrorist and their backers. We will pursue them to the ends of the Earth. They will be punished beyond their imagination," said Modi in English. "India's spirit will never be broken by terrorism. Terrorism will not go unpunished. Every effort will be made to ensure that justice is done. The entire nation is firm in this resolve," he added. Stressing that terrorism posed a significant threat to India's development and stability, Modi said his government had a zero-tolerance policy toward terrorist activities and organisations targeting Indian interests.

The entire country shared the pain of the bereaved families, he said. "Some have lost their sons, some brothers and some a spouse. Some of them spoke Bengali, some Kannada, some Marathi, some Odiya, some Gujarati and some were from Bihar. Today, from Kargil to Kanyakumari, their sorrow is the sorrow of the entire nation," he added. "Everyone who believes in humanity is with us. I thank people and leaders of various countries who have stood with us," Modi said, as he acknowledged the reaction of world leaders after the attack on Tuesday. On the occasion, Modi gifted poll-bound Bihar development projects worth Rs 13,480 crore. He also flagged off the country's second and Bihar's first 'Namo Bharat Express' train, which will run between Patna and Jaynagar. The train was inaugurated virtually and is being considered a major achievement for Bihar. The new train will operate six days a week, enhancing the travel experience between Jaynagar and Patna. The high-speed train will pass through major stations, including Darbhanga, Samastipur, Barauni, and Mokama. The Prime Minister also unveiled a Rs1,173-crore power project and laid the foundation stone for an LPG bottling plant in Gopalganj, to be built at a cost of Rs 340 crore. All senior state NDA leaders were present on the occasion at the dais. Addressing the gathering, Bihar Chief Minister Nitish Kumar condemned the Pahalgam terror attack and said the entire country was united in the fight against terrorism. He again reaffirmed his political alignment, saying he would remain in the NDA "forever."

Neither Hindus, nor Muslims, humanity killed in Pahalgam: JMM

PNS : RANCHI

State's ruling party Jharkhand Mukti Morcha (JMM) has strongly condemned the terrorist attack in Pahalgam, Jammu and Kashmir, calling it 'murder of humanity'. Senior JMM leader Vinod Kumar Pandey issued a press statement saying that in this incident, it was not Hindus or Muslims but humanity that was murdered. The tourists who were killed in Pahalgam included not only Hindus but also Muslims, Christians and people of different religions.

He called it very unfortunate and a matter of shame for humanity. Pandey said that no amount of condemnation of this type of massacre would be enough. Demanding strict action against this attack from the central government, he said that the Government of India should take such steps so that in future no terrorist can dare to look towards Kashmir. The senior JMM leader described Pahalgam as a safe and popular place for tourists from the country and the world. He also raised the question that when this place is so sensitive and popular, then the absence of central security forces there at the time of the attack raises serious questions on the security arrangements for tourists.

Pandey said that there is an atmosphere of grief and anger across the country after this attack. He said that religion cannot be the answer to this lapse in security, rather it is an administrative failure. He demanded Union Home Minister Amit Shah to resign on moral grounds. The senior JMM leader also alleged that the central government did not learn any lessons from incidents like Pulwama. If lessons had been learned, then innocent tourists would not have been massacred like this in Pahalgam.

Pandey told that after the attack, local Kashmiris - taxi drivers, hotel operators and horsemen - helped the tourists and made free arrangements to take them home safely. On the other hand, heavy recovery was made in the flight fare from Delhi, due to which people are hurt. The senior JMM leader demanded the central government to take strict action against Pakistan-backed terrorism and answer the questions about the lapse in the security arrangements for tourists.

He also underscored that panchayats have strengthened social participation, remarking that Bihar was the first state in the country to provide 50 per cent reservation for women in panchayats.

Pahalgam terror attack is direct assault on values of our republic: Congress

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ New Delhi

The Congress on Thursday said the "cowardly" Pahalgam attack has been masterminded by Pakistan and is a direct assault on the "values of our republic", even as it accused the BJP of exploiting the tragedy to promote discord and polarisation at a time when unity is most needed.

The Congress Working Committee (CWC), the highest decision-making body of the party, adopted a resolution expressing its deepest shock and condemnation of the heinous terrorist attack, which claimed the lives of 26 innocent tourists and left more than 20 others grievously injured. "The Congress Working Committee extends its deepest condolences to the bereaved families. It stands with them wholeheartedly in this moment of profound anguish."

"This cowardly and calculated act of terror, masterminded by Pakistan, is a direct assault on the values of our republic. The deliberate targeting of Hindus was done to inflame passions across the country," the party's resolution said.

"We appeal for calm in the face of this grave provocation and reaffirm our collective strength in the face of adversity. The CWC appeals for calm and reaffirms the Indian National Congress' longstanding resolve to combat cross-border terrorism with determination and unity," the resolution said.

Reading out the resolution at a press conference, party general secretary K C Venugopal, along with Jairam Ramesh and Pawan Khera, said the CWC also paid tributes to the local ponywalas and tourist guides, one of whom was killed while trying to protect tourists to uphold the idea of India.

Our primary question is only on security lapses and intelligence failure, which are evident. We are expecting an answer from the Government

— KC VENUGOPAL, GENERAL SECRETARY

The CWC said in its resolution that the massacre has rightly drawn condemnation from all political parties in Jammu and Kashmir and from a wide cross-section of its citizens.

"However, it is shocking that the BJP is exploiting this grave tragedy through official and proxy social media platforms to sow further discord, mistrust, polarisation and division at a time when unity and solidarity are most needed," it said. Venugopal said the Congress, being a responsible opposition, asks questions on the security and intelligence failure that led to the terror attack.

"Our primary question is only on security lapses and intelligence failure, which are evident. We are expecting an answer from the government, let the answer come, and then we will respond," he said. Venugopal also announced that the Congress will hold candle marches across the country on April 25 to pay homage to the victims of the attack and protest against terrorist activities.

The CWC noted that Pahalgam is known to be a heavily guarded area, secured by a three-tier security arrangement and, "It is imperative that a comprehensive analysis is conducted into the intelligence failures and security lapses that enabled such an attack in a Union Territory — an area directly under the purview of the Union Home Ministry."

"These questions must be raised in the larger public interest. This is the only way justice can truly be seen to be served for the families whose lives have been so brutally devastated," the CWC resolution said.

Noting that the Amarnath Yatra is set to commence shortly and lakhs of pilgrims from across India will participate in the annual journey, the CWC said their safety must be treated as a national priority. "Robust, transparent, and proactive security arrangements must be put in place without delay. The safety of pilgrims, as well as the livelihoods of the people of Jammu and Kashmir, many of whom depend on tourism, must be protected with full sincerity and seriousness," the resolution adopted by the CWC said.

Pahalgam attack similar to Hamas strike: Israel envoy

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ New Delhi

Israel's Ambassador to India, Reuven Azar, on Thursday compared the terrorist attack in Pahalgam to the October 7, 2023, Hamas strike on Israel, citing similarities in their targeting of civilians and warning of growing coordination among terrorist groups.

Drawing parallels to the Hamas-led assault that killed over 1,100 people in Israel, Azar pointed to the deliberate targeting of unarmed civilians in both cases.

His remarks came after terrorists struck at a prime tourist location in Pahalgam in south Kashmir on Tuesday, killing at least 26 civilians, mostly tourists, and injuring several others.

"Unfortunately, we must confess, these terrorist groups are inspiring each other. There are similarities between the Pahalgam attack and what happened on October 7 (2023) in Israel. Innocent tourists were enjoying their vacation in Pahalgam, while in Israel, people were celebrating a music festival," Azar said.

He also linked the Pahalgam attack's timing to the recent visits by Hamas leaders to Pakistan Occupied Kashmir (POK), where they reportedly met with Jaish-e-Muhammed operatives and a few others, suggesting possible coordination.

The Israeli ambassador also praised Prime Minister Narendra Modi's response to the Pahalgam attack, particularly his speech at a gathering in Madhubani, Bihar, on Thursday where he vowed to "hunt down" those responsible for the killings.

"I'm very encouraged by not only the strong condemnation but also the strict measures taken by the Indian government," Azar told PTI Videos, referring to India's diplomatic moves, including the suspension of the Indus Water Treaty of 1960 with Pakistan and immediate shutting down of the Attari land-transit post in view of the cross-border links to the attack in Pahalgam.

Azar also urged the global community to expose the state sponsors of terrorism, emphasising that the problem extends much beyond individual terrorists. "Terrorism has to be exposed because terrorists enjoy a series of deeds by countries that supply money, intelligence inputs and weapons (to them), which is unacceptable," he said.

Calling for stronger international coordination to curb terrorism, the Israeli diplomat said, "I feel all countries should put restrictions on the capabilities of companies to supply services to the extremist elements."

"Countering terrorism requires not just military action but also efforts to combat incitement. The terrorists are not just using violence. They are inciting violence," he added.

AIIMS Raipur performs its first swap kidney transplant

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ New Delhi

The AIIMS Raipur has successfully performed its first swap kidney transplant, making it the first among the newer AIIMS institutions and the first government hospital in Chhattisgarh to carry out this complex and life-saving procedure. The Union Health ministry said swap kidney transplant, which is also known as Kidney Paired Transplant (KPT), can lead to a 15 per cent increase in the number of transplants.

In a swap transplant, a patient with renal failure who has a willing living donor but is unable to receive the kidney due to an incompatible blood group or the presence of HLA antibodies can still undergo a transplant by exchanging donors with another incompatible pair. Through this arrangement, both recipients receive compatible kidneys, resulting in successful transplants for both pairs.

In the case at AIIMS Raipur, two male End Stage Renal Disease patients, aged 39 and 41 from Bilaspur, had been on dialysis for three years, the ministry said in a statement. Both were advised to undergo kidney transplantation. Their respective wives came forward as living donors. However, due to blood group incompatibility direct donation was not possible.

Delhi HC orders attachment of TMC MP Saket Gokhale salary

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ New Delhi

The Delhi High Court on Thursday ordered the attachment of TMC MP Saket Gokhale's salary in a defamation case filed by former diplomat Lakshmi Puri. Justice Manmeet Pritam Singh Arora observed Gokhale was previously directed to apologise to the former assistant secretary general of the United Nations and pay her ₹50 lakh in damages.

However, the court said, neither did he deposit the fine amount nor offer a reasonable explanation.

"Accordingly, issue warrant of attachment as section 60(i) with respect to salary of the respondent which is stated to be ₹1.90 lakh. The salary shall remain attached until ₹50 lakh is deposited with the court," the court said.

Section 60 of the Code of Civil Procedure stipulates in matters of execution of a decree, the salary of a judgement-debtor can be attached to the extent of the first one thousand rupees and two-third of the remainder.

The court passed the order while dealing with Puri's plea seeking execution of the decree in her favour.

Though Gokhale's plea in relation to a "recall" of the judgement against him was pending before another bench, the court said there was no stay on the present proceedings.

Puri moved the high court in 2021, alleging Gokhale tarnished her good-will and reputation by making reckless and false allegations about her financial affairs in the context of an apartment that she owned in Geneva.

In the July 1, 2024 verdict, aside from directing publication of an apology and payment of ₹50 lakh as damages, the high court restrained Gokhale from publishing any more content on any social media or electronic platform concerning his imputation against Puri.

NHAI starts construction work of six foot over bridges

PARVESH SHARMA ■ Gurugram

The National Highways Authority of India (NHAI) has started the construction work of six foot over bridges (FOBs) on the Delhi-Jaipur National Highway (NH-48). These FOBs will be ready by August in Gurugram and Rewari districts, officials said.

In Gurugram, these FOBs will be built in Rampura, the NSG Campus in Manesar, and the village of Binola.

In Rewari, these FOBs will be built in villages Rathivas, Malpura, and Jaisingh Kheda. Jaisingh Kheda is situated on the border of Haryana and Rajasthan.

NHAI allotted the work of construction of new FOBs on the Delhi-Jaipur Highway to a company in February this year.

This company has been assigned the work of repairing two old FOBs. It will cost around ₹12 crore. Apart from this, the FOBs built in village Sidhrwali and village Kharkhada will be repaired.

NHAI has an FOB near Signature Tower on the Delhi-Jaipur Highway. It is in bad condition due to lack of maintenance. The machine has been stolen from its escalator. The escalator is in bad condition. Because of this, people have to cross this highway on foot, due to which there is a fear of road accidents.

On the other hand, the Gurugram Metropolitan Development Authority (GMDA) will construct FOBs near Raheja Mall and CD Chowk on the Gurugram-Sohna Highway, besides Old Delhi Road and Sheela Mata Road.

The construction of these FOBs will cost around ₹16 crore. Lifts and escalators will be constructed in these FOBs. Due to this, people will not face any problem in crossing these roads.

GMDA has decided the location of these FOBs. Construction will start in the next one or two months. On the other hand, GMDA has claimed that the construction work of the FOB under construction in village Narsinghpur will be completed soon.

"The tender for construction of six FOBs on the Delhi-Jaipur Highway has been allotted. Work has started under this. All these FOBs will be constructed within the month of August. Apart from this, two FOBs will also be repaired," Prakash Tiwari, Manager, NHAI, said.

CRPF launches biggest anti-Naxal operations in Chattisgarh, three killed

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ New Delhi/Raipur

In one of the biggest operations, more than 10,000 security personnel apart from back up units are engaged in fire-fight with naxals in jungles of Chattisgarh bordering Telangana and three female naxals have, so far, died. Security teams from both the states besides Central Reserve Police Force (CRPF) are engaged in the ongoing action.

It is the biggest offensive launched this year to neutralise most-wanted Maoist Hidma, officials said Thursday. The operation launched from the Bijapur district of Chhattisgarh to Karregutta hills in Mulugu district across the border in Telangana has clocked over 60 hours after it was launched on Monday with close to 5,000 troops apart from backup units. The forces and Maoists were exchanging fire till the fore noon of Thursday and it is expected to continue, they said.

The assault is led by the 210th battalion of CRPF's CoBRA units and has teams from the Chhattisgarh police, its special task force (STF), DRG, some regular

CRPF units and Telangana Police, they said. Around 9:30 am on Thursday, three bodies of female Maoists along with an equal number of weapons has been seized. The assault is led by the 210th battalion of CRPF's CoBRA units and has teams from the Chhattisgarh police, its Special Task Force (STF), DRG, some regular CRPF units and Telangana Police

Four helicopters, two drone squadrons comprising 20 big and small unmanned aerial vehicles (UAVs) in each along with satellite imagery and maps provided by the NTRO have been deployed to track Hidma, the top commander of the PLGA battalion no 1, the officer said. Inputs suggested that Hidma was seen around a bunker built in the Karregutta Hills along with an armed squad and the operation was launched on this information, a second officer said.

This is the biggest operation launched by any of the security agencies in or around Chhattisgarh this year, he said.

The hill area is dotted with many improvised explosive devices (IEDs) and the forces are still on the job, the officer said. The offensive is part of the Union government's declaration to end Left Wing Extremism (LWE) from the country by March, 2026. Chhattisgarh and its border areas remain the "last bastion" of this task, according to officials.

The operation, one of biggest counter-insurgency actions launched in Bastar region, involved around 10,000 security personnel belonging to different units, including the District Reserve Guard (DRG), Bastar Fighters, Special Task Force (STF), all units of the state police, as well as the Central Reserve Police Force (CRPF) and its elite Commando Battalions for Resolute Action (CoBRA), he said. CARACAL from UAE has showcased some of the finest weapons, with their flagship model, the CSR 50 anti-material sniper rifle, taking center stage — an asset that could significantly enhance Indian Army, CAPF and State police operations. With an effective range of 2 km and beyond, it offers long-range precision essential for border security, counter-terrorism missions, and high-threat engagements. Maintaining its distinction as the lightest in its category, weighing just 10 kg without accessories, the rifle ensures greater mobility and operational efficiency for soldiers in rugged terrains.

This year, the rifle has seen impressive advancements, including advanced ergonomics and reduced recoil, enhancing stability for Indian sharpshooters during prolonged operations.

Akhilesh slams airfare surge post-Pahalgam terror attack

BISWAJEET BANERJEE ■ Lucknow

Samajwadi Party (SP) chief Akhilesh Yadav on Thursday condemned the recent terror attack in Pahalgam, Jammu and Kashmir, while also launching a scathing attack on the sharp spike in airfares to and from Srinagar in its aftermath. Calling the incident a national tragedy, Akhilesh expressed full support for strong government action against terrorism but criticised what he described as opportunistic profiteering and intelligence failure.

Addressing a press conference at the SP headquarters in Lucknow, the former Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister said, "We are with the government on this issue. The central government must take strict and effective action against the perpetrators of this act of terror. But the BJP cannot absolve itself of responsibility. If earlier lessons had been learned, this tragedy might have been prevented."

Akhilesh Yadav condemned the hike in airfares from Srinagar following the attack, calling it "inhuman, shameful and a form of extortion."

He accused airline operators of exploiting a national crisis for profit and questioned the government's silence on the issue. "How can the government remain mute when airlines are charging exorbitant prices during a time of crisis? This reflects not just apathy but collusion. Taxes from these ticket prices go to the government—so why is there no regulation?" he asked.

Reports indicate that ticket prices from Srinagar surged dramatically within 24 hours of the attack, leaving many stranded tourists and pilgrims unable to return home. Some fares were reportedly double or triple the usual rates.

Akhilesh urged the Civil Aviation Ministry to step in immediately and implement a mechanism to regulate airfare during emergencies. "There must be clear rules to prevent profiteering in times of national distress. The silence of the authorities only emboldens such behaviour," he added. On national security, the SP chief maintained a bipartisan stance, urging unity across political lines. "Terrorists have no religion. Their only aim is to spread fear. The country is angry, and this is a time to stand together, not play politics," he said.

However, he did not shy away from criticising the BJP for prioritising propaganda over preparedness. "While the BJP spends crores on publicity, our security systems remain underfunded. It is time to stop the slogans and start focusing on real action," he said. Reaffirming his opposition to the Agniveer recruitment scheme, Akhilesh said, "The youth of this country reject Agniveer. They want permanent jobs, not temporary assignments. The government should reconsider this scheme for the sake of national security." He supported the five recent decisions taken by the Centre against Pakistan in response to terror activity, stating, "We back those moves, but the government must go further. Tougher decisions are necessary."

Expressing dismay over attempts to politicise the tragedy, Akhilesh alleged that "even in this moment of grief, BJP leaders are circulating animated posters for political gain. Airline profiteering, social media propaganda—these are signs of a party looking for opportunity in disaster."

Calling the Pahalgam attack a failure of the intelligence system, he said, "This was not just a single lapse. It reflects a deeper, structural failure. Why did not previous attacks prompt stronger preventive action?"

He concluded with a call for lasting, impactful reforms. "We all want terrorism to be wiped out from its roots. We had hopes when demonetisation happened, when Article 370 was removed—but those hopes must be matched with decisive action, not just announcements."

Assam CM slams Rahul, warns against caste-based politics

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Hojai

Assam Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma on Thursday alleged Congress leader Rahul Gandhi was trying to divide Hindus on the basis of castes, but the terrorists who perpetrated the Pahalgam attack just wanted to know the religion of the victims.

Addressing a panchayat poll rally in Hojai, Sarma said there was no room for caste-based politics in the country at the moment.

"Terrorists earlier never asked about the religious identities of their targets, but in Pahalgam, victims were asked about their faith. When they replied that they were Hindus, the men were shot dead right in front of their wives," he said.

"Is it a crime to be a Hindu? Hindus have been in India for 5,000 years and will remain here. Such acts are not acceptable," he asserted.

Maintaining that people of all religions were safe under the BJP government, Sarma urged everyone to unite in the fight against terrorism.

"Hindus and Muslims have to fight terrorism together, have to work together," he said. Hitting out at Gandhi, the CM claimed that he was trying to divide the Hindus into OBCs, SCs and STs.

"But the terrorists did not ask the caste, they asked only whether the target was a Hindu or not. There is no room for caste politics. 'Ek rahenge toh safe rahenge' (we will be safe if we stay united)," he said, calling upon Hindus to remain united.

"We have to be united and punish countries like Pakistan and Bangladesh," he added.

Sarma claimed that some people living in Assam were indirectly supporting Pakistan through posts on social media and warned that they would not be spared, however important they may be.

He also spoke of a Congress MP from the state who "stayed in Pakistan" for 15 days without informing the government.

"The Congress has three MPs in Assam. One of them had crossed into Pakistan through the Atari border and stayed there for 15 days without informing the government. We have all the evidence," he claimed.

"We won't forgive such people and will take stringent action against them," he said.

Appealing to the people to support the BJP and its allies in the panchayat polls, Sarma claimed that the state has been witnessing a prolonged phase of peace since 2021.

He alleged that it was only killings, blasts, agitations, corruption, communal riots, and insurgency under the Congress governments, which believed in the 'panchamrit' of "lungi, dhoti, suta (yarn), blanket and mosquito net" as means of appeasement.

"But with the BJP coming to power here in 2016, peace has been restored and the state is witnessing rapid strides in growth," Sarma, who heads the second BJP-led government in the state, said.

The CM said the ration card, which was once a document for "Bangladeshis to fend off police", is now linked to welfare schemes.

He affirmed the government's commitment to ensure that the schemes benefit the most deprived section, stating that more assistance in the form of bringing down of LPG cylinder prices and power tariff will be announced later this year.

US based Hindu outfit asks PM to declare India as Hindu Rashtra

KUMAR CHELLAPPAN ■ Kochi

Close on the heels of Tuesday's massacre of 28 Hindus at Pahalgam in Kashmir by the assassins of Lashkar-e-Toiba, the United States based Global Heritage Hindu Foundation (GHHF), an umbrella organisation of all Hindu outfits, has asked Prime Minister Narendra Modi to declare India as Hindu Rashtra.

In a release issued on Thursday, the GHHF said the entire Hindu community has been shocked, surprised, stunned, and astonished to read about the ghastly massacre of tourists in Kashmir's Pahalgam.

"Muslim terrorists shot and killed at least 26 tourists and injured nearly 40 tourists on April 22nd in Pahalgam, Kashmir.

Intelligence sources and eyewitnesses revealed that the terrorists inquired about the religion of the tourists before shooting them dead.

"They even looked at their ID cards and killed them if they happened to be Hindus," said the GHHF release.

It further states that since Independence, Hindus have become sacrificial goats in the hands of terrorists.

"Government after government have been allowing Hindu haters to rampage through the scenic Himalayan region.

"Terrorists took advantage of liberal media and Leftist parties, and have been hitting, attacking, raping, killing Hindus regularly.

These inhuman, insane, merciless attacks have claimed tens of thousands of lives over more than seven decades," said the GHHF which has been abstaining from making any kind of controversial demands all these years.

3,400 missing women, girls in MP with no end in sight

GIRISH SHARMA ■ Bhopal

Eighteen days have passed since a six-year-old girl disappeared from under a bridge in Bhopal's Koh-e-Fiza area, and the Madhya Pradesh Police still have no answers.

This is not just a case of one missing child—it's a glaring indictment of a crumbling law and order system in a state that prides itself on going "high-tech."

If a child can vanish from the capital city, just miles from the Chief Minister's residence and top police offices, what hope is there for families in the remaining 54 districts? The harsh reality is: there is none.

According to data from the Police Headquarters, over 3,400 women and girls have gone missing in Madhya Pradesh in the last three years alone.

That's nearly 100 a month. And these are just the reported cases. Behind every statistic lies a devastated family, a broken future, and a police force that seems either unwilling or incapable of acting.

The much-hyped 'Operation Muskan', re-announced with fanfare last year by DGP Kailash Makwana, was supposed to rescue and rehabilitate missing girls.

In truth, the initiative has existed since 2021—with little to no results to show. It has become another bureaucratic buzzword, useful only in press releases, not on the ground where it matters.

Congress Media Department Chairman Mukesh Nayak minced no words in his criticism of the government and police.

"The Madhya Pradesh police lack both the resources and the will to act. It's one of the most corrupt forces in the country.

Officers only move when there's money involved. If there's no bribe, there's no investigation," Nayak told The Pioneer.

The current case exposes how hollow the system truly is. The missing girl's mother, a homeless woman with eight children, suspects a relative's involvement.

Yet the police have done little beyond scanning a few CCTV clips and making vague statements. No arrests. No progress. No urgency.

Worse still, basic policing infrastructure remains broken. CCTV networks are patchy, rapid-response teams are missing in action, and coordination between units is almost non-existent. This is not just negligence—it's state-sanctioned apathy.

The disconnect between government claims and ground realities has never been wider. While ministers sit in air-conditioned offices, families of missing girls wander from one police station to another, begging for action.

This isn't a law and order issue anymore. It's a humanitarian crisis.

If the administration cannot protect the most vulnerable—children sleeping under bridges, women walking home from work—then what legitimacy does it have left? How long will the government continue to hide behind numbers and announcements?

It's time for the people of Madhya Pradesh to demand more than promises. They deserve safety, justice, and accountability. Because until every missing girl is found, and every guilty officer held accountable, no campaign, no slogan, and no speech will matter.

Nitish condemns terror, reaffirms NDA alliance loyalty

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Madhubani (Bihar)

Bihar Chief Minister Nitish Kumar on Thursday condemned the Pahalgam attack, emphasising that the entire country stands united in the fight against terrorism.

Speaking at a government programme to mark the National Panchayati Raj Day in the presence of Prime Minister Narendra Modi, Kumar also reaffirmed his political alignment, saying, "I made a mistake in the past, but I will stay with the NDA forever."

"The attack at Pahalgam left the entire nation devastated. It was a heinous act. We all condemn it. I express my condolences to the bereaved families. We are with you," and the entire country is united in the fight against terrorism."

Terrorists struck at a prime tourist location in Pahalgam in south Kashmir on Tuesday, killing at least 26 people, mostly tourists, and injuring several others.

Stating that he had "made mistakes" in the past by joining hands with the Opposition, the Bihar CM said, "I will stay with NDA forever. I went 'idhar udhar aur Gadbadi Hua' in the past. But now, I am with the NDA and will remain with the alliance forever."

"We formed the government in 2005. The previous state government had done nothing for panchayats. It was in a poor state. "When we came to power, we amended the Bihar Panchayat Raj Act in 2006, which established the gram panchayat at the village level, panchayat samiti at the block level, and zila parishad at the district level," the CM said.

"We also introduced 50 per cent reservation for women in panchayats and municipalities. The previous government took no steps to improve the condition of women in the state.

"So far, our government has constructed 1,639 panchayat bhavans across Bihar for local bodies, and construction of the remaining bhavans will be completed before the upcoming elections later this year," he added.

The JD(U) supremo further said, "We have been working for the overall development of the state for the last 20 years — in sectors like education, transport, roads, electricity and water. When we assumed office in 2005, the state budget was just ₹38,000 crore. For the financial year 2025-26, the budget has increased to ₹3.18 lakh crore."

He said this year alone, the state government approved 430 new schemes worth ₹50,000 crore for various districts.

Kumar added that the establishment of the Makhana Board in Bihar, opening of Greenfield Airports, and expansion of IIT Patna are also progressing with the help of the Centre.

The CM said he requested the PM to inaugurate the Khelo India Youth Games

2025, scheduled to be held in Patna from May 4. "It is a matter of great happiness that this major event is being hosted in Bihar," he said.

Bihar is set to host the seventh edition of Khelo India Youth Games 2025 from May 4 to 15.

The games will be organised in various cities including Patna, Gaya, Rajgir, Begusarai and Bhagalpur.

The CM and Union Sports Minister Mansukh Mandaviya recently unveiled the mascot and logo of Khelo India Youth Games 2025.

UP CM pays tribute to martyr Shubham Dwivedi

BISWAJEET BANERJEE ■ Kanpur

The mortal remains of Shubham Dwivedi, the young soldier from Kanpur who was killed in the recent terror attack in Pahalgam, Jammu and Kashmir, were consigned to flames with full state honours on Thursday. The atmosphere was heavy with grief and anger as thousands gathered to pay their final respects. Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath visited Shubham's residence earlier in the day and met his grieving family members, including his wife Aishwarya, who broke down while recounting the harrowing details of the incident. CM Yogi offered condolences and assured the family that strictest action would be taken against those responsible.

"Have faith in the government. Terrorism will be wiped out," he said. Yogi got emotional and when he came back from Dwivedi's residence he was seen wiping eyes.

The Chief Minister condemned the Pahalgam attack, calling it "a cruel, cowardly and inhuman act." He added, "Shubham had been married just two months ago. The entire nation mourns his loss. This barbaric act has shaken not only India but the world." CM Yogi reaffirmed that the government's zero-tolerance policy towards terrorism would be enforced strictly. He said that both Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Home Minister Amit Shah had taken tough decisions during the recent CCS (Cabinet Committee on Security) meeting. As Shubham's body was taken for the last rites, the streets of Kanpur overflowed with people—students, traders, government officials, and ordinary citizens—all standing shoulder to shoulder in a powerful show of unity and respect. Chants of "Shaheed Shubham Amar Rahein" filled the air as the funeral procession passed through the city. The pyre was lit in the presence of his family, local officials, and a sea of mourners. Emotions ran high as Shubham's father, with folded hands, pleaded with the Chief Minister to ensure that the perpetrators receive the harshest punishment. "Make sure no other family has to go through this pain," he said. Shubham's untimely death has struck a deep chord across Kanpur and beyond. The district administration, honouring public sentiments, ensured that the final rites were conducted with full state honours.

Leaders from all walks of life have condemned the attack and expressed solidarity with the family. CM Yogi concluded by saying, "We are with the family. The double-engine government will not compromise on national security. The sacrifice of our brave son will not go in vain."

Assam MLA held for defending Pakistan after J and K attack

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ Guwahati

Assam's opposition AIUDF MLA Aminul Islam was arrested on Thursday on sedition charges for allegedly defending Pakistan and its complicity in the Pahalgam terror attack, Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma said.

The AIUDF has distanced itself from the legislator's comments, stating that the views were his own and not of the party. "We have seen a video where the MLA is defending Pakistan and its complicity in the attack. I had instructed the police to take action and accordingly, the DGP has informed me that he has been arrested," Sarma said at a press conference here. Islam was arrested from his residence in Nagaon district.

"The MLA will be produced before a court and we will take the case to its logical conclusion," he added. Twenty-six people, mostly tourists, were killed in a terror attack in Jammu and Kashmir's Pahalgam on Tuesday.

Sarma said no attempt to directly or indirectly support Pakistan through any means, including on social media, will be tolerated and the police have strict directions to act against such persons immediately. The chief minister, in a post on

X, affirmed the state government's strong action against anyone defending Pakistan.

"Assam will take the strongest possible action against anyone who dares to defend—directly or indirectly—the horrific, Pakistan-sponsored terror attack in Pahalgam. "Let it be known clearly: those who attempt to justify, normalise, or dilute the brutal murder of innocent civilians are not exercising freedom of expression—they are standing against the soul of India," he said.

"Assam Police, also in a post on social media, said the AIUDF legislator has been arrested for a "misleading and instigating statement, which went viral and had the potential to create an adverse situation". A case has been registered at Nagaon Sadar police station under various sections of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita. Meanwhile, AIUDF president Badruddin Ajmal said the views expressed by Islam are his personal opinion.

"The comments made by Aminul Islam are unfortunate. This is the time to stand with our government. Terrorists have no religion. These terrorists are giving Islam a bad name," Ajmal said. He maintained that the views expressed by Islam in the video did not reflect the party's stand, and the AIUDF already condemned the attack.

Pope Francis: A Pope of the people

As the world awaits his funeral, it is time for the Catholic world to reflect on his legacy

The death of Pope Francis on Easter Monday marked the end of an era in the Roman Catholic Church, one shaped by humility, joy, and profound efforts to bridge divides within the Church and beyond. As his body now lies in state in the grand sanctuary of St Peter's Basilica, a sacred calm has descended over Vatican City — a moment not just of mourning, but of gratitude. From the moment of his election in 2013, Jorge Mario Bergoglio, the first pope from the Americas and the first Jesuit to hold the papacy, signalled a change in tone and style. Eschewing the traditional papal apartment, he chose instead to live in the modest Casa Santa Marta, a Vatican guesthouse.

His decision was more than symbolic — it reflected his core message: that the Church should be close to the people, particularly the poor and marginalised. Pope Francis was a pope of paradoxes: deeply traditional in doctrine, yet boldly progressive in tone. He upheld the tenets of Catholic teaching while urging a shift in how they are communicated and lived. His papacy was not defined by rigid dogma but by mercy, dialogue, and pastoral care. He asked Catholics to be a "field hospital" for a wounded world.

Central to Francis' leadership was his theology of joy. He often warned against a Christianity devoid of joy — likening such faith to being "pickled in vinegar." This joy was not naive optimism but a resilient faith rooted in love and the presence of God amid human suffering. He brought this spirit to bear on some of the most contentious issues facing the Church. Whether addressing climate change, global poverty, refugee crises, or the plight of the LGBTQ+ community, Francis consistently emphasised compassion over condemnation. His encyclical Laudato Si' marked a historic moment in linking Catholic teaching with environmental stewardship, while his overtures toward greater inclusion of LGBTQ+ Catholics signalled a departure from past approaches marked by silence or rejection.

As thousands queue to bid farewell in person, and millions more watch the funeral unfold across screens worldwide, the atmosphere in Rome is less one of despair and more of sacred remembrance. In the words of one Vatican observer, it is as if a beloved elder has finished their life's journey — leaving behind not just grief, but gratitude. The city has responded with reverence.

Images of the Pope flash across digital billboards with a simple message: "Grazie." His final resting place, Santa Maria Maggiore — a church he visited before and after nearly every papal journey — underscores his identity as a pilgrim pope, always walking alongside the faithful. The death of Pope Francis also opens a new chapter. Behind closed doors, the College of Cardinals has begun its quiet conversations about the future of the Church.

As tradition dictates, white smoke will soon signal their decision to the world. But even as attention turns to the question of succession, the legacy of Pope Francis will remain etched into the conscience of the Church. He has set a precedent not easily ignored: that the papacy is not about power, but service; not about separation from the world, but deep engagement with it. For Catholics around the globe, his death is not just a loss — it is a call to carry forward the values he championed: humility, mercy, joy, and justice. Pope Francis changed the papacy. Now, the Church must discern how to build on what he began. Pope Francis leaves behind a Church forever marked by his humility, compassion, and unwavering call to joy. His papacy re-centred the mission of the Catholic Church on mercy, inclusion, and care for the vulnerable, urging believers to live their faith in action, not just words.

As the world bids farewell, his legacy offers both comfort and challenge, a reminder that faith must engage the realities of the world with love.

The conclave will choose his successor, but his influence will endure, not only in Church doctrine but in the hearts of millions who found hope and dignity through his leadership.

Soft power in retreat

For decades, the US won hearts and minds not with tanks or fighter jets, but with scholarships, foreign aid, immigration opportunities, and cultural exchange. But Donald Trump has upended the soul of America Soft power is the ability to get what you want through attraction rather than coercion or payment — Joseph Nye.

In diplomacy, not every war is fought with guns, and not every ally is won with treaties. Some of the most lasting alliances, perceptions, and influences are built in classrooms, libraries, hospitals, and open-minded immigration desks. For decades, America cultivated a compelling global image not just through its military might but through an unparalleled soft power apparatus — university scholarships, fellowships like Fulbright, technological partnerships, and student exchange programmes. But under Trump's leadership, this carefully crafted image took a sharp U-turn. His decisions to defund Ivy League institutions, restrict prestigious fellowships, cut down on foreign aid, and slam doors on immigrants have not just changed policies — they've dented America's soul in the eyes of the world.

From the end of World War II to the close of the 20th century, the US balanced hard power with soft persuasion.

After Pearl Harbour and the end of the Monroe Doctrine's inward-looking policy, America stepped decisively into the global theatre. Initially, it flexed its military muscle — from Hiroshima to the Cold War nuclear stand-offs — but soon realised that tanks and warships couldn't alone win hearts. The next American invasion came with books, food aid, hospital care, and university scholarships. PL-480 food assistance, USAID, cultural exchanges, NASA tie-ups, and the brain-drain corridor became tools of soft power that made America an aspirational ideal, especially for the Global South.

But Trump's reign of ultra-nationalism, ultra-capitalism, and ultra-conservatism diluted this global goodwill. His administration's decision to roll back funding to elite educational institutions — many of which had been incubators of international leadership and liberal thought — sent shockwaves through academic diplomacy. Places like Harvard, MIT, and Stanford weren't just American educational brands; they were world laboratories of innovation, cross-cultural dialogue, and diplomacy by proxy. For many young minds across Africa, Asia, and Latin America, getting into an Ivy League school was akin to getting a golden ticket — not just to education, but to enlightenment.

When Trump questioned the utility of such universities and threatened to cut their funds, he wasn't just aiming at liberal professors or elite academia; he was hacking away at the roots of America's global intellectual tree. The Fulbright Programme, which since 1946 had created a global network of US-educated thinkers, diplomats, artists, and professionals, saw restrictions and stagnation under Trump's regime. This wasn't just about budget lines; it was about breaking bridges that had taken decades to build.

The shift wasn't limited to academia. Trump's "America First" translated into America alone. US aid wasn't just charity — it was strategy. Whether it was reconstructing post-war Europe via the Marshall Plan, aiding countries during natural disasters, or investing in public health abroad, American dollars often bought American goodwill. Cutting this lifeline left a vacuum often filled by rival powers, notably China.

Perhaps the most damaging was the policy on immigration and visas. By clamping down on H1-B visas, Trump stifled the inflow of skilled professionals — especially from India. This move hurt not only the American tech industry but also tarnished its reputation as a land that rewards merit. India, a nation that sent scores of doctors, engineers, and nurses to serve in the US found itself at the receiving end of arbitrary bans and changing visa goalposts. Indian nurses in particular, known globally for their compassion and professionalism, were once the unsung heroes of the American healthcare system. They became unintended victims of a policy that seemed more guided by xenophobic rhetoric than economic sense.

It's ironic. America gained its comparative cost advantage and global dominance in various sectors precisely because it welcomed the world's best minds. The openness to foreign students and workers was not just humanitarian — it was deeply pragmatic. When America opened its doors, it got the world's top scientists, engineers, teachers, and healthcare professionals. This influx didn't just boost the economy; it exported American values when these individuals returned home as brand ambassadors of the American dream. Trump's decision to erect barriers where bridges once stood was not just bad economics — it was terrible diplomacy.

Soft power, unlike hard power, does not rely on fear, force, or finance alone. It thrives on attraction. A country that welcomes, educates, and employs foreigners becomes a hub of admiration. The world's image of America, diverse, democratic, and dynamic — was always more powerful than any military base. That image is cracking under the weight of Trump's authoritarian tendencies wrapped in an elected regime. The global message is clear: this is not the America we used to know.

The consequences are already visible. International student applications to American universities have dropped. Countries that once looked to America for inspiration are now turning elsewhere. China's Confucius Institutes, European Union scholarships, and India's neighbourhood outreach are stepping into the vacuum left by the US. And this matters. In a world of multipolar influence, losing moral and cultural leadership is as fatal as losing a war. The tragedy of Trump's approach is that it reverts America to a pre-globalisation, fortress-like nation. This stands in sharp contrast to the post-Pearl Harbour awakening that pushed America into internationalism. Back then, it learned that isolationism was not just impractical but dangerous. Trump's policies drag the country back into an atmosphere of division — racially, religiously, and ideologically. His emphasis on Christian identity, his anti-immigration posture, and his trade protectionism all add up to an authoritarian flavour, coated in electoral legitimacy.

When nations drift towards ultra-nationalism and away from global collaboration, they don't just lose allies — they lose identity. The America that helped rebuild Japan and Germany, which welcomed Einstein and later Sundar Pichai, is being replaced by an America that shuts doors, silences debate, and shuns difference. In the end, Trump's war is not just on liberals or foreigners or aid budgets. It's a war on America's most valuable diplomatic currency — its image. And once that image is broken, no amount of tanks or tariffs can fix it.

New moon Race: Private sector takes the lead

SECOND Opinion

BY RAJNEESH BHANDARI

This year will be a landmark year for lunar exploration, with three moon landings scheduled in quick succession that demonstrate humanity's renewed enchantment with our closest celestial neighbour. This week marks the first of these touchdowns, with Firefly Aerospace's Blue Ghost successfully landing on the lunar surface in Mare Crisium. This milestone is followed by plans for Japan's M2/Resilience mission and Intuitive Machines' IM-2 mission before June. These landings signal a new era of lunar exploration driven by private-sector innovation, international collaboration, and an ambitious space programme.

Firefly Aerospace's Blue Ghost lunar lander has achieved a soft landing on Mare Crisium, a vast basaltic plain on the moon's near side. An upright and stable landing makes Firefly the first private company to put a spacecraft on the moon without crashing or falling over — a feat where only five countries have been successful: Russia, the US, China, India, and Japan. Launched on January 15 aboard a SpaceX Falcon 9, this mission is part of NASA's Commercial Lunar Payload Services (CLPS) programme, which partners with private companies to deliver scientific payloads to the moon. This landing marks Firefly's first lunar mission and a significant win for the private sector, as the lander touched down just after lunar dawn, giving it roughly 14 Earth days of sunlight to operate. This mission is notable for being the first US lunar landing of 2025 and for carrying 10 NASA-sponsored experiments alongside commercial payloads. It will test satellite navigation and radiation-resistant computers, which are critical for developing resilient technology for lunar habitation. Japan's M2/Resilience mission, led by space and scheduled for May/June, will deploy the RESILIENCE lander and the TENACIOUS micro-rover. This will mark Japan's second private lunar landing attempt after a 2023 failure. The micro-rover will attempt to extract water from lunar soil and split it into hydrogen and oxygen.

This could pave the way for producing life-sustaining resources on the moon, essential for long-term human presence. The third landing, Intuitive Machines' IM-2 mission, will carry a 1 — metre drill to probe for water ice. This mission aims to map subsurface ice deposits, which are crucial for NASA's Artemis programme, which plans to have a sustainable base on the moon by 2030. The moon is re-emerging as humanity's next frontier for several reasons. Strategically, it's a stepping stone to Mars. It provides a testing ground for technologies like radiation shielding and in-situ generation of critical resources like oxygen. In terms of astronomy, the moon holds clues to the solar system's history. Economically, the moon's resources, like ice for fuel and oxygen, rare earth elements, etc., could fuel a space economy. Geopolitically, nations like the US and China see lunar dominance as a symbol of technological superiority, with the US and China planning to set up manned lunar bases before 2030.

Private Sector Involvement: A New Paradigm The success of startups like Firefly Aerospace, space and Intuitive Machines marks a shift from Government-led exploration to a commercial model.

NASA's CLPS programme exemplifies this by outsourcing lunar delivery to firms for a fraction of traditional costs. Private sector agility accelerates mission timelines, fosters innovation, and reduces cost. At the same time, competition drives technological leaps, such as SpaceX's water-splitting experiment.

India, too, is at the cusp of developing the startup ecosystem for space technologies. Startups like Dhruva Space, Pixxel, Agnikul Cosmos, Bellatrix Aerospace, and Skyroot Aerospace are developing a host of technologies, including end-to-end satellite solutions, a constellation of high-resolution hyperspectral imaging satellites, electrical thrusters for satellites, a small satellite launch vehicle, etc.

These startups are driving India's private sector, leveraging Government support and global interest. The lunar landings will provide a wealth of scientific insights and lay the foundation for future lunar bases.

For the first time, private companies and startups are leading the charge, conducting pioneering experiments like water extraction and ice drilling. These missions will bring us closer to a future where humanity not only visits the moon but thrives there and beyond.

Leaderspeak

Every country wants to partake, even countries that have ripped us off for many, many years. China is an example, but it's not just China, European Union. They ripped us off for many, many years, and those days are over... We'll be able to lower taxes substantially.

Letters to the Editor

A wake-up call for National security

Madam — The brutal killing of 26 innocent people, most of them tourists, in Pahalgam, Jammu & Kashmir, has left the nation stunned. Militants disguised in army uniforms opened fire while the victims were enjoying pony rides and scenic views.

It stands as one of the most diabolical acts of terror in recent times. While Prime Minister Narendra Modi was quick to cut short his official visit to Saudi Arabia in response, questions arise about the Government's repeated claims of normalcy in the region. How did such a well-coordinated attack go unnoticed? Was this not a failure of our intelligence and security apparatus?

Reports suggest that the attack may have been carried out by 'The Resistance Front,' an offshoot of Lashkar-e-Taiba. If so, how were they able to infiltrate a tourist hotspot without triggering any security alerts? Where were the patrols? Why was there no surveillance in such vulnerable areas? The Government must give answers to all these questions. It is not the time for rhetoric but for real action; nab the culprits and give them an exemplary punishment. These questions demand urgent answers. As peace-loving citizens, we mourn with the bereaved families and demand accountability. May the souls of the departed rest in peace and may justice be served swiftly and decisively.

The transformative power of reading

Madam — Reading is more than a skill — it is a gateway to lifelong learning, personal growth, and academic success. On World Book Day, we celebrate the vital role that reading plays in shaping young minds and inspiring curiosity.

A child's attitude toward reading greatly influences their motivation to read. When children enjoy reading, they naturally want to read more.

This enjoyment, nurtured from a young age, forms the foundation of strong reading habits. Reading not only enhances vocabulary and communication but also sharpens analytical thinking and improves writing skills.

Parents play a critical role by reading with their children regularly. These shared moments help children experience the joys of storytelling, cultivating a lasting love for books.

Every child learns differently — while some may take to reading naturally, others need encouragement and exposure to find their spark. Let us instil the value of reading early, so the next generation grows up with the tools they need to succeed and the imagination to dream big.

Let us nurture a love for reading from an early age, guiding children toward knowledge, creativity, and success. With consistent encouragement and shared reading moments, we can empower young minds to embrace books, build essential skills, and unlock their full potential. As they books are our best friends. Let this friendship begin!

Nation stands united against terror

Madam — India stands united in sorrow following the horrific terrorist attack in Pahalgam, Jammu & Kashmir, on Tuesday, April 22, which claimed the lives of 30 innocent civilians. The nation mourns with the affected families who are enduring unimaginable pain. As countless voices across the country express solidarity, many are also demanding the severing of all sporting ties with Pakistan in the wake of the tragedy.

"This heinous act has caused irreparable harm, destroying families and striking at the heart of our society," many said in their condolences. "Our thoughts and prayers are with the families of the victims. May they find peace and strength in these dark times," many people said in their emotional posts. It is a moment which can destroy all the gains humanity has made till date and plunge into negativity. But let us be sane and not spread hate. Interestingly, while bilateral cricket matches between India and Pakistan have not occurred since a one-off ODI series in 2012–13, their clashes in ICC tournaments remain the most anticipated events in global cricket. The recent ICC Champions Trophy faced turbulence, with India declining to send a team to Pakistan due to security concerns. Matches were eventually hosted at a neutral venue in Dubai. Moving forward, both the BCCI and PCB have agreed to avoid playing on each other's soil for at least three years.

WORLD MALARIA DAY: REIGNITING THE FIGHT AGAINST MALARIA

Malaria is a life-threatening parasitic disease transmitted by the female Anopheles mosquito. Despite being preventable and treatable, it remains a major global health challenge. Since the late 1990s, the international community has renewed its commitment to eradicating malaria, preventing an estimated 2.2 billion cases and 12.7 million deaths over two decades.

Yet, the disease still claims one life every minute, with the vast majority of fatalities occurring in the African region, which accounts for 82 per cent of cases and 95 per cent of deaths. Unfortunately, malaria control efforts are being hampered in low-income endemic countries due to extreme weather conditions, armed conflicts, humanitarian crises, and economic instability.

These challenges leave millions with limited access to preventive, diagnostic, and treatment services. If not treated promptly, malaria can quickly become a severe and life-threatening illness. World

Malaria Day 2025 Theme: This year, World Malaria Day, observed annually on April 25 since 2008, is themed "Malaria Ends With Us: Reinvent, Reimagine, Reignite." It is a global call to action that urges individuals, communities, and leaders to intensify efforts, champion innovation, and ensure sustained investment in the fight to end malaria. Common symptoms of malaria include fever, chills, sweating, headache, fatigue, nausea, vomiting, muscle and joint pain, anaemia, cough, and abdominal discomfort.

Preventive measures such as using insect repellents, wearing long-sleeved clothing, using mosquito nets, and eliminating stagnant water around homes are vital in reducing mosquito bites and keeping communities malaria-free. We have the knowledge and tools to end malaria. The choice is ours — act now. Ending malaria is not only a health necessity but also a step toward a fairer, safer, and more prosperous future for all.

Terror in Pahalgam shatters India's diplomatic high

As world leaders lauded India's geopolitical ascent, the attack marked a chilling reminder that terror in Kashmir remains a calculated lever in the regional and international balance of power

FIRST Column

JD Vance, the Vice President of the United States, arrived in India on 19 April, following a solemn stop at the Vatican, where he became the final high-ranking official to meet the late Pope Francis — an emblematic rebel of the modern Church whose death this week marked the end of a transformative papacy.

Vance's arrival was framed as an endorsement of India's ascendant geopolitical status, punctuated by public tributes to Prime Minister Modi and the deepening of the Indo-American strategic alliance. This diplomatic spectacle was further amplified by the April 9 extradition of Tahawwur Hussain Rana, a Pakistani — origin Canadian linked to the 2008 Mumbai attacks, representing a rare convergence of legal triumphs between the two nations in their fight against terrorism.

Yet, this orchestration of diplomatic victories quickly unravelled, as within days of these high-profile engagements, Kashmir — a region central to India's evolving image — was once again thrust into global headlines, not by progress, but by tragedy. On April 22, a massacre in the idyllic meadows of Baisaran near Pahalgam once heralded as the face of Kashmir's resurgence, accentuated a brutal paradox: the strategic narrative of peace and prosperity was violently interrupted by terror, forcing the world to confront the enduring volatility of the region at a moment when India appeared poised for diplomatic consolidation.

On April 22, 2025, a massacre unfolded in the meadows of Baisaran near Pahalgam, often romanticised as "India's Switzerland." What had become a symbol of India's Kashmir renaissance — a picturesque site of family vacations, film shoots, and summer retreats — was reduced to a field of carnage as unidentified gunmen opened fire on a group of tourists. At least twenty-eight civilians, mostly men, were methodically executed, while women and children were reportedly spared.

The attack was not merely an act of terror, but a deeply choreographed intervention in India's domestic and international narrative regarding Kashmir. It sought not just to kill, but to provoke, destabilise, and symbolically mutilate the emerging image of a peaceful, integrated, and economically flourishing region. The timing of the attack is far too conspicuous to be dismissed as arbitrary. Beyond coinciding with the visit of the American Vice President and coming a few days after the extradition of a high-profile terrorist suspect, the attack occurred against the backdrop of growing international recognition of India's Kashmir policy post the abrogation of Article 370 in August 2019. Since that constitutional transformation, Jammu and Kashmir have experienced what some argue is the beginning of a socio-economic metamorphosis. The region recorded a significant uptick in tourist arrivals, over 3.5 million in 2024 alone — and notable improvements in infrastructure, per capita income, and public order, especially relative to other northern Indian states. Critics of New Delhi's policy feared a resurgence of insurgency post-2019, but such forecasts had not materialised at the scale predicted. Instead, the Indian Government appeared to have successfully restrained militant mobilisation through strategic military presence, economic incentives, and political integration. In this context, the Pahalgam attack functions as a violent punctuation — an abrupt and bloody interruption in a gradually stabilising narrative. Its deliberate orchestration, selective targeting of non-Muslim male tourists, and execution-style killings point to a calculated act of psychological and political warfare. Intelligence sources have attributed the operation to The Resistance Front (TRF), a group often described as a proxy of Lashkar-e-Taiba, the Pakistan-based organisation responsible for the 26/11 Mumbai attacks. Although the Pakistani state has officially denied any involvement, the attack bears the hallmarks of asymmetric warfare, characteristic of entities that, though ostensibly autonomous, often operate under the shadow and sanction of foreign state apparatuses. This week, newly declassified US intelligence documents, released by the National Security Archive, highlight a chilling historical continuity with the current crisis.

FROM THE CHATTISINGHPORA MASSACRE IN MARCH 2000, WHERE 36 SIKH VILLAGERS WERE EXECUTED DURING PRESIDENT CLINTON'S VISIT, TO THE 2001 JAMMU AND KASHMIR ASSEMBLY BOMBING, THE 2003 NANDIMARG MASSACRE OF KASHMIRI PANDITS, THE 2017 AMARNATH YATRA AMBUSH, AND NOW THE 2025 PAHALGAM KILLINGS, THE PATTERN IS UNMISTAKABLE

A 1981 memorandum warned of catastrophic consequences from an Indian strike on Pakistan's Karachi Nuclear Power Plant, with up to 20,000 latent cancer cases in Karachi due to Iodine-131 exposure. The document reflected Washington's concerns about how quickly a conventional South Asian conflict could escalate to nuclear war. This was echoed in a 1989 report by the US State Department's Bureau of Intelligence and Research, which deemed a full-scale war between India and Pakistan "improbable," yet stressed the high risk of escalation through miscalculation, especially in the event of strikes on Pakistan's nuclear sites. By 1993, a National Intelligence Estimate suggested a one in five chance of war, noting that nuclear rivalry, cross-border militancy, and rising extremism could turn even minor skirmishes into a regional disaster. What emerges from these archival assessments is a grim continuity: terror in Kashmir has consistently been a strategic tool wielded not merely to express ideological dissent but to force geopolitical recalibration. This is not a theatre of mindless extremism; it is a crucible of meticulously calibrated violence. From the Chattisinghpura massacre in March 2000, where 36 Sikh villagers were executed during President Clinton's visit, to the 2001 Jammu and Kashmir Assembly bombing, the 2003 Nandimarg massacre of Kashmiri Pandits, the 2017 Amarnath Yatra ambush, and now the 2025 Pahalgam killings, the pattern is unmistakable. Civilian targeting escalates in moments of diplomatic progress, suggesting an ideological commitment by militant actors to challenge not only the Indian state but also its evolving position within the global order.

The present attack comes at a moment when India is enjoying heightened diplomatic engagement with the Arab Countries and the West. Saudi Arabia, traditionally a close ally of Pakistan, has in recent years pivoted towards India as a key economic and strategic partner. The United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, and even Iran have signalled similar recalibrations.

This realignment was most visible during the 2019 India-Pakistan standoff when the Gulf states played a critical role in de-escalation, and again when they muted their responses to India's abrogation of Kashmir's autonomy. The Kashmir issue, once a central rallying cry in Islamic internationalism, has lost its salience in the Gulf's strategic calculus. For militant organisations and their state backers, this diminishing global sympathy poses an existential challenge. Reinvigorating the Kashmir discourse through acts of horror appears to be the chosen mode of revival.

It would be naïve to view the Pahalgam massacre in isolation. The possibility of future attacks targeting soft civilian clusters — tourists, religious pilgrims, migrant workers — across other regions in South Asia cannot be discounted. Nepal's porous borders, Sri Lanka's post-conflict fragilities, and India's Northeast remain potential theatres for replication.

In the wake of this attack, Prime Minister Modi faces a dilemma reminiscent of Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu's conundrum following the Hamas assault in October 2023. A tempered response could be construed as weakness, emboldening adversaries and fuelling domestic political critiques of failed security assurances. Conversely, a muscular retaliation — especially if aimed at Pakistan or its proxies — risks internationalising the Kashmir dispute once again, undoing years of diplomatic effort to position it as an internal Indian matter. Moreover, in the context of escalating global multipolarity and emergent regional axes, a misstep could precipitate a broader crisis, pulling in actors far beyond South Asia.

Mental Health: A silent crisis demanding urgent action

Mental well-being can no longer be treated as secondary to physical health. As Government initiatives take shape and public awareness grows, the time has come for a collective, compassionate response to protect our nation's mental health and with it, our future

There is an old saying that a healthy mind leads to a healthy body — I could not agree with it more! Ever since the pandemic, we are witnessing a steep rise in mental health related conditions. It's a matter of grave concern that a large number of people are today suffering from what is termed as unmanageable stress, depression and anxiety. It is equally concerning to note that these ailments are impacting across the age spectrum, be it students, young adults or the elderly.

When we look at the data pertaining to mental health, it is like being hit by a ton of bricks. Such is the extent of this issue that one student is committing suicide every hour in India.

Taking note of the growing suicide deaths in higher educational institutions across the country, the Supreme Court recently formed a National Task Force for a mechanism to prevent student suicide deaths on campuses and address their mental health issues.

The bench said that the National Crime Records Bureau (NCRB) data for 2021 highlights the grim reality that over 13,000 students lost their lives by committing suicide in the country.

According to the World Health Organisation, depression affects over 300 million people globally, and it is predicted to be the leading cause of disability by 2030.

In 2024, studies in India continue to reveal a significant burden of depression, with estimates indicating that over 56 million people are affected and research points to a rising trend, particularly in rural areas and among certain demographics.

Factors like rapid urbanisation, economic pressures, social isolation, and the pandemic have contributed to the increase. The Bipolar disorder landscape in India is also quite serious, about 1 in 150 persons in the country suffer from it, and quite disturbingly, 70 per cent remain untreated.

as depression or bipolar disorder. This finding is significant as it points to a series of progressions before this most tragic final step.

When we look deeper into the mental health scenario in India, multiple issues that have a profound impact on mental health — come to the fore.

In the case of the students and the young, many are too busy searching for material things as the entire space for them has become extremely competitive, there is reduced focus on relaxation and unwinding, and as a result burn outs and depression encircle their lives.

In all this, the impact of the internet and social media in aggravating pressures and setting unattainable and overambitious goals — courtesy of peer pressure, is also creating a havoc in the lives of the youth.

In the case of the elderly, we are witnessing the rise in loneliness as their children are either not living with them, due to studies or jobs, or spending much less time because of preoccupations and inability to detach from their busy schedules. There is therefore, a fear of growing old, along with increasing insecurities — about who will take care of them, when they reach their physical limits due to advancing age.

Since the pandemic, we are witnessing a renewed focus and much greater emphasis on mental health issues. They are now being increasingly considered as much of a priority as many physical issues.

The Indian Government has launched several initiatives to address mental health, including the National Tele Mental Health Programme (Tele MANAS) and the Ayushman Bharat, HWC Scheme.

Tele MANAS provides free, 24/7 mental health support through a toll-free helpline, while the Ayushman Bharat scheme integrates mental health services into primary healthcare. Additionally, the National Mental Health Programme (NMHP) and the District Mental Health Programme (DMHP) are key components of India's mental healthcare services. For the elderly, the Government has launched the National Programme for Health Care of the Elderly (NPHCE) and the Atal Vayo Abhyuday Yojana (AVYAY).

The NPHCE provides comprehensive healthcare, including mental health services, to senior citizens. AVYAY supports various welfare initiatives for senior citizens, including grant-in-aid for mental health services and awareness programs. Additionally, the National Helpline for Senior Citizens (Elderline) offers support and guidance, including emotional support for those struggling with mental health issues.

It is extremely reassuring that the highest levels of our nation — are aware and alive, to the seriousness of the situation. In fact, our hon'ble Prime Minister has led from the front with his views and possible solutions that can go a long way in addressing this critical subject. In his popular monthly program 'Mann Ki Baat', he highlighted the importance of mental health, especially among the youth in the current era, and spoke with crystal clarity about the role of physical activity, diet, yoga, along with the use of technology like artificial intelligence to elevate mental health.

This should be seen as a nudge, and it requires a collective approach that involves the families, academia and the community to create an enabling ecosystem that safeguards our students and the generations to follow. These guardrails should both protect and strengthen — protect against the perils of social media, the pressure that it can unleash on the young and innocent, strengthen the two-way communication (candid and unreserved) between the students and their parents/families, strengthen the role of the friends, peers and the community in creating a positive environment that accepts average performance as not the end of the world, and instils the spirit of optimism.

All of these, will ensure, that the dejection from failure or pressure of excelling, are dealt with most effectively. The educational institutions and their leadership also have to provide an environment where students feel motivated, encouraged and appreciated. Grades and excellence alone are not what life is all about — it's about an honest to self and best possible effort.

It's for all this, that suitable conditions have to be created. This can include counselling, dedicated presence and round the clock availability of experts who can spot the red flags and identify those who need psychological support and guidance in a timely manner, thereby, ensuring that a decline in mental faculties of the students in their institutions is drastically reduced.

This will play an impactful role in the creation of a quintessential complete establishment — one that focuses not just on the studies but also creates avenues of growth for the all-round development of its students.

In the end, we have to be mindful of the ground realities. Our journey has just started on this very long and arduous path, and it will take multiple approaches to address this key health aspect, that has a huge bearing on our country.

Mental health is a significant component of a 'Swastha Bharat' dream, and has a direct and crucial impact on national creativity and productivity. While factors that contribute to mental ailments will only increase in the coming times, it's our proactive and head-on engagement, that will ensure effective remedies.

I do believe, that well begun is half done, and that we are indeed headed in the right direction — one of hope and promise of a bright future!

Pakistan top brass meet, discuss India's response

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Islamabad

Pakistan Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif on Thursday held a meeting with key ministers and the three services chiefs to formulate the country's response on India's move to suspend the Indus Water Treaty and downgrade diplomatic ties after the Pahalgam terror attack.

The decisions taken at the National Security Committee meeting were not immediately known.

India on Wednesday suspended the Indus Water Treaty of 1960 and announced downgrading diplomatic ties with Pakistan, including expulsion of its military attaches, in view of the cross-border links to the Pahalgam terror attack that killed 26 people on Tuesday.

Earlier, Dawn reported that deputy prime minister Ishaq Dar, while speaking to a private television channel late on Wednesday, lashed out at India's approach, calling it "immature" and "hasty".

"India has not given any evidence. They have not shown any maturity in their response," Dar said. "This is a non-serious approach. They started creating hype immediately after the incident."

Pakistan's Foreign Office, in a separate statement earlier on Wednesday, expressed regret over the loss of life. Diplomatic observers warn that the Indian response and Pakistan's counter-messaging could push bilateral relations to new lows, further widening a rift that has persisted since the 2019 Pulwama-Balakot crisis.

The treaty suspension, in particular, risks sparking long-term water disputes, while the downgrading of diplomatic ties could hinder any future de-escalation efforts, Dawn reported.

A day after the Pahalgam attack, the Cabinet Committee on Security (CCS) met in New Delhi on Wednesday evening under the chairmanship of Prime Minister Narendra Modi and firmed up the responses to the terror attack.

The CCS also decided to close the Integrated Check Post at Attari with immediate effect. Pakistani nationals will not be permitted to travel to India under the SAARC Visa Exemption Scheme (SVES) and any such visas issued in the past to Pakistani nationals are deemed cancelled, it was announced.

China successfully launches three new astronauts to its space station

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Beijing

China has successfully launched three astronauts to its space station on Thursday to replace their colleagues manning the station for the past six months.

The Shenzhou-20 crewed spaceship carrying the astronauts blasted off at 5:17 pm (Beijing Time) from the Jiuquan Satellite Launch Centre in northwest China.

Minutes after the launch an official in the mission control centre announced that the launch was a "complete success." The launch was telecast live by the state-run CGTN.

The spaceship is carrying three astronauts — Chen Dong, Chen Zhongrui and Wang Jie. It will dock with the space station later tonight.

Shenzhou-20 is the 35th flight mission of China's manned space programme, and the fifth crewed mission during the application and development stage of China's space station.

The crew is scheduled to return to the Dongfeng landing site in north China in late October this year.

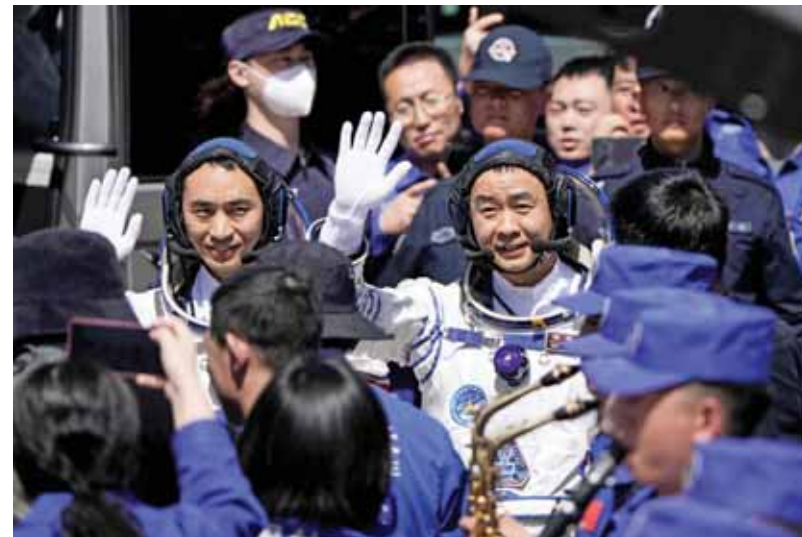

China rotates a three-member crew manning the space station named Tiangong every six months.

After the new set of crew members enter the station, the other three are expected to return to earth on April 29.

The crew will conduct new life science experiments involving zebrafish, planarians and streptomyces, the China Manned Space Agency (CMSA) spokesman Lin Xiqiang told the media on Wednesday.

These experiments will mark China's first space-based investigation into the regeneration of planarians, a new organism introduced to China's space station and known for their extraordinary ability to regrow organs, Lin said.

This project will enhance our understanding of fundamental mechanisms of regeneration at the individual level and could provide insights into human health issues related to space-induced injuries, Lin said.

Chinese astronauts for the Shenzhou-20 mission Chen Dong, right, and Chen Zhongrui wave during a send-off ceremony for their manned space mission at the Jiuquan Satellite Launch Center in northwestern China

The CMSA also said on Wednesday that two Pakistani astronauts will be selected to receive spaceflight training in China to take part in a joint mission to the country's space station.

One of the two Pakistanis will participate as a payload specialist, state-run Xinhua quoted a CMSA spokesperson as saying.

China built its space station after it was reportedly excluded from the International Space Station (ISS) over concerns that China's space programme is manned by its military, the People's Liberation Army (PLA).

It is currently the only country to have a space station while the ISS is a collaborative project of several countries.

Observers say China's space station may become the only one of its kind in orbit once the ISS retires in the coming years.

The two robotic arms of the station, especially the long one which has the ability to grab objects including satellites from space, drew international concerns.

The launch day coincided with China's 10th Space Day. China had designated April 24 as its Space Day in 2016 to mark the successful launch of its first satellite, Dongfanghong-1 on April 24, 1970.

Separately, the China National Space Administration (CNSA) announced on Thursday that scientists from institutions in France, Germany, Japan, Pakistan, the UK and the US have been granted the opportunity to borrow lunar samples collected by the Change-5 mission for scientific research.

At a ceremony for China's Space Day in Shanghai, the agency announced that seven institutions from six countries have been authorised to borrow the lunar samples, state-run Xinhua news agency reported.

In 2020, China's Change-5 mission retrieved samples from the moon weighing about 1,731 grams.

Shan Zhongde, head of the CNSA, said China's lunar exploration programme has always adhered to the principles of equality, mutual benefits, peaceful utilisation and win-win cooperation, sharing achievements with the international community.

By the end of December 2023, CNSA had received 24 applications from 11 countries and international organisations, the report said.

Korean leader indicted for alleged bribery

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Seoul

South Korean prosecutors indicted former liberal President Moon Jae-in on bribery charges Thursday, saying that a budget airline gave his son-in-law a lucrative no-show job during Moon's term in office.

Moon's indictment adds him to a long list of South Korean leaders who have faced trials or scandals at the close of their terms or after leaving office.

Prosecutors allege that Moon, who served as president from 2017-2022, received bribes totalling 217 million Won (USD 151,705) from Lee Sang-jik, founder of the budget carrier Thai Eastar Jet, in the form of wages, housing expenses and other financial assistance provided to Moon's then-son-in-law from 2018-2020.

South Korean media reported that Moon's daughter and her husband were divorced in 2021.

The Jeonju District Prosecutors' Office said in a statement that Lee was also indicted on charges of paying bribes to Moon and committing breaches of trust.

The prosecutors' office said Moon's former son-in-law was hired as a director-level employee at Lee's company in Thailand even though he had no work experience in the airline industry.

The office said he spent only brief periods at the company's office in Thailand and carried out only minor duties while claiming to be working remotely from South Korea.

Moon's indictment adds him to a long list of South Korean leaders who have faced trials or scandals at the close of their terms or after leaving office

The prosecutors' office said it had not found evidence that Moon performed political favours for Lee, who worked on Moon's campaign, but that Lee likely expected his assistance to be repaid.

Lee was later named the head of the state-funded Korea SME and Startups Agency and was nominated by Moon's party to run for parliament while Moon was in office, but the prosecutors' office said that it hasn't found any evidence that Moon helped Lee win those positions.

There was no immediate response from Moon.

Moon's indictment comes before South Korea elects a new president on June 3 to succeed conservative President Yoon Suk Yeol, who was ousted over an ill-fated imposition of martial law. It's unclear if Moon's indictment will influence prospects for liberals to win back the presidency.

Observers say liberal presidential aspirant Lee Jae-myung is heavily favoured to win the vote as conservatives remain in disarray over Yoon's ouster, although Lee also faces criminal trials on allegations of corruption and other charges.

Most past South Korean presidents have been embroiled in scandal in the final months of their terms or after leaving office. In 2017, Park Geun-hye, South Korea's first female president, was removed from office and arrested over an explosive corruption scandal.

Park's conservative predecessor Lee Myung-bak was also arrested on a range of crimes, years after leaving office. Moon's friend and former liberal President Roh Moo-hyun jumped to his death in 2009 amid corruption investigations into his family.

South Korean truth commission halts probe into adoption fraud, cases in limbo

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Seoul

The South Korean government's fact-finding commission suspended its groundbreaking investigation into the extensive fraud and abuse that tainted the nation's historic foreign adoption program, a decision stemming from internal disputes among commissioners regarding which cases warranted recognition as problematic.

The Truth and Reconciliation Commission confirmed human rights violations in just 56 of the 367 complaints filed by adoptees before suspending its investigation Wednesday night, just one month before its May 26 deadline.

The fate of the remaining 311 cases, either deferred or incompletely reviewed, now hinges on whether lawmakers will establish a new truth commission through legislation during Seoul's next government, which takes office after the presidential by-election on June 3.

After a nearly three-year investigation into adoption cases across Europe, the United States, and Australia, the commission concluded in a March interim report that the government bears responsibility for facilitating a foreign adoption program riddled with fraud and abuse, driven by efforts to cut welfare costs and carried out by private agencies that often manipulated children's backgrounds and origins.

However, some adoptees, and even members of the commission, criticised the cautiously-worded report, arguing that it should have more forcefully established the government's complicity.

Disputes also arose after the commission's nine-member decision-making panel, dominated by conservative-leaning members appointed by recently ousted President Yoon Suk Yeol and his party, voted on March 25 to defer the assessments of 42 adoptee cases, citing insufficient documentation to conclusively prove the adoptions were problematic.

Commission officials haven't disclosed which documents were central to the discussions. However, they suggested that some commissioners were hesitant to recognize cases where adoptees couldn't definitively prove falsification of biological details in their adoption papers, either through meeting their birth parents or verifying information about them.

On Wednesday, the panel resolved the standoff by unanimously agreeing to suspend, rather than completely drop, the investigation into the 42 cases. The approach leaves open the door for the cases to be reconsidered if a future truth commission is established. The panel also agreed to suspend investigations into the remaining 269 cases, citing insufficient time to complete the reviews before the deadline, according to three commission sources who described the discussions to the Associated Press.

The ruling triggered a snap presidential election set for June 3. Park Geon Tae, a senior investigator who led the probe into adoptions, said the truth commission would be unable to produce any further investigation reports on adoptions before the end of its mandate, after the terms of five of the nine commissioners ended following Wednesday's meeting.

This potentially paralyses the decision-making process, which requires the support of at least five members. Most Korean adoptees were registered by agencies as abandoned orphans, even though many had relatives who could have been easily identified or located. This practice has often made it difficult - or even impossible - for them to trace their roots.

The reluctance of some commissioners to accept cases in which adoptees have been unable to find information about their birth parents reflects a lack of understanding of the systemic problems in adoption and contradicts the commission's broader findings, which acknowledged the manipulation of children's origins, said Philsik Shin, a scholar at South Korea's Anyang University.

Shin's analysis of government, law enforcement, and adoption records concludes that more than 90 per cent of Korean children sent to the West between 1980 and 1987, when adoptions peaked, almost certainly had known relatives. The commission's findings released in March broadly aligned with previous reporting by The Associated Press. The AP investigations, which were also documented by Frontline (PBS), detailed how South Korea's government, Western countries and adoption agencies worked in tandem to supply some 200,000 Korean children to parents overseas, despite years of evidence that many were being procured through questionable or outright unscrupulous means.

Military governments implemented special laws aimed at promoting foreign adoptions, removing judicial oversight and granting vast powers to private agencies, which bypassed proper child relinquishment practices while shipping thousands of children to the West every year.

Western nations ignored these problems and sometimes pressured South Korea to keep the kids coming as they focused on satisfying their huge domestic demands for babies.

South Korea's government has never acknowledged direct responsibility for issues related to past adoptions and has so far not responded to the commission's recommendation to issue an official apology.

Modeled after the South African commission established in the 1990s to expose apartheid-era injustices, South Korea originally launched the Truth and Reconciliation Commission in 2006 to investigate past human rights violations. That ended its work in 2010.

Following the passing of a law that allowed for more investigations, the commission was relaunched in December 2020 under South Korea's former liberal government, with a focus on cases that occurred during the country's military dictatorship from the 1960s to 1980s.

Foreign adoptions were a major subject of the second commission, along with the atrocities at Brothers Home, a government-funded facility in Busan that kidnapped, abused and enslaved thousands of children and adults deemed as vagrants for decades until the 1980s. In January, the commission confirmed at least 31 cases in which children from Brothers Home were adopted abroad, which came years after The AP exposed adoptions from the facility as part of a vast, profit-driven operation.

SA scraps proposed tax increase after pushback

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Johannesburg

The South African government on Thursday cancelled a proposed tax increase that had threatened to collapse the unity government after a pushback from various political parties.

Finance Minister Enoch Godongwana announced that the government would no longer implement a 0.5 per cent increase on value-added tax (VAT), payable on goods and services including food and electricity, that would have increased it to 15.5 per cent.

The decision to forgo the increase follows extensive consultations with political parties, and careful consideration of the recommendations of the parliamentary committees

FINANCE MINISTER ENOCH GODONGWANA

The proposed VAT increase is the latest contentious issue faced by the unity government that was formed after the African National Congress party lost its parliamentary majority for the first time since coming to power in 1994.

"The decision to forgo the increase follows extensive consultations with political parties, and careful consideration of the recommendations of the parliamentary committees," said Godongwana in a statement early Thursday.

The government was looking to increase tax revenues through the VAT increase, and Godongwana said the estimated revenue would fall short by around USD 4 billion.

The Democratic Alliance, the second-biggest political party in the country and the coalition government, opposed the VAT increase and voted against the annual budget which initially proposed it.

The DA subsequently challenged the matter in court this week and claimed victory on Thursday, saying the cancellation of the tax increase was a win for all South Africans.

"We will continue to fight for all South Africans, especially the poor and the marginalised, in seeking responsible public spending so that the government does not keep on raising taxes to fund unlawful expenditure, corruption and sheer waste," said DA federal chairperson Helen Zille. Opposition parties and civil society have also criticised the proposed increase as anti-poor.

More than 20 million people in South Africa rely on welfare grants, with the unemployment rate at over 32 per cent, according to official statistics.

This is the latest disagreement between the two main parties after the formation of the unity government last year.

Ancient Taiwan jawbone is of human ancestors: Scientists

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Taipei

An ancient jawbone discovered in Taiwan belonged to an enigmatic group of early human ancestors called Denisovans, scientists reported Thursday. Relatively little is known about Denisovans, an extinct group of human cousins that interacted with Neanderthals and our own species, Homo sapiens.

"Denisovan fossils are very scarce," with only a few confirmed finds in East Asia, said study co-author Takumi Tsutaya at the Graduate University for Advanced Studies in Japan.

So far, the only known Denisovan fossils include partial jawbones, a few teeth and part of a finger bone found in caves in Siberia and Tibet. Some scientists believe fossils found in a cave in Laos may also belong to Denisovans.

The probable identification of the jawbone from Taiwan as Denisovan expands the region where scientists know these ancient people once lived, said Tsutaya.

The partial jawbone was first recovered when a fishing operation dredged the seafloor in the Penghu Channel near the Taiwan Strait. After it was sold to an antique shop, a collector spotted it and purchased it in 2008, then later donated it to Taiwan's National Museum of Natural Science. Based on the composition of marine invertebrates found attached to it, the fossil was dated to the Pleistocene era. But exactly which species of early human ancestor it belonged to remained a mystery.

The condition of the fossil made it impossible to study ancient DNA. But recently, scientists in Taiwan, Japan and Denmark were able to extract some protein sequences from the incomplete jawbone. An analysis showed some protein sequences resembled those contained in the genome of a Denisovan fossil recovered in Siberia. The findings were published in the journal Science.

Istanbul residents spend night outdoors after earthquake

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Istanbul

Many Istanbul residents spent the night outdoors, too fearful to return to their homes, following a strong earthquake and over 180 aftershocks.

The magnitude 6.2 quake tremor that struck on Wednesday deeply impacted the city of 16 million residents, leaving many inhabitants shaken and wary of a possible more destructive tremor. There were no reports of serious damage but the tremor, the strongest felt in Istanbul in recent years, prompted widespread panic and scores of injuries.

The earthquake had a shallow depth of 10 kilometers (about 6 miles), according to the United States Geological Survey, with its epicentre about 40 kilometers (25 miles) southwest of Istanbul, in the Sea of Marmara. It was felt in several neighbouring provinces. At least 236 people were treated for injuries they suffered while trying to jump from buildings or for panic attacks. Most of the injuries were in Istanbul, where residents remain on edge because the city is considered at high risk for a major quake. In fear of a stronger earthquake that could demolish homes, residents sought refuge by sleeping in their cars or setting up tents in parks and other open spaces. Many lit camp fires to keep warm after the temperature dipped. Turkey is crossed by two major fault lines, and earthquakes are frequent. For many, the memory of a devastating earthquake that struck 11 southern and southeastern provinces two years ago, remains vivid.

The 7.8-magnitude earthquake on February 6, 2023, claimed more than 53,000 lives and destroyed or damaged hundreds of thousands of buildings. Another 6,000 people were killed in the northern parts of neighbouring Syria. The Turkish disaster and emergency management agency, AFAD, said Wednesday's earthquake was followed by 184 aftershocks - seven of them of a magnitude 4 or stronger.

Environment, Urbanization, and Climate Change Minister Murat Kurum stated that authorities had received 378 reports of structural damage in various buildings. At least 12 buildings had been evacuated as a precautionary measure, he said.

Vatican keeps St Peter's open all night for public viewing of Pope Francis sage of inclusion, the grieving faithful joined the procession of mourners that wended from St Peter's Square through the basilica's Holy Door, with the repent among them winning an indulgence, a form of atonement granted during the Jubilee Holy Year. From there, the line extended down the basilica's central aisle to the pope's simple wooden casket. By late Wednesday, the wait appeared to be three or four hours and growing. A person doing crowd management estimated that the wait was closer to five hours. The mourners stretched down the centre of Via della Conciliazione, in a lane set aside for Jubilee pilgrims.

The basilica is bathed in a hushed silence as mourners from across the globe make a slow, shuffling procession up the main aisle to pay their last respects to Francis, who died Monday after a stroke.

Like many others, the Scorpatti family from Calabria is in Rome on an Easter vacation, only to be met with the news of Francis' death on Easter Monday. Out of devotion to the pope and his mes-

'India Inc revenue growth to remain flat'

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Mumbai

India Inc's revenue growth will remain flat at about 5 per cent to 6 per cent in the March quarter, but profitability will widen, a domestic rating agency said on Thursday.

An arm of Crisil Ratings said the operating profit margins are seen at 8 per cent, a widening of up to 0.60 per cent, when compared with the year-ago performance. The agency analysed over 400 companies accounting for over 50 per cent of NSE's market capitalisation to arrive at its estimates. Some companies, especially in the information technology sector have already announced their earnings.

Improved showing by the consumer-driven sectors excluding staples will be a key contributor for the topline growth, while the bottom line will benefit from a mixed set of aspects which are unique to a sector, it said.

Crisil Intelligence's director Pushan Sharma said consumer discretionary products, services and staple services segment is expected to see 8 per cent to 9 per cent on-year increase in revenue.

The agency analysed over 400 companies accounting for over 50 per cent of NSE's market capitalisation to arrive at its estimates

"This would be led by an expected 15 per cent surge in telecom services revenue resulting from significant tariff hikes implemented in the second quarter and the introduction of premium 5G plans by telecom operators.

"The retail segment likely saw a robust 17 per cent growth, led by demand in the value fashion, and food and grocery segments, as well as an expansion of store networks," Sharma said.

The automobile sector's revenue likely grew 6 per cent as retail momentum for passenger vehicles picked up and realisations rose owing to a change in the product mix and increasing share of exports, Sharma said. The fast-moving consumer goods (FMCG) segment is expected to see 4-6 per cent revenue growth led by price hikes amid subdued volume growth, it said, adding that rural demand has been resilient and urban demand has stayed subdued.

Overall exports revenue is likely to grow 4 per cent, including 2-3 per cent growth in IT services revenue following a marginal improvement in demand and project pick-ups and 8 per cent in the pharmaceutical sector. In the agriculture sector, including fertilisers, revenues are likely to grow 17-19 per cent with consumption improving, following a stable summer crop acreage and higher disposable incomes stemming from better yields and remuneration for kharif paddy.

In construction-linked sectors, revenue growth is seen limited to 1-2 per cent as cheaper steel imports throughout the year resulted in lower prices.

However, steel prices have improved sequentially after the announcement of safeguard duty, it noted.

On the profitability front, its associate director Elizabeth Master said, "the top 10 sectors, which collectively account for over 70 per cent of revenue, showed a mixed trend in EBITDA margins."

Five sectors including export-driven ones such as pharmaceuticals, investment-linked ones such as power, and consumer discretionary such as telecom services, likely saw margin expansion, Master said. Five other sectors — automobile, IT services, FMCG, cement, and steel — saw margins decline in the March quarter.

The automobile sector's EBITDA margin fell by 1 percentage point following a 25 per cent increase in aluminium prices driven by inventory decline and supply concerns in various global regions.

The margin in IT services is estimated to have fallen by up to 0.40 per cent on-year owing to higher marketing and travel spends.

The FMCG sector margin likely slipped 0.50-1 per cent on increased cost of essential inputs such as palm oil, tea and dried coconut kernels, the agency said.

'Regulations alone can't save you if you don't protect yourself': BSE CEO

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Kolkata

Stressing the need for investor awareness and responsibility, BSE Managing Director and CEO Sundararaman Ramamurthy on Thursday said that regulations alone cannot protect investors if they do not take adequate precautions while investing.

"You trade what you understand, and you understand what you trade - if you don't do that, you have a problem," Ramamurthy said, urging investors to be vigilant and informed.

He criticised the tendency of investors to rely on hearsay rather than due diligence. "You scan a vegetable before you buy it, but when you invest your life's earnings, you go by hearsay - that's not how it should be," he said.

On regulatory expectations, the BSE chief remarked that there is a general perception that regulators are blamed when investors lose money, but when markets do well the same person praise their own knowledge. "If you don't want to safeguard yourself, no amount of regulation can save you. Be alert," he stressed.

Addressing the issue of retail participation while speaking at the Calcutta Chamber of Commerce, Ramamurthy advised that small investors who are not market experts should opt for the mutual fund route - and even then, they should avoid thematic funds and instead choose broad-based mutual funds or large-cap funds to diversify risk.

He also encouraged women and the youth to begin investing early in their careers. Highlighting the potential of India's SME sector, the BSE CEO pointed out that only about 40 companies from this region are currently listed on the stock exchange, while the actual potential could be well over 1,000. He urged more small and medium enterprises to consider listing as a viable route to raise funds and grow their business and unlock their potential.

Responding to a question on possible manipulation in SME listings, Ramamurthy acknowledged that frauds such as pump-and-dump schemes could not be ruled out entirely even if regulators and stock exchanges are vigilant.

SEBI facilitates ease of doing business for SM REITs

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ New Delhi

To facilitate ease of doing business for Small and Medium REITs (SM REITs), markets regulator Sebi has standardised disclosures in draft scheme offer document and simplified public issue processes for such schemes.

In its notification, the regulator has standardised disclosures in scheme offer document by splitting the document into two parts — Key Information of the Trust (KIT) that contains information about the SM REIT, its investment manager, Trustee, and overall structure and Key Information of the Scheme (KIS) that includes details specific to the individual scheme and its assets.

On processing of KIT and KIS, Sebi said that for the first scheme, KIT and KIS will be filed together for its review. For subsequent schemes, only the new KIS needs to be submitted, while KIT is updated for records, and the regulator will review only the KIS. Sebi said any material changes in the KIT will be disclosed through an addendum on the SM REIT's website and reported to the regulator and stock exchanges within seven days.

Further, the investment manager will have to ensure that KIT is updated every 6 months and the updated KIT is disclosed on the website of SM REIT within 30 days from the end of half-year.

The investment manager is required to file the updated KIT with Sebi and stock exchanges for records within 30 days from the end of half-year.

With regards to proposals for the public issue process for SM REITs, the regulator has extended REIT Guidelines to SM REITs with certain exceptions.

Also, the regulator said a scheme of SM REIT can make an initial offer of its units by way of public issue only. Such an initial offer is required to be made within one year of Sebi's observations.

If not, a fresh draft scheme offer document needs to be filed.

"The minimum subscription amount shall be 90 per cent of the fresh issue size as specified in the KIS in case of a scheme of SM REIT which opts to utilise leverage in accordance with these regulations. The minimum subscription amount shall be 100 per cent of the fresh issue size as specified in the KIS in case of a scheme of SM REIT which does not opt to utilise leverage in accordance with these regulations," Sebi said in its notification

SEBI tweaks framework for ESG rating providers

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ New Delhi

Markets regulator Sebi has tweaked the framework for ESG Rating Providers (ERPs), especially for those using a subscriber-pays model, requiring them to share ESG (Environmental, Social, and Governance) rating reports with both subscribers and the rated issuer simultaneously.

This policy needs to be publicly disclosed.

To give this effect, the Securities and Exchange Board of India (Sebi) has amended rules governing credit rating agencies in a bid to enhance clarity and transparency.

"An ESG rating provider following a subscriber-pays business model shall share the ESG rating report with its subscribers and the rated entity or the issuer whose securities have been rated at the same time and provide two working days to such rated entity or the issuer to provide its comments," Sebi said in its notification issued on Tuesday.

Further, all comments or clarifications received from the rated entity within the specified timeline will be included in the addendum to the ESG rating report by the ERP.

If the rated entity or the issuer has a different viewpoint on the data stated in the report, ERPs, after taking into account such viewpoint, can either revise the report or issue an addendum to the report with its remarks, for circulation to all its subscribers.

Moreover, ERPs are required to disclose the policy regarding the sharing of ESG rating reports with the rated entity or the issuer whose securities have been rated and the subscribers on its website.

Also ERP will provide a facility to the rated entity or the issuer whose securities have been rated to seek any clarification, including the ESG rating methodology or assumptions.

Sebi has defined subscriber-pays business model as a business model where the ESG rating provider derives its revenues from ESG ratings from subscribers including banks, insurance companies, pension funds, or the rated entity itself.

An ESG rating provider following a subscriber-pays business model will have to ensure that assigned rating is based only on publicly available information and that the fee paid by the subscriber is the lowest fee paid amongst all the subscribers if the rated entity or issuer is a subscriber itself.

Rupee gains 16 paise to settle at 85.29 against US Dollar

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Mumbai

After a two-day pause, the rupee gained 16 paise to 85.29 (provisional) against the US dollar on Thursday, on weak greenback and overnight decline in crude oil prices.

Forex traders said the rupee strengthened on the weak US dollar and overnight decline in crude oil prices amid slowing US business activity. The US Treasury yields also declined with the 10-year yield falling 3 basis points to 4.35 per cent.

At the interbank foreign exchange, the domestic unit opened at 85.60 and moved between the intra-day high of 85.25 and the low of 85.67 against the greenback. The unit ended the session at 85.29 (provisional), registering a gain of 16 paise over its previous closing level.

On Wednesday, the rupee depreciated 26 paise and settled for the day at 85.45 against the US dollar.

"We expect the rupee to trade with a positive bias as weakness in the US dollar is likely to remain intact amid trade tariff uncertainties. However, risk-on sentiments in the global markets and FII inflows may support the rupee at lower levels. "Traders may take cues from weekly unemployment claims, durable goods orders and existing home sales data from the US. USD INR spot price is expected to trade in a range of 85 to 85.70," Anuj Choudhary, Research Analyst at Mirae Asset Sharekhan, said.

Meanwhile, the dollar index, which gauges the greenback's strength against a basket of six currencies, was trading lower by 0.51 per cent at 99.33. Brent crude, the global oil benchmark, rose 0.65 per cent at C 66.55 per barrel in futures trade.

"Near-term technicals for spot USD INR indicate support at 85.03 and resistance at 85.70. High-frequency data suggests a stronger rupee, though geopolitical factors may cap the gains," Dilip Parmar, Research Analyst, HDFC Securities, said.

Traders said heightened geopolitical tensions, following the terror attack in Pahalgam, Jammu & Kashmir, weighed on market sentiment.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Thursday declared that the killers of Pahalgam will be pursued "to the ends of the earth" and promised to "identify, track and punish every terrorist and their backers". India on Wednesday downgraded diplomatic ties with Pakistan and announced a raft of measures, including expulsion of Pakistani military attaches, suspension of the Indus Water Treaty of 1960, and immediate shutting down of the Attari land-transit post in view of the cross-border links to the horrific Pahalgam terror attack in which 26 civilians were killed.

Gold climbs ₹200 to ₹99,400/10 gm amid US, China standoff

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ New Delhi

Gold prices climbed ₹ 200 to ₹99,400 per 10 grams in the national capital on Thursday following fresh buying by stockists and jewellers and a weak dollar, according to the All India Sarafa Association.

The precious metal of 99.9 per cent purity took a U-turn from the historic ₹ 1 lakh-mark and declined ₹ 2,400 to ₹ 99,200 per 10 gram on Wednesday.

Gold of 99.5 per cent purity also increased ₹ 200 to ₹ 98,900 per 10 grams against the previous close of ₹ 98,700 per 10 grams.

US Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent on Wednesday said the current trade standoff between the US and China could continue for a while.

Adding to this, there were reports that President Donald Trump signalled that China may receive a new tariff rate in the next "two to three weeks" while countries that are currently in the negotiation phase might see reciprocal tariffs come in if negotiations are not going the way he wants.

According to commodities market experts, remarks by Trump and Bessent help revive demand for the safe-haven bullion following a corrective slide from the all-time peak.

Meanwhile, silver prices appreciated ₹ 700 to ₹ 99,900 per kg on Thursday. The white metal had settled at ₹ 99,200 per kg in the previous close.

In futures trade, gold contracts for June delivery bounced ₹ 1,046, or 1.1 per cent to ₹ 95,768 per 10 grams on the Multi Commodity Exchange.

"Gold opened with a strong gap-up of over ₹ 1,000, hitting ₹ 95,700 on MCX, as Comex gold held firm above $ 3,300.

The renewed upside came after a sharp shift in the Trump administration's tone — indicating that tariffs may still remain a central part of the conversation before any concrete trade talks with China begin.

"This delay in diplomatic progress, coupled with uncertainty around China's official response, continues to keep risk sentiment elevated," Jateen Trivedi, VP Research Analyst, Commodity and Currency at LKP Securities, said.

Notably, China has yet to issue a strong or clear stance on the trade discus-

Stock market decline after 7-day rally, HUL drops

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Mumbai

Equity benchmark indices Sensex and Nifty ended lower on Thursday amid profit-taking after a seven-day rally and disappointing earnings from Hindustan Unilever.

Selling in blue-chips ICICI Bank, Bharti Airtel and a largely muted trend in Asian and European equities also dragged the markets lower. The 30-share BSE benchmark declined 315.06 points or 0.39 per cent to settle at 79,801.43.

During the day, it dropped 391.94 points or 0.48 per cent to 79,724.55. The NSE Nifty went down by 82.25 points or 0.34 per cent to 24,246.70.

In the past seven trading days, the BSE benchmark gauge zoomed 6,269.34 points or 8.48 per cent and the Nifty jumped 1,929.8 points or 8.61 per cent.

From the Sensex firms, FMCG major Hindustan Unilever Ltd (HUL) dropped 4 per cent after the firm reported a decline of 3.35 per cent in consolidated net profit at Rs 2,475 crore for the fourth quarter ended March 31, 2025 on lower margins. In Asian markets, South Korea's Kospi index and Hong Kong's Hang Seng settled lower.

The Erasure of Truth from Our Classrooms

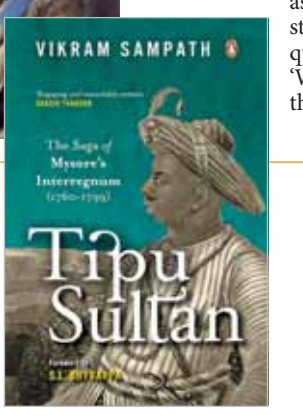

A powerful book revisits distorted narratives and uncovers the legacy of Tipu Sultan's reign, presenting a thought-provoking account of a lesser-known chapter in Indian history, the author challenges misconceptions and sheds light on the atrocities committed by Tipu Sultan, says KUMAR CHELLAPPAN

Most of us have heard about the Indian Council of Historical Research (ICHR), formed in 1972 by the Government of India to foster objective and scientific writing of history and to inculcate an informed appreciation of the country's national and cultural heritage.

The ICHR, since the day it was formed, has been jam-packed with Leftist intellectuals who decide what the true history is and what should be told to the world about the history and tradition of the subcontinent. It was the Marxists who constituted the think tank and determined the quality of Indian history. The organisation publishes a journal Indian Historical Review (IHR) twice a year and it is said that the publication has a list of historical research undertaken by the eminent historians in the country whose are the last words in history.

The IHR is published by a foreign agency with a dubious track record. The old issues are sold across the counters in ICHR's stalls during book fairs and exhibitions. It is priced at ₹800/- per issue to make sure that ordinary mortals do not buy or read these reviews. Neither Raghuvendra Tanwar, Chairman, nor other members of the ICHR could give an answer to the query why this review is being published by an outside agency while the Council itself is flush with funds. A top official, when asked and pointed out this discrepancy, told this writer, "Dekhenge" (Let's see). The reasons behind the mystery associated with the ICHR are not much to seek. The organisation has a lot to hide from the public eye.

If you have any doubts, please read what has been written by S L Bhyrappa, that wonderful scholar from Mysore, as foreword to Tipu Sultan — The Saga of Mysore's Interregnum (1760-1799) authored by Vikram Sampath, the young historian who created a storm with his earlier book on Savarkar. Since 1969, what we read and learn as history in schools and universities in the country is manufactured history and tampered chronicles. The series Yes, Prime Minister, authored by Jonathan Lynn and Antony Jay and telecast as a series by Doordarshan way back in the 1980s, is a good example. There was this cabinet minister in Britain, Right Hon. James Hacker, who was elevated as Prime Minister of the country by accident. Hacker wanted to leave an indelible track record about his tenure and asked Lynn and Jay to edit his memoirs. "We were astonished to discover that, at times, Hacker seems to have deated and rearranged past events in order to present himself in a favourable light... We cannot believe that any politician would rearrange past events deliberately in order to distort the historical record and so we have had to assume that Hacker had some strange defect of mind that frequently led him to ask not "What did I do?" but "What is the most impressive explanation of my actions that cannot be disproved by published facts?"

Bhyrappa says that a meeting of educationists was convened by G Parthasarathy, an acolyte of Indira Gandhi, and asked them to rewrite Indian history to integrate the nation through education. For that to happen, Parthasarathy wanted the educationists to remove the unpalatable truths from Indian history and fill it with half-lies and full lies so that students would remain ignorant of the cruelties meted out by the likes of Aurangzeb, Hyder Ali and Tipu Sultan, all Islamic zealots. What the then government wanted was to black out the cruel deeds and genocides of Hindus by Aurangzeb and others. When Bhyrappa objected to this diktat, he was quickly eased out of the committee and replaced with a Marxist ideologist.

Since then, we have been hearing about Akbar the Great, Aurangzeb the Mighty, and Tipu Sultan the Lion, etc. What Sampath has done in this 904 — page volume is a chronicle of events launched by Hyder Ali and his son Tipu Sultan as rulers of Mysore and the treachery committed by the duo to cleanse the region free of infidels. During Tipu's campaign in the Malabar province, he took into custody thousands of Hindus and asked them: "Sword or Islam?"

Those who refused to get converted to Islam were slaughtered instantly.

The Malabar campaign of Tipu stands out for the murder and mayhem unleashed by him in the region. Not only Malabar, the entire stretch of area from Kasaragod to Kochi bore the brunt of his savage deeds.

Tipu Sultan, portrayed as the embodiment of secularism, had destroyed, demolished, desecrated and plundered thousands of temples spread across Karnataka, Malabar and Kochi. But there are certain forces out to whitewash him as an angel. His father, Hyder Ali, too was a barbarian and had murdered the Wodeyar King who had appointed him as a commander in the Mysore Army.

In yet another book It Happened Along the Kaveri, authors Padma Seshadri and Padma Malini had recounted with proof that Hyder Ali and Tipu Sultan were the founding fathers of scams and corruption.

Sandeep Balakrishna, in his compendium Tipu Sultan: The Tyrant of Mysore, buried Tipu, while Vikram Sampath has erected his gravestone with this work. A moviemaker like Vivek Agnihotri has enough material in this book for a widescreen film. If you miss this book, you are the loser.

In Step with a Republic's Journey

BY TEAM VIVA

The Undying Light by Gopalkrishna Gandhi is a deeply personal and panoramic account of India's journey from Independence to the present. With the quiet dignity and precision that characterise his public life, Gandhi weaves together memoir, political commentary, and historical reflection into a work that is both intimate and illuminating.

The book begins with the tragic memory of Mahatma Gandhi's assassination, which the author witnessed as a three-year-old—a haunting prelude that sets the emotional tenor for what follows. Across eight distinct sections, he traces the milestones and missteps of independent India through the lens of one who has served at the highest echelons of government, from secretary to two Presidents to governor of West Bengal and Bihar.

The volume moves through the seismic shifts in India's post-Independence trajectory — Partition, the framing of the Constitution, the Emergency, communal violence, the rise of coalitions, and the emergence of majoritarian politics. Gandhi filters these moments through a moral and reflective lens. His writing is meditative and grounded, offering a perspective shaped by first-hand observation and an enduring faith in democratic values. The Emergency is dissected with the same rigour as the demolition of the Babri Masjid; the idealism of the Nehruvian era is weighed alongside the complexities of the present. His reflections on federalism, secularism, and democratic ethics serve as poignant reminders of the principles upon which modern India was built—and the forces now testing their resilience. The book was recently launched by Sharmila Tagore, who described it as a profound reflection on India's rich history and values. The launch also featured a panel discussion with Aruna Roy, Montek Singh Ahluwalia, and Rudrangshu Mukherjee, who shared insights that added depth to Gandhi's perspective.

The Undying Light does not aim to dazzle with dramatic flourish, but to illuminate the path of a nation that continues to evolve. It is a considered work—layered, compassionate, and quietly urgent. For readers seeking a deeper engagement with modern Indian history through the lens of a scholar — statesman, this book offers a compelling narrative rooted in lived experience and thoughtful observation.

CSK vs SRH: Battle of survival

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Chennai

Chennai Super Kings (CSK) will eye a crucial turnaround at home when they face an equally desperate Sunrisers Hyderabad (SRH) in a battle of survival in the Indian Premier League here on Friday. Both sides have endured a turbulent season, notching just four points from eight games, and must now win all remaining fixtures to keep their slim qualification hopes alive.

Known to make the most of home conditions, five-time champions CSK find themselves in uncharted territory as they have not been able to read the wickets well at the Chepauk.

They started strong at their fortress, dominating Mumbai Indians as Noor Ahmad spun a web around the visitors. But the early promise fizzled out quickly, with three successive losses at home.

The also endured the ignominy of posting their lowest-ever IPL total at home — 103/9 against Kolkata Knight Riders.

Head coach Stephen Fleming has also voiced frustration over the Chepauk surface, which has offered more to seamers than CSK's usual spin-heavy attack.

There away form has not been any better either, with just one win in four attempts.

CSK have lacked firepower in the batting department and captain Ruturaj Gaikwad's absence due to an injury has only made it worse for the storied outfit.

MS Dhoni has returned as full-time captain. While his knee continues to limit mobility, the former Indian captain's leadership remains invaluable.

His death-overs batting, field placements, and ability to recalibrate the bowling attack could be key in CSK's revival.

In encouraging signs, 17-year-old Ayush Mhatre made a promising debut against MI with the bat. The franchise has also roped in South Africa's Dewald Brevis in a bid to strengthen their power-hitting department.

SRH, meanwhile, have endured an equally erratic campaign. A bright start gave way to inconsistency, with their ultra-aggressive, attack-at-all-costs strategy falling flat.

The explosive opening pair of Travis Head and Abhishek Sharma, so vital last season, have failed to hit the same heights this year.

While Sharma's brilliance secured a win against Punjab Kings, Head is yet to truly make his mark.

The heavy dependence on their top two has exposed the frailty of the middle order, which has struggled to absorb pressure, something head coach Daniel Vettori also conceded after the seven-wicket loss to Mumbai Indians.

"When Head and Abhishek don't succeed, then it's the responsibility of the other batsmen. Potentially that's what we haven't had this season around. The ability for partnerships, for one or two guys to step up," Vettori said.

Boult backs Rohit Sharma, calls him world-class player

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Hyderabad

Mumbai Indians' pacer Trent Boult has backed "world-class" Rohit Sharma to play a pivotal role in the team's pursuit for a record-extending sixth IPL title, following back-to-back half-centuries that signalled his timely return to form.

The Kiwi left-arm pacer was instrumental in dismantling Sunrisers Hyderabad's famed top order, returning with a match-winning spell of 4/26 to cap MI's fourth straight win in emphatic style.

After SRH collapsed to 143/8, MI, powered by Rohit's commanding 46-ball 70, chased down the target in just 15.4 overs. The emphatic win not only boosted their net run rate but also propelled them to third place on the points table.

"I think the whole side, the whole Mumbai Indians squad possesses some world-class players and obviously Rohit needs no introduction in that regard," Boult said at the post-match media interaction.

"I am sure everyone wants to be contributing at some points, but Rohit's doing a fantastic job of late and playing nicely just at the right time. So he's going to play a huge role for us in the remaining part of the season. I think you just need to be prepared for any role," he added.

Boult also praised captain Hardik Pandya for his leadership style, calling it a refreshing experience.

"Hardik's a passionate cricketer, obviously ly very skilful. He's a great leader, I think. He leads from the front.

"He's a great communicator. He's one of my favourite Indian cricketers, so to get the chance to play underneath him is a great experience."

Boult, who has adjusted seamlessly into a new role after shifting from Rajasthan Royals to MI, emphasised the importance of adaptability in a long tournament like the IPL.

"At Rajasthan I was prepared to bowl at any stage of the match. I've been lucky enough to play 10 IPL seasons where it hasn't always been the same recipe every time. So I think the first thing is you've got to always want the ball.

"There's some great players in there. Obviously, ( Jasprit) Bumrah needs no introduction either, so it's great to be having ball back in hand with him."

Mumbai Indians had just one win in their first five matches, and now they have four in the trot, keeping them firmly placed for a playoff berth. But Boult is not looking too far ahead.

"Momentum wasn't on our side to start with, but to turn it around to have four wins in a row was the focus, just to get a bit of momentum, a bit of rhythm. Guys playing nice cricket at certain points. We're not going to look too far ahead.

"It can quickly change. Looking forward to getting back home, playing in some conditions that we know pretty well, but there's a long way to go in this tournament," he added.

SRH need support from middle order: Coach Vettori

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Hyderabad

Sunrisers Hyderabad (SRH) head coach Daniel Vettori admitted that a dramatic top-order collapse coupled with a wrong "assessment" of the pitch proved decisive in their crushing defeat to Mumbai Indians.

The big-hitting SRH top order slumped to 24/4 in the powerplay, and despite a fighting partnership between Heinrich Klaasen (71) and impact substitute Abhinav Manohar (43), the hosts could only manage 143/8, a total that proved woefully inadequate on a pitch that has already seen two 240-plus totals this season. "The toss was important — we wanted to bowl first. The wicket was different from what we'd seen before, and while we had discussed the possibility of a 250-280 surface, the conditions changed dramatically. It was tough to assess the par score early on," he said at the post-match press conference.

"Once we got through two overs, the assessment was that it was not the 250-260 wicket that this has been the last couple of games. And we obviously went out of depth." He said their strategy was to go all out in the powerplay but the plan unravelling quickly.

"We wanted to maximise the powerplay, but unfortunately we kept losing wickets and once we realised that the surface wasn't what we anticipated, then we needed to build towards that sort of 180 score, and that unfortunately became difficult to do when you're 24/4 after the power play.

Vettori said Ishan Kishan's bizarre dismissal only added pressure to the team.

Batting at number 3, Ishan Kishan stunned everyone by walking off, indicating a faint edge, even as none of the MI players appealed and the on-field umpire was on the verge of signalling a wide.

"Ishan's dismissal was obviously disappointing, and that put pressure on everyone coming in. When you are in a power play situation, you still want to try and maximise those two fielders out."

Vettori said there's a need for better game awareness and support from the middle order when the aggressive top-order duo of Head and Abhishek fail to fire.

"Travis and AB, when they go, they are very aggressive and they take the game on and it's led to a lot of success for us. And when they don't succeed, then it's the responsibility of the other batsmen.

Real Madrid beats Getafe 1-0 in Spanish league

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Madrid

Real Madrid kept pace with Spanish league leader Barcelona with a 1-0 win at Getafe ahead of the rivals' meeting in the Copa del Rey final.

Arda Güler scored a first-half goal for Madrid, which moved back within four points of Barcelona. The Catalan club edged Mallorca 1-0 on Tuesday.

Madrid coach Carlo Ancelotti used many reserves ahead of Saturday's Copa final in Seville. Brazil forward Endrick made his first Spanish league start with the club, and Vinicius Júnior was substituted in the second half. Jude Bellingham came off the bench in the second half.

Midfielder Eduardo Camavinga had to be replaced because of an apparent muscle injury in the final minutes and is doubtful to be available for Saturday's final. He had entered the match at halftime to Madrid goalkeeper Thibaut Courtois made a couple of difficult saves late to secure Madrid's victory.

It was the third league win in a row for Madrid, which endured a Champions League elimination against Arsenal in the competition's quarterfinals.

Getafe has lost three in a row, and four of its last five league games. The club from southern Madrid sits in 12th place.

The match was briefly stopped in the second half as fans from Getafe chanted "Die (Dani) Ceballos, die Ceballos."

CELTA WINS AGAIN

Celta Vigo moved to seventh place by routing fifth-place Villarreal 3-0 at home with goals by Fer López, Borja Iglesias and Iago Aspas.

The victory ended a two-match losing streak for the Vigo team. Villarreal, winless in two matches, played a man down replace defender David Alaba, who also is doubtful because of a muscle ailment.

"We'll see, but it's unlikely that they will be available on Saturday," Ancelotti said.

Madrid had demoralizing losses in both "clásicos" against Barcelona this season - 5-2 in the Spanish Super Cup final and 4-0 in their first league encounter at the Santiago Bernabeu stadium.

Güler scored the winner with a well-placed right-footed shot in the 21st minute at the Coliseum in Getafe.

"Fortunately, I scored the goal that gave us the three points," Güler said. "We knew it was going to be a tough match. It was important to give us confidence for the final (on Saturday)."

from the 37th after Eric Bailly was sent off with a straight red card.

WILLIAMS SCORES EARLY

Iñaki Williams scored five minutes into the match to give fourth-place Athletic Bilbao a 1-0 win over Las Palmas, helping the Basque Country club to open an eight-point gap above Villarreal, which remains with a game in hand.

Las Palmas, sitting in 18th place, was coming off two wins in a row after a 12-match winless streak in the league.

Alaves moved out of the relegation zone by beating ninth-place Real Sociedad 1-0 at home with a goal by Nahuel Tenaglia in the 65th.

Liverpool must wait to clinch Premier League title after Arsenal draws with Crystal Palace

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ London

One more point. That's all Liverpool needs to secure a record-tying 20th English top-flight title after second-place Arsenal drew 2-2 with Crystal Palace in the Premier League.

Arne Slot's runaway leaders can take care of Tottenham on Sunday by avoiding defeat to Tottenham in what is set to be a big party at Anfield. A draw or a win would ensure Liverpool cannot be caught by Arsenal with four more rounds remaining and therefore clinches a second title in five years, tying with fierce rival Manchester United on number 20 overall.

Becoming the champion in 2020 ended the storied club's 30-year title drought but Liverpool's players couldn't celebrate in front of their fans because of restrictions during the pandemic.

They'll try to make up for it this weekend. Arsenal twice squandered the lead at Emirates Stadium, with Jean-Philippe Mateta taking advantage of a defensive error by William Saliba to score Palace's second equaliser in the 83rd and leave Arsenal 12 points behind Liverpool.

Arsenal, which started with star forward Bukayo Saka on the bench, looked vulnerable throughout against Palace, with its players perhaps having an eye on the Champions League semifinals against Paris Saint-Germain starting next week.

"We have the most important game of the season in six days," Arsenal manager Mikel Arteta said. "We need to get our energy back."

ARSENAL BATTLING TO HOLD OFF RESURGENT CITY

Arsenal has been runner-up to Manchester City in the Premier League the previous two seasons and is facing a third straight second-place finish.

However, an improving City — a 2-1 winner over Aston Villa on Tuesday — is only six points back in third place after Arsenal's 13th draw of an inconsistent campaign. The hosts went ahead through Jakub Kiwior's header at a free kick in the third minute, only for Palace to reply when playmaker Eberechi Eze met a corner with a brilliantly taken downward volley that skimmed off the turf and flew in off the post in the 27th.

Leandro Trossard wriggled free in the area and scored with a deflected shot in the 42nd minute to restore Arsenal's lead. Mateta, a second-half substitute, had the final say, though, by capitalising on Saliba's poor pass and floating a shot over stranded goalkeeper David Raya from around 40 meters.

PALACE SWITCHES FOCUS TO THE FA CUP

Palace remained in 12th place and has little to play for in the Premier League. It is, however, heading into an FA Cup semifinal game against Aston Villa on Saturday in better heart. "It's important to keep this energy and confidence for the semifinal on Saturday," Palace manager Oliver Glasner said. "It was not our goal to decide the title, it was our goal to win the game. I think a draw is a very good result."

AC Milan ruins Inter's treble bid with derby win to reach Italian Cup final

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Milan

AC Milan has not achieved much this season — except when playing city rival Inter Milan. Milan ruined Inter's bid for a treble and advanced to the Italian Cup final with a 3-0 derby win Wednesday courtesy of two goals from Luka Jovic.

It was Milan's third win over Inter this season, having also beaten the Nerazzurri in the Italian Super Cup final in January.

"It was a very important game for us. As you know we are not that good in Serie A. We had to show the quality today. We had to show the character," Jovic said. "And we showed it and we are going to Rome."

And if Milan can win another trophy, coach Sergio Conceicao might have a chance at keeping his job — despite the seven-time European champion sitting ninth in Serie A.

Winning the Italian Cup — which carries a

Europa League berth — could be Milan's only route to a spot in continental play for next season. Milan advanced on 4-1 aggregate following a 1-1 first leg. Bologna brings a 3-0 lead over Empoli into the second leg of the other semifinal on Thursday.

The final is scheduled for May 14 in Rome. Inter pressed forward early on and Federico Dimarco struck the crossbar in the 23rd. But Jovic put Milan ahead 13 minutes later with a powerful header and then doubled the advantage from close range shortly after the break.

Tijjani Reijnders added another for Milan in the 85th by finishing off a full team move.

"We have a lot of belief," Reijnders said. "We have difficulties in the league but we know this is the fastest way to reach (Europe). And if we play like we did today we can win this trophy." It was Inter's second straight loss after the Serie A leader fell 1-0 at Bologna on Sunday. Inter will play Barcelona in the Champions League semifinals.

Italian teenager Federico Cina wins ATP Masters

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Madrid

Italian teenager Federico Cina picked up his second ATP Masters 1000 victory by defeating Coleman Wong in straight sets at the Madrid Open, while Gael Monfils became the oldest winner in the tournament's history. The 38-year-old Monfils rallied from a poor start to defeat qualifier Borna Gojo 1-6, 6-2, 6-4 for his first win in Madrid since 2022. The 42nd-ranked Monfils is a two-time quarterfinalist at the Masters 1000 clay-court event.

"At the beginning, he served one second serve," Monfils said of Gojo. "I think he had a 94 first-serve percentage, he played great. I (let the) storm pass, then different tactics. I served more with kick and tried to play a little bit different, maybe let him go and not do so much. At the end, just run, run to the ball. It's not a pretty win, but it's a win." The 18-year-old Cina won 7-6 (5), 6-1 to back up his victory over current No. 70 Francisco Comesaña in Miami last month, which marked his ATP 1000 debut. He saved both break points he faced against Wong and finished with 19 winners.
