First novel coronavirus patient in Hong Kong gets hospital treatment

F or Ms. Che, the 2020 Spring Festival will be unforgettable.

On January 23rd, she was isolated at home after being confirmed as the first novel coronavirus patient in Hong Kong.

“The symptoms were not severe, but I was scared,” she said. “I was very worried that I might die.”

Before the outbreak of the novel coronavirus, Ms. Che, a 60-year-old woman, had never been to Wuhan. She said she had been returning to Hong Kong every year during the Spring Festival to visit her family and friends.

On January 28th, she was transferred to the Queen Mary Hospital, the city’s only designated hospital for handling novel coronavirus cases.

“I have been well taken care of,” she said. “I am very grateful to the doctors and nurses.”

On February 2nd, she was discharged from the hospital after her symptoms had cleared up.

“I am very happy to be discharged,” she said. “I want to thank all the doctors and nurses who have taken care of me.”

The novel coronavirus had so far claimed the lives of more than 1,000 people and infected more than 40,000 others globally.

In Hong Kong, the number of confirmed cases remained at zero, with the only confirmed case being Ms. Che, who was discharged from the hospital.

“I am very happy to be discharged,” she said. “I want to thank all the doctors and nurses who have taken care of me.”

The novel coronavirus had so far claimed the lives of more than 1,000 people and infected more than 40,000 others globally.

In Hong Kong, the number of confirmed cases remained at zero, with the only confirmed case being Ms. Che, who was discharged from the hospital.

“I am very happy to be discharged,” she said. “I want to thank all the doctors and nurses who have taken care of me.”

The novel coronavirus had so far claimed the lives of more than 1,000 people and infected more than 40,000 others globally.

In Hong Kong, the number of confirmed cases remained at zero, with the only confirmed case being Ms. Che, who was discharged from the hospital.

“I am very happy to be discharged,” she said. “I want to thank all the doctors and nurses who have taken care of me.”

The novel coronavirus had so far claimed the lives of more than 1,000 people and infected more than 40,000 others globally.

In Hong Kong, the number of confirmed cases remained at zero, with the only confirmed case being Ms. Che, who was discharged from the hospital.

“I am very happy to be discharged,” she said. “I want to thank all the doctors and nurses who have taken care of me.”

The novel coronavirus had so far claimed the lives of more than 1,000 people and infected more than 40,000 others globally.

In Hong Kong, the number of confirmed cases remained at zero, with the only confirmed case being Ms. Che, who was discharged from the hospital.

“I am very happy to be discharged,” she said. “I want to thank all the doctors and nurses who have taken care of me.”

The novel coronavirus had so far claimed the lives of more than 1,000 people and infected more than 40,000 others globally.

In Hong Kong, the number of confirmed cases remained at zero, with the only confirmed case being Ms. Che, who was discharged from the hospital.

“I am very happy to be discharged,” she said. “I want to thank all the doctors and nurses who have taken care of me.”

The novel coronavirus had so far claimed the lives of more than 1,000 people and infected more than 40,000 others globally.

In Hong Kong, the number of confirmed cases remained at zero, with the only confirmed case being Ms. Che, who was discharged from the hospital.

“I am very happy to be discharged,” she said. “I want to thank all the doctors and nurses who have taken care of me.”

The novel coronavirus had so far claimed the lives of more than 1,000 people and infected more than 40,000 others globally.

In Hong Kong, the number of confirmed cases remained at zero, with the only confirmed case being Ms. Che, who was discharged from the hospital.

“I am very happy to be discharged,” she said. “I want to thank all the doctors and nurses who have taken care of me.”

The novel coronavirus had so far claimed the lives of more than 1,000 people and infected more than 40,000 others globally.

In Hong Kong, the number of confirmed cases remained at zero, with the only confirmed case being Ms. Che, who was discharged from the hospital.

“I am very happy to be discharged,” she said. “I want to thank all the doctors and nurses who have taken care of me.”

The novel coronavirus had so far claimed the lives of more than 1,000 people and infected more than 40,000 others globally.

In Hong Kong, the number of confirmed cases remained at zero, with the only confirmed case being Ms. Che, who was discharged from the hospital.

“I am very happy to be discharged,” she said. “I want to thank all the doctors and nurses who have taken care of me.”

The novel coronavirus had so far claimed the lives of more than 1,000 people and infected more than 40,000 others globally.

In Hong Kong, the number of confirmed cases remained at zero, with the only confirmed case being Ms. Che, who was discharged from the hospital.

“I am very happy to be discharged,” she said. “I want to thank all the doctors and nurses who have taken care of me.”

The novel coronavirus had so far claimed the lives of more than 1,000 people and infected more than 40,000 others globally.

In Hong Kong, the number of confirmed cases remained at zero, with the only confirmed case being Ms. Che, who was discharged from the hospital.

“I am very happy to be discharged,” she said. “I want to thank all the doctors and nurses who have taken care of me.”

The novel coronavirus had so far claimed the lives of more than 1,000 people and infected more than 40,000 others globally.

In Hong Kong, the number of confirmed cases remained at zero, with the only confirmed case being Ms. Che, who was discharged from the hospital.

“I am very happy to be discharged,” she said. “I want to thank all the doctors and nurses who have taken care of me.”

The novel coronavirus had so far claimed the lives of more than 1,000 people and infected more than 40,000 others globally.

In Hong Kong, the number of confirmed cases remained at zero, with the only confirmed case being Ms. Che, who was discharged from the hospital.

“I am very happy to be discharged,” she said. “I want to thank all the doctors and nurses who have taken care of me.”

The novel coronavirus had so far claimed the lives of more than 1,000 people and infected more than 40,000 others globally.